Congress Is Longest in U.S. Record

Legislative Body Saved 715 Days; Met on 404 Lawmaking Days at Capitol

Record Is Stormy

Battles, Skirmishes Mark Efforts to Arm Nation

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—Work-worn and weary, the 77th congress comes to the end of its legislative life today after an historic two-year struggle, first with the problems of a tremulous peace, then with the robust job of arming the nation for global war.

The House and Senate formally agreed to adjourn at the close of today's business, furnishing a breathing spell until the new congress takes over on Jan. 6.

Longest in history, the 77th congress was in session 715 days. The House met on 404 legislative days. Five senators and 14 representatives died during the two years.

It leaves a tempestuous record of pre-war battles over foreign policies, of sharp skirmishes between isolationists and interventionists; and then of sudden cohesion on war measures as bombs fell on Pearl Harbor.

The shadows of war already were stretching eastward from Asia, westward from Europe when the present congress first convened in January, 1941. And, as they lengthened, there was fashioned for the nation one of the greatest military programs in all history.

Unstintingly, the lawmakers opened wide the country's purse-strings to provide funds for a war machine. All in all, approximately $205,000,000,000 was appropriated during the two years, and of that total $192,000,000,000 was earmarked for war.

By contrast, about $46,000,000,000 was appropriated in 1917-18 for the first World War. Spending between the two conflicts reached its lowest point in 1924 and 1925, when the 68th congress voted a total of $7,900,000,000.

Taxes Are Heavy

To help pay the bills, new taxes were piled on both business and private citizens. In 1941, congress found $3,553,000,000 in new revenue, and this year probed even deeper to find an additional $6,881,000,000. Millions of new taxpayers were called upon to contribute to the cost of war as exemptions dropped.

Appropriation followed appropriation in those early days of the session to convert the broomstick guns and the tin can cannon used by green troops in early maneuvers into death-dealing weapons of modern warfare.

Major measures passed before the outbreak of war included the lend-lease bill and legislation to permit the arming of merchant ships, which then were authorized to sail into war zones with supplies for the country's future allies.

Even the step-up of defense legislation seemed slow after congress declared war in succession on Japan, Germany, Italy, Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary, and then threw the legislative machinery into high gear.

In the face of the dictators' challenge that democracy is outmoded, congress provided for a two-ocean navy, an army designed to reach a strength of 7,500,000 men, and an air force intended to achieve mastery of the sky.

Unprecedented powers were granted President Roosevelt to free his hands from normal peacetime restrictions. The ban against use of United States troops on foreign soil was lifted. Salaries and wages were stabilized at home.

Soldiers Protected

Laws were passed to protect the soldier's civilian interests, to give him the right to vote away from home, to boost his base pay from $21 to $50. The draft age was lowered to 18.

The administration had its setbacks, as well as its victories, in the past two years. Chief among the former were its attempts to wipe out state taxation of federal war purchases, its move to supplement state unemployment compensation with federal grants—one which opponents decried as an attempt at federal control—and President Roosevelt's request for

Patterson Says War Could Be Lost, Says Reports 'Fantastic'

Production of Military Weapons Should Remain in Control of Armed Forces He Says; Ridicules Idea Army Would Rule Economy

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP).—Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, said today removal of the production of military weapons and supplies from control of the armed forces might result in losing the war, and described as "fantastic" reports that the army was seeking control of the nation's civilian economy.

In a statement to the Truman Committee investigating the national defense program, Patterson said the supply of munitions was a continuous process "from drafting board to scrap pile," and with the armed forces being the only ones who knew what was needed and when, they were the only ones competent to direct this production.

On the other hand, he said, army and navy supply services have never been closely concerned with the development and production of raw materials, and control of the supply of such materials "is properly placed in a civilian agency, the war production board."

At almost the same time, C. I. O. President Philip Murray called again for creation of an over-all civilian body to control war production and "cut through the quagmire of vested interests." He favored legislation to create an office of war mobilization.

Murray charged in a statement read for him to the Senate small business committee that the United States Steel Corporation and Republic Steel were guilty of wasting nickel and that the former's projected armor plate plant at Gary, Ind., would eliminate from the war effort many small steel companies which had saved the armor plate program.

A civilian agency, he asserted, could "avoid the costly inefficiencies resulting from competition among the several branches of the armed services."

The C. I. O. leader charged that there had been "inexcusable wastage in the armor plate program of critical materials such as nickel and molydenum" by United States Steel in production of homogeneous armor plate used for the protection of tanks and other mobile war weapons.

Last September, Murray asserted, Clinton S. Golden, assistant to the President of the United Steel Workers wrote William L. Batt, W. P. B. vice chairman, that the W. P. B. ordnance division should expand the use of small business in the armor plate program to save nickel.

Batt was told a group of 31 small steel concerns banded together as the Standard Steel Spring Pool; heat-treated and fabricated steel obtained from Great Lakes, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Jones and Laughlin, none of which used nickel in their analyses, Murray declared.

Arthur Hallinan Is Appointed City Engineer by Board

County W.P.A. Superintendent Will Assume Duties January 1; Held Post in 1932

Arthur F. Hallinan, Ulster county superintendent of construction for the W.P.A., was appointed city engineer at the monthly meeting of the Board of Public Works on Tuesday afternoon to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of James G. Norton, who held the office for a number of years.

Mr. Hallinan will assume his duties the first of January. He is a former city engineer of Kingston having served in that position during the administration of Eugene B. Carey as mayor in 1932-33.

Mr. Hallinan was placed in charge of the county and city W.P.A. projects some years ago with office in the Cordts building on the Strand at Hasbrouck avenue.

Mr. Norton resigned recently to accept a position elsewhere, and in the interval Edward I. McCaffery, consulting engineer of the board, has been serving as acting city engineer.

At the meeting yesterday Mr. McCaffery said that in order to complete the siphon line and the connections to same, it would be necessary to acquire the following additional pipe: 1,200 feet of 12-inch; 480 feet of 16-inch, and 420 feet of 24-inch pipe.

The W.P.A. he said had informed him that they will furnish this pipe, provided the city can arrange to transport the pipe from Utica to the site of the work here.

This siphon line is being constructed to hook up the city's sewers with a new sewage disposal plant now under construction as a W.P.A. project on the site of the former Ulster & Delaware railroad shops on the Strand.

Mr. McCaffery submitted the following report of the work already done on the disposal plant:

Primary settling tanks: The form work has been removed from these tanks and the rubbing of the concrete has been completed.

Digesters: All of the excavation has been completed and the foundation stone placed. The placing of the reinforcing steel for the bottoms is now in progress.

Sludge drying beds: All of the woodwork has been completed on one of the beds and about 30 per cent completed on the other.

65 Firemen Hurt In Boston Blaze

Third Serious Fire Within Month Causes Damage Close to Million

Boston, Dec. 16 (AP)—Boston's third disastrous fire in a month today sent more than 65 firemen and coast guardsmen to hospitals and wrecked the five story brick Amory Building at Washington and West streets in the heart of the downtown shopping district with a loss estimated officially at "more than $300,000," and possibly as high as $1,000,000.

A detail of 160 seamen from the coast guard was called to aid the

RAYMOND DAVIS

Word has been received that Pvt. Robert E. Davis, who before his enlistment was a fireman on the New York Central Railroad, has safely reached his destination in Northern Africa. He has been overseas for two months, in an engineering battalion. His brother, Raymond W. Davis, has arrived safely home after spending nine months in Africa in the employ of Pan American Airways. He was in the Ferrying Command and worked as airplane mechanic. Both young men are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Kearney Davis, 260 Albany avenue extension.

2,479,000 Youths Are Available

Census Bureau Estimate Says That Group Is Subject to Military Draft

Births Increase

U. S. Rate Is Gaining, While Axis Nations Suffer

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Census Bureau estimated today there are 2,479,000 18 and 19-year-old youths in the country subject to military service under recent draft legislation. Of this number about 2,210,000 are white and 269,000 non-white.

Many of these of course are physically unfit or already have enlisted.

Because of a declining birth rate in the past, the bureau said the number of males attaining the age of 18 each year in the next few years will be less than this year's total.

However, the bureau said in another report, the birthrate is on the increase now and America has the lowest infant death rate of any of the large nations—47 for each 1,000 live births.

Only six nations have a lower infant mortality rate—Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands, Australia and New Zealand, all of which have rates ranging from 37 to 39, and Switzerland, with a rate of 46.

The mortality rates were based on 1940 statistics, which showed that 110,984 infants under one year of age died in the United States in that year.

The mortality rate in Germany in 1940 was 65, in Italy 104 and in Japan 112, the Japanese figures covering the period from 1936 to 1938.

Commenting on the mortality rate in the Axis countries, the bureau said:

"This has important implications from the standpoint of the population program for the Axis nations, since the effectiveness of the official policies adopted by Germany, Japan and Italy for increasing the population requires the reduction of mortality among infants, or at least the maintenance of a constant rate concurrent with an increase in the birthrate."

Other points in the bureau's special report on infant mortality rates included:

Infant death rates are lowest in cities of 100,000 population and over—39.3, and highest in rural areas—50.1.

January has the highest infant death rate—53.9—and August the lowest—43.2.

The infant death rate among males is 27.1 per cent higher than among females.

Among the states, Oregon and Minnesota have the lowest rate—33.2—and New Mexico the highest—100.5.

Motorists Are Requested To Protect Their Plates

Robert A. Snyder, war transportation administrator for Ulster county, asks that motorists, in order to preserve their present license plates, take five minutes time and clean the plate, then apply a coat of protective spar varnish to its surface. This simple procedure will keep the metal in good condition for another year until the new 1944 plates are issued.

The registrations on passenger and commercial vehicles expire Sunday, January 31; on omnibus and ambulances, December 31; on dealer and transporter vehicles, January 10. The 1943 registration strips, on sale at all motor vehicle issuing offices beginning December 18, may not be displayed before January 1.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—The position of the treasury December 14: Receipts $102,133,657.23. Expenditures $375,895,413.67. Net balance $7,157,176,850.42. Working balance included $6,394,634,811.52. Customs receipts for month $10,891,331.13. Receipts fiscal year (July 1) $5,982,511,231.20. Expenditures fiscal year $31,574,207,684.92. Excess of expenditures $25,591,696,471.72. Total debt $106,878,853,687.64. Increase over previous day $204,378,802.02. Gold assets $22,744,256,626.58.

Boy Reports Accident

Ernest Smith, 18, of 15 St. James street, reported to the police department that Tuesday at noon while riding his bicycle on Prospect street, his bicycle was struck at the intersection of Liberty street by an automobile driven by Michael Provizano of 114 Clinton avenue. Smith reported that he had suffered an injury to his right hip, and that his bicycle was damaged in the collision.

Allied Fighter Craft Strafe Axis Forces 100 Miles From El Agheila; British Push On

No Resistance Meets U. S. Bombers Over Bougainville

British headquarters reported today that Allied fighter planes had strafed Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating troops as far west as Zauta En Nofilia, 100 miles beyond the collapsed El Agheila front, and declared that British vanguards were now "well west" of El Agheila.

British military quarters in London said British advance forces had probably reached a point near Zauta En Nofilia in close pursuit of the Axis.

The presence of back-tracking Nazi troops at Zauta En Nofilia indicated that Rommel was retreating at top speed. A British communique said the attack was made there Monday night, and yesterday Allied light bombers and fighter-bombers resumed heavy blows on the Axis columns.

"Our leading forces, though still greatly impeded by mines, continued to harass the retreating enemy and are now well west of El Agheila," the British war bulletin said.

Reports yesterday said British vanguards had already passed the Marble Arch airfield, 40 miles west of El Agheila.

"Pilots report a great volume of traffic moving westward," the British communique added.

Italian headquarters said Axis motorized formations captured 17 tanks in yesterday's fighting, but this was unconfirmed and the British declared officially that the fleeing Rommel corps was offering only weak rearguard resistance.

Allied warplanes again intercepted south-bound Axis transport planes as Adolf Hitler still sought to pour reinforcements into the North African battle cauldron.

United States bombers, raiding the Japanese installations at Buin on Bougainville Island in the Solomons, met no enemy opposition, the navy reported today.

No explanation was available of the lack of opposition at Buin, considered as one of the principal Jap air bases and located about 275 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

The navy also reported a sixth attack on Munda airfield, under construction by the Japanese on New Guinea, and the wiping out of two Japanese machine gun crews on Guadalcanal in Communique No. 221 which said:

"South Pacific: (All dates are east longitude)

"1. On December 13, U. S. patrols on Guadalcanal Island destroyed two Japanese machine gun positions and killed both gun crews.

"2. On December 14, U. S. bombers attacked the enemy airfield at Buin, on the island of Bougainville. No enemy aircraft were encountered, and no anti-aircraft opposition was met. Results were not reported.

"3. On December 15, at noon, a striking force of Marine Corps dive bombers from Guadalcanal attacked Japanese installations at Munda, on New Georgia Isalnd. No enemy resistance was encountered. Results were not observed."

A Cairo communique said Allied fighters shot down at least four of the big transport craft out of a heavily escorted air convoy off Lampedusa Island, which lies between Sicily and Tunisia.

While Rommel fled precipitately westward, American and British vanguards were reported probing anew at the outer defenses of Axis-held Bizerte and Tunis today amid indications that the long-stalled battle for Tunisia might flare up again at any moment.

"Allied patrols are pursuing their activity forward of our lines," the Morocco radio said tersely.

The broadcast said United Nations airmen once more blasted Tunis, the capital, and the formidable Bizerte naval base, while Axis planes attacked the forward base of Lieut.-Gen. Kenneth A. N. Anderson's British 1st Army at Bone, in northeast Algeria.

On the Libyan desert front, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th Army slowly picked its way through a labyrinth of land mines and treacherous "booby traps" planted by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating Africa corps in the El Agheila defile, 400 miles east of Tripoli.

Frontline dispatches said that never before had the Germans sewn so many hidden snares in the zig-zag North African campaign. Thousands of deadly mines and other camouflaged explosives lined the desert, and despite great cau-

New York Expects To Freeze Wartime Workers at Jobs

Committees Will Control Big Labor Turnover of 900,000 and Stop Pirating

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Committees will be named within 10 days to formulate a plan to control New York's big labor turnover by "freezing" the state's 900,000 war workers in their jobs, Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, regional war manpower commission director, announced yesterday.

Mrs. Rosenberg said the program would provide for voluntary agreements between workers, employers and the commission whereby a worker would have to get a release to change jobs.

Such a plan has succeeded in Buffalo's industrial area where for the last two months it has controlled job switching among 190,000 workers in 324 factories, Mrs. Rosenberg asserted. A like undertaking was launched last week in Detroit, Mich.

Pirating of skilled labor has prevailed in the state, she declared, saying that the voluntary system would be more practicable than the authority given by the commission to establish employment control by proving future employment through the U. S. Employment service.

"Labor turnovers are terrifically high and terrifically costly," she asserted. "It takes twice the time for a new employe, even a trained worker, to get to the pace in production in a new job attained by regular employes. Some managers have admitted there has been a lot of piracy among the skilled workers available."

In addition to the Buffalo committee, committees will be set up for the areas of New York city, Elmira, Syracuse, Utica-Rome, Albany-Schenectady-Troy, Rochester and Binghamton.

The regional committee recommends that the voluntary agreements include provisions for non-pirating, non-recruitment of agri-

Cornwall Aviator Wins Cross for His Bombing of Vessel

San Francisco, Dec. 16 (AP)—One night's bombing mission over the southwest Pacific was attempted in weather so thick that the big Flying Fortress couldn't make its run at the designated target. The ship turned back to its base.

"Then we spotted a lone Jap cruiser through the muck," said Capt. Percy C. Stoddart, 27, of Cornwall, N. Y., the bombardier.

"We had the bombs and decided to take a crack at her, but we had to work so quickly that I didn't have time to get a sight. I just sort of threw my bombs in her direction and forgot about it.

"Then I heard the tail gunner yell that we'd hit her direct. I think that was the luckiest bombing run in history."

Lucky or not, it won the distinguished flying cross for Captain Stoddard. He stopped here briefly yesterday, homeward bound on leave.

Spangler Is Sure Of G.O.P. Victory

Party Chairman Says Errors Must Be Few, Minor, Changes to Come

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—Expressing confidence in Republican prospects in 1944 "if we can keep Harrison E. Spangler, the party's new national chairman, paid a hurried visit to Republican headquarters today to begin a reorganization of campaign personnel.

"Things are looking up for us for 1944," said Spangler, citing not only the recent election gains by his party but also what he called third party threats within Democratic ranks in the west and south.

"From what I can hear," said the 63 year old Cedar Rapids, Iowa, attorney, who was chosen

Education Board Considers Added Stokers in Schools

About 18,000 Gallons of Oil Have Been Saved Through Conversion; Case to Speak

While approximately 18,000 gallons of fuel oil have been saved thus far this season at Kingston High School and there is a possibility that the school will receive sufficient oil for the balance of the winter season, still the Board of Education is investigating the installation of coal burning stokers in the event the oil situation becomes more critical.

Investigation of stokers has been made and estimates have been received as to the comparative cost of coal and oil installations. Three stokers would be required to convert the high school boilers from oil to coal. Members of the board expressed the opinion that with the present high cost of fuel oil an installation of stokers probably would not only conserve oil but sufficient money might be saved to pay for the stoker installation in three or four years.

After the plan had been discussed the board voted power to the building commitee to engage the services of a heating engineer to make a survey of the heating plant and determine the cost of installation of stokers and also types and requirements. The building committee will report back at a future meeting.

While sufficient oil has been received to date to heat the building, Trustee Feeney stated that as the African campaign progresses more oil products would be diverted from the east coast to the fighting forces and even the present supply might be again cut. For this reason he suggested that the stoker proposition be investigated.

Three bids were received for magazines for the schools. Two were received from Kingston agents and one from Lake Katrine. George Shields of Lake Katrine bid $143.85, Viola Atwater

Position of Allies in Europe and Africa Is Considered Good; Initiative Is Ours

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Cairo, Dec. 15 (Delayed)—The allied position in the Hitlerian theatre in both Europe and Africa is good, taking it by and large, as the British eighth army pushes its thus far successful new offensive against Rommel's harassed army.

As regards this latest sensational drive, reports from the battle front encourage great optimism, but I think we shall do well if we content ourselves with noting successive steps and don't attempt to forecast. After all, no one can foresee with absolute certainty what may happen further ahead in natural defensive positions among huge gullies which this part of the world calls wadis.

However, it is legitimate for us to take cognizance of the undoubted fact that the Nazi Fuehrer's depleted and waning resources are beginning to buckle at the knees under the growing pressure from the United Nations. One of the most significant and hopeful aspects of the situation is that on all fronts the allies' brotherhood is maintaining the initiative—that priceless essential without which there can be no victory.

In an effort to counter this, Hitler is performing a major operation in the realignment of his fighting machine, but thus far all his moves have been defensive. He's playing for time in the hope it will save him.

Rommel picked the all highest's pumpkins right at fall harvest time when he had expected to hold a Thanksgiving feast.

His chief troubles lay in the Caucasus at that moment. Not only had Hitler failed to smash a gateway to fresh resources despite his terrible sacrifice of human life, but the Reds kept counterattacking so fiercely that he neither could pause to bind his grievous hurts nor spare much fighting strength for operations elsewhere.

Resourceful Rommel during the summer had flung the British eighth army back clear to El Alamein and was awaiting reinforcements to continue his victorious march across Egypt. He needed warplanes especially—just how badly is now apparent in the light of the disaster which subsequently overtook him.

However, Hitler couldn't give Rommel the necessary help. That unbelievable Red army kept battering Hitler with increasing in-

At the meeting yesterday Mr. McCaffery said that in order to complete the siphon line and the connections to same, it would be necessary to acquire the following additional pipe: 1,200 feet of 12-inch; 480 feet of 16-inch, and 420 feet of 24-inch pipe.

The W.P.A. he said had informed him that they will furnish this pipe, provided the city can arrange to transport the pipe from Utica to the site of the work here.

This siphon line is being constructed to hook up the city's sewers with a new sewage disposal plant now under construction as a W.P.A. project on the site of the former Ulster & Delaware railroad shops on the Strand.

Mr. McCaffery submitted the following report of the work already done on the disposal plant:

Primary settling tanks: The form work has been removed from these tanks and the rubbing of the concrete has been completed.

Digesters: All of the excavation has been completed and the foundation stone placed. The placing of the reinforcing steel for the bottoms is now in progress.

Sludge drying beds: All of the woodwork has been completed on one of the beds and about 30 per cent completed on the other.

65 Firemen Hurt In Boston Blaze

Third Serious Fire Within Month Causes Damage Close to Million

Boston, Dec. 16 (AP)—Boston's third disastrous fire in a month today sent more than 65 firemen and coast guardsmen to hospitals and wrecked the five story brick Armory Building at Washington and West streets in the heart of the downtown shopping district with a loss estimated officially at "more than $300,000," and possibly as high as $1,000,000.

A detail of 160 seamen from the coast guard was called to aid the Word has been received that Pvt. Robert E. Davis, who before his enlistment was a fireman on the New York Central Railroad, has safely reached his destination in Northern Africa. He has been overseas for two months, in an engineering battalion. His brother, Raymond W. Davis, has arrived safely home after spending nine months in Africa in the employ of Pan American Airways. He was in the Ferrying Command and worked as airplane mechanic. Both young men are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Kearney Davis, 269 Albany avenue extension.

2,479,000 Youths Are Available

Census Bureau Estimate Says That Group Is Subject to Military Draft

Births Increase

U. S. Rate Is Gaining, While Axis Nations Suffer

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Census Bureau estimated today there are 2,479,000 18 and 19-year-old youths in the country subject to military service under recent draft legislation. Of this number about 2,210,000 are white and 269,000 non-white.

Many of these of course are physically unfit or already have enlisted.

Because of a declining birth rate in the past, the bureau said the number of males attaining the age of 18 each year in the next few years will be less than this year's total.

However, the bureau said in another report, the birthrate is on the increase now and America has the lowest infant death rate of any of the large nations—47 for each 1,000 live births.

Only six nations have a lower infant mortality rate—Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands, Australia and New Zealand, all of which have rates ranging from 37 to 39, and Switzerland, with a rate of 46.

The mortality rates were based on 1940 statistics, which showed that 110,984 infants under one year of age died in the United States in that year.

The mortality rate in Germany in 1940 was 65, in Italy 104 and in Japan 112, the Japanese figures covering the period from 1936 to 1938.

Commenting on the mortality rate in the Axis countries, the bureau said:

"This has important implications from the standpoint of the population program for the Axis nations, since the effectiveness of the official policies adopted by Germany, Japan and Italy for increasing the population requires the reduction of mortality among infants, or at least the maintenance of a constant rate concurrent with an increase in the birthrate."

Other points in the bureau's special report on infant mortality rates included:

Infant death rates are lowest in cities of 100,000 population and over—39.3, and highest in rural areas—50.1.

January has the highest infant death rate—53.9—and August the lowest—43.2.

The infant death rate among males is 27.1 per cent higher than among females.

Among the states, Oregon and Minnesota have the lowest rate—33.2—and New Mexico the highest —100.5.

Motorists Are Requested To Protect Their Plates

Robert A. Snyder, war transportation administrator for Ulster county, asks that motorists, in order to preserve their present license plates, take five minutes time and clean the plate, then apply a coat of protective spar varnish to its surface. This simple procedure will keep the metal in good condition for another year until the new 1944 plates are issued.

The registrations on passenger and commercial vehicles expire Sunday, January 31; on omnibus and ambulances, December 31; on dealer and transporter vehicles, January 10. The 1943 registration strips, on sale at all motor vehicle issuing offices beginning December 18, may not be displayed before January 1.

Allied Fighter Craft Strafe Axis Forces 100 Miles From El Agheila; British Push On

Anglo Vanguards Are West of Agheila in Constant Pursuit of Axis Army

Japs Fade Out

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

British headquarters reported today that Allied fighter planes had strafed Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating troops as far west as Zauta En Nofilia, 100 miles beyond the collapsed El Agheila front, and declared that British vanguards were now "well west" of El Agheila.

British military quarters in London said British advance forces had probably reached a point near Zauta En Nofilia in close pursuit of the Axis.

The presence of back-tracking Nazi troops at Zauta En Nofilia indicated that Rommel was retreating at top speed. A British communique said the attack was made there Monday night, and yesterday Allied light bombers and fighter-bombers resumed heavy blows on the Axis columns.

"Our leading forces, though still greatly impeded by mines, continued to harass the retreating enemy and are now well west of El Agheila," the British war bulletin said.

Reports yesterday said British vanguards had already passed the Marble Arch airfield, 40 miles west of El Agheila.

"Pilots report a great volume of traffic moving westward," the British communique added.

Italian headquarters said Axis motorized formations captured 17 tanks in yesterday's fighting, but this was unconfirmed and the British declared officially that the fleeing Rommel corps was offering only weak rearguard resistance.

Allied warplanes again intercepted south-bound Axis transport planes as Adolf Hitler still sought to pour reinforcements into the North African battle cauldron.

United States bombers, raiding the Japanese installations at Buin on Bougainville Island in the Solomons, met no enemy opposition, the navy reported today.

No explanation was available of the lack of opposition at Buin, considered as one of the principal Jap air bases and located about 275 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

The navy also reported a sixth attack on Munda airfield, under construction by the Japanese on New Guinea, and the wiping out of two Japanese machine gun crews on Guadalcanal in Communique No. 221 which said:

"South Pacific: (All dates are east longitude)

"1. On December 13, U. S. patrols on Guadalcanal Island destroyed two Japanese machine gun positions and killed both gun crews.

"2. On December 14, U. S. bombers attacked the enemy airfield at Buin, on the island of Bougainville. No enemy aircraft were encountered, and no anti-aircraft opposition was met. Results were not reported.

"3. On December 15, at noon, a striking force of Marine Corps dive bombers from Guadalcanal attacked Japanese installations at Munda, on New Georgia Isalnd. No enemy resistance was encountered. Results were not observed."

A Cairo communique said Allied fighters shot down at least four of the big transport craft out of a heavily escorted air convoy off Lampedusa Island, which lies between Sicily and Tunisia.

While Rommel fled precipitately westward, American and British vanguards were reported probing anew at the outer defenses of Axis-held Bizerte and Tunis today amid indications that the long-stalled battle for Tunisia might flare up again at any moment.

"Allied patrols are pursuing their activity forward of our lines," the Morocco radio said tersely.

The broadcast said United Nations airmen once more blasted Tunis, the capital, and the formidable Bizerte naval base, while Axis planes attacked the forward base of Lieut.-Gen. Kenneth A. N. Anderson's British 1st Army at Bone, in northeast Algeria.

On the Libyan desert front, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th Army slowly picked its way through a labyrinth of land mines and treacherous "booby traps" planted by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating Africa corps in the El Agheila defile, 400 miles east of Tripoli.

Frontline dispatches said that never before had the Germans sown so many hidden snares in the zig-zag North African campaign. Thousands of deadly mines and other camouflaged explosives lined the desert, and despite great cau-

New York Expects To Freeze Wartime Workers at Jobs

Committees Will Control Big Labor Turnover of 900,000 and Stop Pirating

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Committees will be named within 10 days to formulate a plan to control New York's big labor turnover by "freezing" the state's 900,000 war workers in their jobs, Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, regional war manpower commission director, announced yesterday.

Mrs. Rosenberg said the program would provide for voluntary agreements between workers, employers and the commission whereby a worker would have to get a release to change jobs.

Such a plan has succeeded in Buffalo's industrial area where for the last two months it has controlled job switching among 190,000 workers in 324 factories, Mrs. Rosenberg asserted. A like undertaking was launched last week in Detroit, Mich.

Pirating of skilled labor has prevailed in the state, she declared, saying that the voluntary system would be more practicable than the authority given by the commission to establish employment control by proving future employment through the U. S. Employment service.

"Labor turnovers are terrifically high and terrifically costly," she asserted. "It takes twice the time for a new employe, even a trained worker, to get to the pace in production in a new job attained by regular employes. Some managers have admitted there has been a lot of piracy among the skilled workers available."

In addition to the Buffalo committee, committees will be set up for the areas of New York city, Elmira, Syracuse, Utica-Rome, Albany-Schenectady-Troy, Rochester and Binghamton.

The regional committee recommends that the voluntary agreements include provisions for non-piracting, non-recruitment of agri-

Cornwall Aviator Wins Cross for His Bombing of Vessel

San Francisco, Dec. 16 (AP)—One night's bombing mission over the southwest Pacific was attempted in weather so thick that the big Flying Fortress couldn't make its run at the designated target. The ship turned back to its base.

"Then we spotted a lone Jap cruiser through the muck," said Capt. Percy C. Stoddart, 27, of Cornwall, N. Y., the bombardier.

"We had the bombs and decided to take a crack at her, but we had to work so quickly that I didn't have time to get a sight. I just sort of threw my bombs in her direction and forgot about it.

"Then I heard the tail gunner yell that we'd hit her direct. I think that was the luckiest bombing run in history."

Lucky or not, it won the distinguished flying cross for Captain Stoddard. He stopped here briefly yesterday, homeward bound on leave.

Spangler Is Sure Of G.O.P. Victory

Party Chairman Says Errors Must Be Few, Minor, Changes to Come

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—Expressing confidence in Republican prospects in 1944 "if we can keep Harrison E. Spangler, the party's new national chairman, paid a hurried visit to Republican headquarters today to begin a reorganization of campaign personnel.

"Things are looking up for us for 1944," said Spangler, citing not only the recent election gains by his party but also what he called third party threats within Democratic ranks in the west and south.

"From what I can hear," said the 63 year old Cedar Rapids, Iowa, attorney, who was chosen

Education Board Considers Added Stokers in Schools

About 18,000 Gallons of Oil Have Been Saved Through Conversion; Case to Speak

While approximately 18,000 gallons of fuel oil have been saved thus far this season at Kingston High School and there is a possibility that the school will receive sufficient oil for the balance of the winter season, still the Board of Education is investigating the installation of coal burning stokers in the event the oil situation becomes more critical.

Investigation of stokers has been made and estimates have been received as to the comparative cost of coal and oil installations. Three stokers would be required to convert the high school boilers from oil to coal. Members of the board expressed the opinion that with the present high cost of fuel oil an installation of stokers probably would not only conserve oil but sufficient money might be saved to pay for the stoker installation in three or four years.

After the plan had been discussed the board voted power to the building commitee to engage the services of a heating engineer to make a survey of the heating plant and determine the cost of installation of stokers and also types and requirements. The building committee will report back at a future meeting.

While sufficient oil has been received to date to heat the building, Trustee Feeney stated that as the African campaign progresses more oil products would be diverted from the east coast to the fighting forces and even the present supply might be again cut. For this reason he suggested that the stoker proposition be investigated.

Three bids were received for magazines for the schools. Two were received from Kingston agents and one from Lake Katrine. George Shields of Lake Katrine bid $143.85, Viola Atwater

Position of Allies in Europe and Africa Is Considered Good; Initiative Is Ours

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Cairo, Dec. 15 (Delayed)—The allied position in the Hitlerian theatre in both Europe and Africa is good, taking it by and large, as the British eighth army pushes its thus far successful new offensive against Rommel's harassed army.

As regards this latest sensational drive, reports from the battle front encourage great optimism, but I think we shall do well if we content ourselves with noting successive steps and don't attempt to forecast. After all, no one can foresee with absolute certainty what may happen further ahead in natural defensive positions among those ridges which this part of the world calls wadis.

However, it is legitimate for us to take cognizance of the undoubted fact that the Nazi Fuehrer's depleted and waning resources are beginning to buckle at the knees under the growing pressure from the United Nations. One of the most significant and hopeful aspects of the situation is that on all fronts the allies' brotherhood is maintaining the initiative—that priceless essential without which there can be no victory.

In an effort to counter this, Hitler is performing a major operation in the realignment of his fighting machine, but thus far all his moves have been defensive. He's playing for time in the hope it will save him.

Rommel picked the all highest's pumpkins aught at full harvest time when he had expected to hold a Thanksgiving feast.

His chief troubles lay in the Caucasus at that moment. Not only had Hitler failed to smash a gateway to fresh resources despite his terrible sacrifice of human life, but the Reds kept counterattacking so fiercely that he neither could pause to bind his grievous hurts nor spare much fighting strength for operations elsewhere.

Resourceful Rommel during the summer had flung the British eighth army back clear to El Alamein and was awaiting reinforcements to continue his victorious march across Egypt. He needed warplanes especially—just how badly is now apparent in the light of the disaster which subsequently overtook him.

However, Hitler couldn't give Rommel the munitions help. That unbelievable fool [illegible] kept battering Hitler with screaming in-

Two Men Survive Plane Crash Fatal To 17 in Desert

Marine Lieutenant, Arkansas Passenger Are Found by Rescue Party Near Salt Lake

Lieut. A. F. Gardner of Alexander, N. Y., and the U. S. Marine Corps smiled through a scratched, bruised face from his hospital bed at Lehi as he said: "I nearly froze to death, but I'm lucky to be here."

A. J. Mallett of Springfield, Ark., the only other person aboard to escape death when the big ship toppled into a stretch of sagebrush desert about 55 miles south of Salt Lake City yesterday, was much more seriously hurt than the Marine.

Four women, two military officers, eight other men passengers and three crew members died in the crash. Lieutenant Gardner told of "awful screaming and groaning" in the smashed cabin.

The pilot apparently was groping for the emergency landing field at Fairfield, four miles from the crash spot, as the ship was pointed northward. It had failed to report by radio after taking off for Los Angeles.

Two of the victims were W. O. Hart, 57, co-publisher of the Orange, Calif., Daily News since 1908, who had attended a loan company directors meeting in Salt Lake City, and Donald E. Cummings, 42, of Denver, head of the industrial hygiene department of the University of Colorado.

Gardner suffered a fractured right leg and shoulder injuries but fearful that gasoline-fed flames might break out any moment, he dragged himself clear of the ship. However, it did not burn.

The Marine shivered through the bitter night of the Cedar Valley desert before rescuers reached the lonely spot nearly 12 hours later.

He related that his first intimation of trouble aboard "was when I felt the pilot pull the nose up, almost steep enough to send the ship into a stall."

To avert the tobacco shortage, many smokers in Australia are puffing stems of the flowers of the banksia bush in place of cigars.

No. 1 to a point near the Rhinebeck ferry shed on the Strand.

He also reported the following work done on other projects:

Roosevelt Park Outfall

The shovel being used on this job has been repaired and is now in operation. To date 362'0" of 42" R. C. pipe has been laid from the Esopus Creek to a point adjacent to the barn on this property, which corresponds to approximately 21.5 per cent of the length of the trunk sewer from Esopus Creek to Kiersted avenue.

During the month of November approximately 100'0" of 10" pipe was installed on Larch street, at a depth of about 14'0", the excavation being mostly in rock. This street is about 67 per cent completed.

The re-laying of the sidewalks on Hasbrouck avenue is practically completed, and it is proposed to transfer the men from this work to the Roosevelt Park job.

Field parties were engaged in giving lines and grades for the aforementioned work. A field party has also been engaged on the construction of the concrete retaining wall and gutter which is now being installed at the M.J.M. athletic field to divert water from the adjacent properties on Andrew street.

Acting Superintendent Max J. Oppenheimer reported that during the month of November the cleaning of streets of leaves was completed. A total of 1,779 loads were swept up by the sweeper, and covered a total mileage of 545 miles. The number of truck loads of leaves which were picked up were 744 loads, or 2,339 cubic yards.

After the leaf project was completed, all catch basins were cleaned, which is an annual task.

Sand for winter use on streets was placed in bins, and all snow equipment was made ready for use.

Greasing Machine

The board authorized the purchasing of a greasing machine to be used in greasing the city trucks.

Leaves of absence while they are in the armed service were granted Sidney Lutzin, director of public recreation, and John Pruchnal, an employe of the board.

Mayor Edelmuth reported he had appointed Harry Edson to serve as temporary recreation director in the place of Mr. Lutzin, and the board approved the appointment.

The board also took steps to employ William Davis and Thomas Kearney, who are employed at the stadium during the summer months, and who will now be given all-year-round jobs.

The board adopted a resolution favoring the settlement of the claim against the Wood estate for building the new sidewalk in front of the Cy Diner on Broadway at East Chester street. On the recommendation of Mr. McCaffery the claim will be settled for $169.

Patterson Says War Could Be Lost

use nickel in its formula for armor plate and the War Department's tank and combat vehicle section refused to order it, as well as Republic Steel, to cease use of nickel.

"There may be a direct relationship between this and the employment in the tank and combat vehicle section," Murray said, "of the son-in-law (Mr. Reuel E. Warriner) of Mr. R. C. Stanley, president of the International Nickel Company, who is also a member of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation."

Murray's statement went on to say the Standard Pool saved the armor plate program by outproducing United States and Republic Steel, supplying today 50 per cent of the armor plate for the tank program.

Patterson told the committee that Army production and construction this year would amount to $25,000,000,000, as contrasted with approximately $5,000,000,000 last year, with deliveries of munitions—excluding aircraft—totalling $11,000,000,000 this year, or 90 per cent of the requirements for American and Allied forces. He praised labor and management for the nation's "production record."

All this military production, he noted, is under his supervision, through civilian aides and through the officers of the Army services of supply and the materiel command of the Army air forces.

The officers of the armed forces, he said, are the persons best fitted by experience to direct the production of weapons, having spent years making them, and knowing by direct contact with troops and personal observations in combat what weapons are needed.

Detailed planning of production, he said, had coordinated factory output with deliveries so well that 80 per cent of production has been made available to troops.

However, Patterson told the committee that fears of military control of the civilian economy overlooked the fact "that most of the 'military' were civilians two years ago."

"The Army is not made up of a military caste," the undersecretary said. "It is a people's Army, with its men drawn from and truly representative of the entire nation so any talk of military aggression ought not to terrify anybody. The Army rules in only those nations with whom we are at war."

Boy Coaster Killed

Poughkeepsie's first coasting fatality of the winter was recorded Tuesday in the death of James Green, 7, of 140½ Church street, who died in Vassar Hospital of injuries received when he slid under the wheels of a heavy truck on Church street. The boy suffered a fractured skull and other injuries.

Allied Planes Strafe Rommel

tion the advancing British were reported suffering from them.

In the skies, American fliers of the Ninth U. S. Air Force joined with British and Australian airmen in punishing attacks on Rommel's weary soldiers, who were now reported heading for a new defense line 125 miles west of El Agheila.

It was not immediately clear how Rommel expected to make a stand elsewhere on the coastal plains of Italian Tripolitania, especially since he had abandoned at El Agheila the best natural defense barrier east of Tripoli.

Might Quit Tripoli

Some observers expected the Axis chieftain might quit Tripolitania altogether, regardless of the fact that it is the last bauble of Premier Mussolini's African empire, and stake everything on a last-ditch defense of Tunisia.

Dispatches from an Associated Press correspondent "with U. S. forces in Tunisia" said both Allies and Axis were rushing up troops and supplies for a climactic battle, but with the beginning of the winter rainy season the problem of transport was exceedingly difficult.

The correspondent said sticky brown mud bogged roads and particularly handicapped the United States-British expeditionary forces because of their longer lines of communication.

Other developments in the global war:

Russia—The Red Army's offensive on the central front plodded ahead through snow-covered forests today and the Soviet command announced that in the far advanced salient at Velikie Luki "our troops fought to wipe out surrounded German garrisons."

Velikie Luki is only 90 miles from the frontier of Baltic Latvia, where Hitler's invasion hordes began their northern sweep into Russia more than a year ago.

On the southwest of long-besieged Stalingrad, Soviet dispatches acknowledged that a series of big-scale Nazi attacks had driven a wedge into the Russian lines.

While conceding this new threat—which centered in the region of Kotelnikovski, 95 miles below Stalingrad—the Russians declared there was still no sign that the hard-pressed Nazi siege armies had succeeded in breaking out of the Soviet ring of encirclement in the Volga-Don corridor.

New Guinea — Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied warplanes were ceaselessly blasting new Japanese sea-borne reinforcements, perhaps 1,000 strong, who landed on the coast 20 to 40 miles north of the main Buna-Gona sector.

"The entire area is strewn with derelict barges, wreckage and enemy dead," a United Nations communique said.

Meanwhile, American and Australian troops exerted heavy pressure on the enemy's dwindling foothold around Buna, and sharp fighting was reported at Sananandа Point, northeast of Buna village, and at Buna village airstrip.

Allied jungle fighters had already driven a wedge between these two points.

77th Congress Is Longest on Record

discretionary authority to suspend tariff and immigration laws when necessary to speed the war effort.

Labor successfully withstood numerous attempts during the two years to outlaw its right to strike, to suspend time-and-one-half payments for work in excess of 40 hours a week, to prevent it from organizing activity in war industries, to subject it to the provisions of the anti-racketeering statutes.

The new congress will find the Democratic majority sharply reduced in the house, and facing the possibility of a coalition of some of its southern members with the Republican minority.

With that possibility, here are some of the issues which the next congress may be called upon to resolve.

Retrenchment in non-military expenditures.

Restrictions on the powers of government agencies.

Revision of labor legislation.

cultural labor, elimination of absenteeism, full utilization of inplant and pre-employment instruction, use of workers at their best skills at all times, maximum use of local labor, and full use of women, minority groups and workers from non-essential industries.

Under the plan, if an employer refuses a release, a worker goes to the employment service, as local unit of the commission, which can grant the release if (A) the worker can perform a higher skilled task elsewhere, (B) is employed on a less than full-time basis, (C) the distance between a plant and the employe's home has become unreasonable because of gas and tire rationing, (D) a worker receives substantially lower wages than prevail in the community for like work, and (E) the worker has a compelling reason, such as sickness requiring a change in climate.

Whitesell Named Captain

Syracuse, N. Y. Dec. 16 (AP)—Dick Whitesell, Poughkeepsie, will captain the 1943 Syracuse University football team. The junior wingback was elected yesterday by lettermen.

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—An assortment of aircrafts, chemicals, rubbers, and rails today extended Tuesday's irregular stock market upturn as other key issues idled at or slightly under the previous finals.

Neither war news nor business reports provided much stimulus for trading operations, although volume again was helped by a fair turnover in various low priced issues.

From the opening trends were slightly mixed but near the fourth hour advances of fractions to around a point were well distributed.

Dow Chemical, Santa Fe and Douglas Aircraft each edged up a point or so at the best and smaller gains were registered by Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Warner Brothers, Sperry, American Smelting, J. I. Case, Western Union, U. S. Rubber, Southern Railway and Great Northern Preferred.

Steels and motors showed trifling changes. Westinghouse, du Pont, American Telephone and Owens-Illinois were a bit soft.

Two Men Testify About Nuzzo Hold On Union's Funds

Newburgh, N. Y., Dec. 16 (AP)—Samuel Nuzzo held complete control of union finances, and members granted him an unlimited expense account, say two former officers of Local 17, International Hod Carriers', Building and Common Laborers' Union (A. F. L.).

Pio Ambrosetti, former executive board member, and Andrew Russell, president of Local 17, from 1936 to this year, were opening witnesses yesterday in the former business agent's defense against grand larceny and forgery charges.

Local 17 "voted full powers to the executive board to control affairs of the union in every respect," asserted Russell, adding that Nuzzo had full authority over expenditures and bills and selected local delegates to A. F. L. conventions.

Ambrosetti said an unlimited expense account was allowed Nuzzo in November, 1937, and Russell agreed, but said he could not state terms of the authorization. Harold S. Smith, former recording secretary, testified last week he altered union records at Nuzzo's direction to show approval of the expense account, although it had not been voted at any union meeting.

Russell and Ambrosetti asserted they remembered offering motions approving expenses for refreshments served at meetings in a tavern operated by Nuzzo, but Ambrosetti said he could not remember whether the motions were put to a vote. Testimony for the state showed $2,291 spent for refreshments during a period of four months in 1941.

The state's case closed with the testimony of Eli Littenberg, an auditor on the special prosecutor's staff, that Nuzzo endorsed nine of twelve $50 checks drawn to cash on union accounts between June and October, 1937.

Nuzzo's trial is on two indictments of 35 counts charging misappropriation of $9,844 in union funds.

Republican national chairman at St. Louis December 7, "many southern states are seething with distrust of the New Deal."

"Oklahoma," he added, "is a perfect example of it. A Democrat there (E. H. Moore) ran as a Republican and defeated Senator Lee in a state we hadn't carried since 1928."

Commenting on the recent speech by Governor Frank M. Dixon of Alabama accusing the Democratic party of "dynamiting" the social structure of the south and saying suggestions were "rife" for formation of a "southern Democratic party," Spangler said:

"They tell me the people in the south are much interested in forming a new party or defeating the New Deal."

Spangler said he came here principally to expand and reorganize national headquarters key departments such as research, publicity and finance.

Although he was not prepared to discuss new appointments yet, the chunky Iowan indicated a permanent chairman would be sought for the finance committee which, in the last campaign had headquarters in New York under Sam Pettengill, former anti-New Deal Democratic congressman from Indiana.

He also is looking for a "full-time" publicity man. Clarence Budington Kelland, author and national committeeman for Arizona, has been doubling up as executive director and publicity chief. Spangler said he expected "for the time being anyway" to get along without an executive director, a job created more than a year ago to permit the former Committee Chairman, Representative Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, to attend to his floor leadership duties in the house.

Now that Martin has resigned to spend all his time at the capitol and Spangler intends to devote most all of his time to the chairmanship, the need for an executive director has lessened, the Iowan said.

Before returning to Iowa Spangler conferred with Martin and other party leaders. He said he agreed with Martin's proposal at St. Louis that the committee consider overhauling its system of raising money to avoid the party being financed by a wealthy few. He said he would set up a committee soon to study a revision.

Boston fire department, hard-hit by recent casualties and by losses of members to the armed services. Upward-rushing flames were spread rapidly by illuminating gas pouring from a two-inch basement feed pipe, and 29 firemen and approximately 40 coast guardsmen, inexperienced in fire fighting, were felled by injuries and smoke inhalation.

The five-story, brick structure was stocked with Christmas clothing, including a number of valuable fur coats.

The first alarm was pulled shortly before midnight. Six hours later the fire was under control, but smoke still poured from the building, located on one of the city's main thoroughfares, Washington street, at the corner of West street.

Two weeks ago firemen fought the Cocoanut Grove night Club fire that took the lives of 488 persons, and two weeks prior to that six firemen were killed and more than 40 injured, some permanently, in an East Boston Building fire.

Help in Vehicle Shortage

Automotive dealers are helping to relieve the critical shortage of heavy-duty motor vehicles by increasing capacity of medium sized models. One manufacturer has made available to all its dealers complete instructions on the conversion job. Recently the capacity of a highway tanker was increased from 14,000 to 56,000 pounds gross weight by the addition of a tandem drive rear and, special transmission and tandem semi-trailer.

Scottish coal merchants are disturbed over recent orders limiting maximum deliveries of coal to 200 pounds per week to consumers which, they say, requires uneconomic use of scarce motor fuels.

NORRIS REMOVES NAMEPLATE FROM DOOR

His nearly 40 years in congress at an end, Senator George W. Norris, 81, (Ind.-Neb.) removes his nameplate from the door of his office. He was defeated in the last election.

OPPOSES HIGHWAY BARRIERS

Removal of state highway barriers impeding efficient transportation and "free and untrammeled encouragement of all means of transportation" are among objectives of the National Grange adopted at its recent annual meeting at Wenatchee, Wash. This nation-wide farm organization also went on record as opposed to fixing an arbitrary limit on the radius of operation of motor vehicles and favored increasing safety programs to reduce accidents on the highways and in the homes.

OLD MOTOR IN AFRICA

Unserviceable motor vehicles are being converted into horse-drawn equipment to meet transportation difficulties of farmers and miners in southern Rhodesia. Special iron rims are being fitted in place of rubber tires.

When lightning destroyed the Congregational Church at Paarl, South Africa, there was a dazzling ball of light and dense clouds of smoke poured from the building, but no flames were visible.

War Board Asked About Supply of Critical Material

The War Production Board and the War, Navy, Interior and Commerce departments have been called upon by the Senate Committee on Small Business (Senator Murray, chairman, and members: Senators Maloney, Ellender, Mead, Stewart, Capper and Taft, to tell what they have done and what they propose to do toward getting a more adequate supply of strategic and critical raw materials for the use of the nation in the war effort.

In making this announcement today, Chairman Murray spoke of a continuous flow of complaints from the smaller mine operators of the country, who say that their productive capacities are being sparsely used, although it seems to be general knowledge that the production of metals and minerals is not up to expectation, either for present or prospective requirements.

"The Senate Committee on Small Business," the senator said, "has a double interest in the raw materials supply. First, we want to sift these complaints to the bottom. Second, in our effort to get smaller plants into war production, we want to know why the total supply of raw materials cannot be increased for that purpose. Metals and minerals are the lifeblood of our war-effort—on the home front as well as on the battlefront."

The determination of the committee to seek this information follows the recent testimony of James W. English, president of the Boulder Mining Company, who described to the committee on October 8 how he and his associates, owners of a lead and zinc mine in Arizona, had been given a year's "run-around" by Washington war agencies. After the agencies had examined the mine, pronounced it worthy of development and expansion in the war effort, and advanced $40,000 of a promised $200,000 for that purpose, they decided that the mine should be abandoned. This decision was made almost at the moment when the mine was ready to double its production. This case may be taken up in more detail when Secretary of the Interior Ickes appears before the committee in the near future to give his views regarding a raw materials program to help small manufacturers and mine operators.

To obtain the necessary information, the committee has sent a detailed list of questions to each of the five government agencies previously named. This list covers five general headings: the measuring of requirements for raw materials; the obtaining of supplies of raw materials; problems involved in certain specific materials; previous experience of personnel handling raw materials; and relationships among the various federal agencies.

Under the first heading each agency is asked to outline the step-by-step procedure whereby it may calculate material requirements, including stockpile requirements. With regard to supply, each agency has been asked, "What are the major obstacles in the path of increased domestic production of strategic and critical raw materials? Of increased domestic production through use of submarginal mineral resources?"

Each agency has also been asked to outline the production prospects of smaller domestic producers of each strategic or critical raw material, together with all possible methods of increasing the supply of the three metals under the Controlled Materials Plan—steel, copper, and aluminum—and of zinc and magnesium.

The final series of questions is aimed at finding out what improvements may be necessary in the present division of responsibilities among the various federal agencies dealing with raw materials supply.

Two Men Survive Plane Crash Fatal To 17 in Desert

Marine Lieutenant, Arkansas Passenger Are Found by Rescue Party Near Salt Lake

Lieut. A. F. Gardner of Alexander, N. Y., and the U. S. Marine Corps smiled through a scratched, bruised face from his hospital bed at Lehi as he said: "I nearly froze to death, but I'm lucky to be here."

A. J. Mallett of Springfield, Ark., the only other person aboard to escape death when the big ship toppled into a stretch of sagebrush desert about 55 miles south of Salt Lake City yesterday, was much more seriously hurt than the Marine.

Four women, two military officers, eight other men passengers and three crew members died in the crash. Lieutenant Gardner told of "awful screaming and groaning" in the smashed cabin.

The pilot apparently was groping for the emergency landing field at Fairfield, four miles from the crash spot, as the ship was pointed northward. It had failed to report by radio after taking off for Los Angeles.

Two of the victims were W. O. Hart, 57, co-publisher of the Orange, Calif., Daily News since 1908, who had attended a loan company directors meeting in Salt Lake City, and Donald E. Cummings, 42, of Denver, head of the industrial hygiene department of the University of Colorado.

Gardner suffered a fractured right leg and shoulder injuries but fearful that gasoline-fed flames might break out any moment, he dragged himself clear of the ship. However, it did not burn.

The Marine shivered through the bitter night of the Cedar Valley desert before rescuers reached the lonely spot nearly 12 hours later.

He related that his first intimation of trouble aboard "was when I felt the pilot pull the nose up, almost steep enough to send the ship into a stall."

To avert the tobacco shortage, many smokers in Australia are puffing stems of the flowers of the banksia bush in place of cigars.

No. 1 to a point near the Rhinebeck ferry shed on the Strand.

He also reported the following work done on other projects:

Roosevelt Park Outfall

The shovel being used on this job has been repaired and is now in operation. To date 362'0" of 42" R. C. pipe has been laid from the Esopus Creek to a point adjacent to the barn on this property, which corresponds to approximately 21.5 per cent of the length of the trunk sewer from Esopus Creek to Kiersted avenue.

During the month of November approximately 100'0" of 10" pipe was installed on Larch street, at a depth of about 14'0", the excavation being mostly in rock. This street is about 67 per cent completed.

The re-laying of the sidewalks on Hasbrouck avenue is practically completed, and it is proposed to transfer the men from this work to the Roosevelt Park job.

Field parties were engaged in giving lines and grades for the aforementioned work. A field party has also been engaged on the construction of the concrete retaining wall and gutter which is now being installed at the M.J.M. athletic field to divert water from the adjacent properties on Andrew street.

Acting Superintendent Max J. Oppenheimer reported that during the month of November the cleaning of streets of leaves was completed. A total of 1,779 loads were swept up by the sweeper, and covered a total mileage of 545 miles. The number of truck loads of leaves which were picked up were 744 loads, or 2,339 cubic yards.

After the leaf project was completed, all catch basins were cleaned, which is an annual task.

Sand for winter use on streets was placed in bins, and all snow equipment was made ready for use.

Greasing Machine

The board authorized the purchasing of a greasing machine to be used in greasing the city trucks.

Leaves of absence while they are in the armed service were granted Sidney Lutzin, director of public recreation, and John Pruchnal, an employe of the board.

Mayor Edelmuth reported he had appointed Harry Edson to serve as temporary recreation director in the place of Mr. Lutzin, and the board approved the appointment.

The board also took steps to employ William Davis and Thomas Kearney, who are employed at the stadium during the summer months, and who will now be given all-year-round jobs.

The board adopted a resolution favoring the settlement of the claim against the Wood estate for building the new sidewalk in front of the Cy Diner on Broadway at East Chester street. On the recommendation of Mr. McCaffery the claim will be settled for $169.

Patterson Says War Could Be Lost

use nickel in its formula for armor plate and the War Department's tank and combat vehicle section refused to order it, as well as Republic Steel, to cease use of nickel.

"There may be a direct relationship between this and the employment in the tank and combat vehicle section," Murray said, "of the son-in-law (Mr. Reuel E. Warriner) of Mr. R. C. Stanley, president of the International Nickel Company, who is also a member of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation."

Murray's statement went on to say the Standard Pool saved the armor plate program by outproducing United States and Republic Steel, supplying today 50 per cent of the armor plate for the tank program.

Patterson told the committee that Army production and construction this year would amount to $25,000,000,000, as contrasted with approximately $5,000,000,000 last year, with deliveries of munitions—excluding aircraft—totalling $11,000,000,000 this year, or 90 per cent of the requirements for American and Allied forces. He praised labor and management for the nation's "production record."

All this military production, he noted, is under his supervision, through civilian aides and through the officers of the Army services of supply and the materiel command of the Army air forces.

The officers of the armed forces, he said, are the persons best fitted by experience to direct the production of weapons, having spent years making them, and knowing by direct contact with troops and personal observations in combat what weapons are needed.

Detailed planning of production, he said, had coordinated factory output with deliveries so well that 80 per cent of production has been made available to troops.

However, Patterson told the committee that fears of military control of the civilian economy overlooked the fact "that most of the 'military' were civilians two years ago."

"The Army is not made up of a military caste," the undersecretary said. "It is a people's Army, with its men drawn from and truly representative of the entire nation so any talk of military aggression ought not to terrify anybody. The Army rules in only those nations with whom we are at war."

Boy Coaster Killed

Poughkeepsie's first coasting fatality of the winter was recorded Tuesday in the death of James Green, 7, of 140½ Church street, who died in Vassar Hospital of injuries received when he slid under the wheels of a heavy truck on Church street. The boy suffered a fractured skull and other injuries.

tion the advancing British were reported suffering from them.

In the skies, American fliers of the Ninth U. S. Air Force joined with British and Australian airmen in punishing attacks on Rommel's weary soldiers, who were now reported heading for a new defense line 125 miles west of El Aghella.

It was not immediately clear how Rommel expected to make a stand elsewhere on the coastal plains of Italian Tripolitania, especially since he had abandoned at El Aghella the best natural defense barrier east of Tripoli.

Might Quit Tripoli

Some observers expected the Axis chieftain might quit Tripolitania altogether, regardless of the fact that it is the last bauble of Premier Mussolini's African empire, and stake everything on a last-ditch defense of Tunisia.

Dispatches from an Associated Press correspondent "with U. S. forces in Tunisia" said both Allies and Axis were rushing up troops and supplies for a climactic battle, but with the beginning of the winter rainy season the problem of transport was exceedingly difficult.

The correspondent said sticky brown mud bogged roads and particularly handicapped the United States-British expeditionary forces because of their longer lines of communication.

Other developments in the global war:

Russia—The Red Army's offensive on the central front plodded ahead through snow-covered forests today and the Soviet command announced that in the far advanced salient at Velikie Luki "our troops fought to wipe out surrounded German garrisons."

Velikie Luki is only 90 miles from the frontier of Baltic Latvia, where Hitler's invasion hordes began their northern sweep into Russia more than a year ago.

On the southwest of long-besieged Stalingrad, Soviet dispatches acknowledged that a series of big-scale Nazi attacks had driven a wedge into the Russian lines.

While conceding this new threat—which centered in the region of Kotelnikovski, 95 miles below Stalingrad—the Russians declared there was still no sign that the hard-pressed Nazi siege armies had succeeded in breaking out of the Soviet ring of encirclement in the Volga-Don corridor.

New Guinea — Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied warplanes were ceaselessly blasting new Japanese sea-borne reinforcements, perhaps 1,000 strong, who landed on the coast 20 to 40 miles north of the main Buna-Gona sector.

"The entire area is strewn with derelict barges, wreckage and enemy dead," a United Nations communique said.

Meanwhile, American and Australian troops exerted heavy pressure on the enemy's dwindling foothold around Buna, and sharp fighting was reported at Sananandа Point, northeast of Buna village, and at Buna village airstrip.

Allied jungle fighters had already driven a wedge between these two points.

77th Congress Is Longest on Record

discretionary authority to suspend tariff and immigration laws when necessary to speed the war effort.

Labor successfully withstood numerous attempts during the two years to outlaw its right to strike, to suspend time-and-one-half payments for work in excess of 40 hours a week, to prevent it from organizing activity in war industries, to subject it to the provisions of the anti-racketeering statutes.

The new congress will find the Democratic majority sharply reduced in the house, and facing the possibility of a coalition of some of its southern members with the Republican minority.

With that possibility, here are some of the issues which the next congress may be called upon to resolve.

Retrenchment in non-military expenditures.

Restrictions on the powers of government agencies.

cultural labor, elimination of absenteeism, full utilization of in-plant and pre-employment instruction, use of workers at their best skills at all times, maximum use of local labor, and full use of women, minority groups and workers from non-essential industries.

Under the plan, if an employer refuses a release, a worker goes to the employment service, as local unit of the commission, which can grant the release if (A) the worker can perform a higher skilled task elsewhere, (B) is employed on a less than full-time basis, (C) the distance between a plant and the employe's home has become unreasonable because of gas and tire rationing, (D) a worker receives substantially lower wages than prevail in the community for like work, and (E) the worker has a compelling reason, such as sickness requiring a change in climate.

Whitesell Named Captain

Syracuse, N. Y. Dec. 16 (AP)—Dick Whitesell, Poughkeepsie, will captain the 1943 Syracuse University football team. The junior wingback was elected yesterday by lettermen.

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—An assortment of aircrafts, chemicals, rubbers, and rails today extended Tuesday's irregular stock market upturn as other key issues idled at or slightly under the previous finals.

Neither war news nor business reports provided much stimulus for trading operations, although volume again was helped by a fair turnover in various low priced issues.

From the opening trends were slightly mixed but near the fourth hour advances of fractions to around a point were well distributed.

Dow Chemical, Santa Fe and Douglas Aircraft each edged up a point or so at the best and smaller gains were registered by Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Warner Brothers, Sperry, American Smelting, J. I. Case, Western Union, U. S. Rubber, Southern Railway and Great Northern Preferred.

Steels and motors showed trifling changes. Westinghouse, du Pont, American Telephone and Owens-Illinois were a bit soft.

Republican national chairman at St. Louis December 7, "many southern states are seething with distrust of the New Deal."

"Oklahoma," he added, "is a perfect example of it. A Democrat there (E. H. Moore) ran as a Republican and defeated Senator Lee in a state we hadn't carried since 1928."

Commenting on the recent speech by Governor Frank M. Dixon of Alabama accusing the Democratic party of "dynamiting" the social structure of the south and saying suggestions were "rife" for formation of a "southern Democratic party," Spangler said:

"They tell me the people in the south are much interested in forming a new party or defeating the New Deal."

Spangler said he came here principally to expand and reorganize national headquarters key departments such as research, publicity and finance.

Although he was not prepared to discuss new appointments yet, the chunky Iowan indicated a permanent chairman would be sought for the finance committee which, in the last campaign had headquarters in New York under Sam Pettengill, former anti-New Deal Democratic congressman from Indiana.

He also is looking for a "full-time" publicity man. Clarence Budington Kelland, author and national committeeman for Arizona, has been doubling up as executive director and publicity chief. Spangler said he expected "for the time being anyway" to get along without an executive director, a job created more than a year ago to permit the former Committee Chairman, Representative Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, to attend to his floor leadership duties in the house.

Now that Martin has resigned to spend all his time at the capitol and Spangler intends to devote most all of his time to the chairmanship, the need for an executive director has lessened, the Iowan said.

Before returning to Iowa Spangler conferred with Martin and other party leaders. He said he agreed with Martin's proposal at St. Louis that the committee consider overhauling its system of raising money to avoid the party being financed by a wealthy few. He said he would set up a committee soon to study a revision.

Two Men Testify About Nuzzo Hold On Union's Funds

Newburgh, N. Y., Dec. 16 (AP)—Samuel Nuzzo held complete control of union finances, and members granted him an unlimited expense account, say two former officers of Local 17, International Hod Carriers', Building and Common Laborers' Union (A. F. L.).

Pio Ambrosetti, former executive board member, and Andrew Russell, president of Local 17, from 1936 to this year, were opening witnesses yesterday in the former business agent's defense against grand larceny and forgery charges.

Local 17 "voted full powers to the executive board to control affairs of the union in every respect," asserted Russell, adding that Nuzzo had full authority over expenditures and bills and selected local delegates to A. F. L. conventions.

Ambrosetti said an unlimited expense account was allowed Nuzzo in November, 1937, and Russell agreed, but said he could not state terms of the authorization. Harold S. Smith, former recording secretary, testified last week he altered union records at Nuzzo's direction to show approval of the expense account, although it had not been voted at any union meeting.

Russell and Ambrosetti asserted they remembered offering motions approving expenses for refreshments served at meetings in a tavern operated by Nuzzo, but Ambrosetti said he could not remember whether the motions were put to a vote. Testimony for the state showed $2,291 spent for refreshments during a period of four months in 1941.

The state's case closed with the testimony of Eli Littenberg, an auditor on the special prosecutor's staff, that Nuzzo endorsed nine of twelve $50 checks drawn to cash on union accounts between June and October, 1937.

Nuzzo's trial is on two indictments of 35 counts charging misappropriation of $9,844 in union funds.

Boston fire department, hard-hit by recent casualties and by losses of members to the armed services. Upward-rushing flames were spread rapidly by illuminating gas pouring from a two-inch basement feed pipe, and 29 firemen and approximately 40 coast guardsmen, inexperienced in fire fighting, were felled by injuries and smoke inhalation.

The five-story, brick structure was stocked with Christmas clothing, including a number of valuable fur coats.

The first alarm was pulled shortly before midnight. Six hours later the fire was under control, but smoke still poured from the building, located on one of the city's main thoroughfares, Washington street, at the corner of West street.

Two weeks ago firemen fought the Cocoanut Grove night Club fire that took the lives of 488 persons, and two weeks prior to that six firemen were killed and more than 40 injured, some permanently, in an East Boston Building fire.

UNHAPPY TAXPAYER

What makes the taxpayer poor? Just now, perhaps, the demands of the war which must be met lest a worse thing than mere financial inconvenience befall all Americans. In the long run, however, the taxpayer's troubles have been due mainly to the existence of unnecessary and overlapping units of government.

With but 48 states there are no fewer than 160,000 governmental bodies in the United States. These include counties (and parishes, as in Louisiana), incorporated cities and villages, towns and townships, and school districts, besides 8,382 special districts, like those established to look after roads, bridges and housing. The figures are compiled, through 1941, by Prof. William Anderson of the University of Minnesota.

What happens is that every citizen is a member of at least three, often more, of these governmental units. All have officials, and all are supported by taxes. In many cases they entirely overlap, as in Massachusetts, where Boston and Suffolk County cover exactly the same territory with two sets of officials. One could be abolished with great advantage to the taxpayer.

That is where his money goes. The one encouraging feature is that 10 years ago the situation was worse. There were then 175,000 units instead of 165,000. But much more than this must be done before there is real relief for the payer of taxes.

THE LAST FRONTIER

Our war in the Pacific has been, so far, a rather small affair compared with American involvement in Europe and the big expeditionary force we have sent to Africa. Steady pressure is maintained against the Japs in the Solomons, New Guinea and elsewhere, but comparatively small bodies of troops are in operation. The nation has not really put forth its might in that area. Yet national interest in every move is so keen that it may seem out of proportion to the present operations.

Perhaps there is a reason for it, aside from the natural desire to slap down the arrogant Japanese. All those forays made against the enemy, in small numbers, over large and sparsely settled areas, with sporadic fighting likely to break out almost anywhere unexpectedly—don't they remind Americans of something?

When you once think of it, how similar they are to our old Indian wars of the last century, in which stout-hearted troops fought the Redskins over a vast region, pressing them ever westward!

There is endless water now instead of endless plains, and islands instead of hills, and there are bombers instead of muzzle-loading rifles, but the purpose, the fighting methods and the spirit of it seem a good deal the same. The American people might be regarded now as pressing westward to win their last frontier.

CURE FOR SPEEDING

A new way has been found to punish speeders and other practitioners of careless driving. Take away their gasoline ration books, and you have the answer. Some judges in large cities are already adopting this method of repressing abuses of a wartime privilege, and are finding the public behind them.

In the past, vigorous enforcement of traffic laws has sometimes been dangerous politically, but not now. People selfish enough to trifle with the special favors they receive at other persons' expense will get very little public support when they protest their punishment.

DEAR FRIEND, FAREWELL!

The American way of life is in danger. An institution that has been with us for centuries and never betrayed the faith, is about to disappear. The American doughnut is on its way out.

There is a shortage of sugar and shortening, causing the bakers of one of our largest cities to announce that with the materials available there is five times as much profit in coffee cake as in doughnuts. While only a few cities so far seem to have given out this bad news, such a precedent is only too likely to be followed by the others.

With the doughnut goes that occupation of millions, dunking. Nothing worse could be said of this war than that it is extinguishing both the dunking and the dunked. The doughnut will soon be as obsolete as the second cup of coffee.

UNSUNG JANITORS

The housing shortage in cities with defense plants has caused many to live in apartment buildings who once had houses, and others to live in houses who once dwelt in flats. Both are now discovering, in the one case with joy at his presence, in the other with grief over his loss, that unsung hero of American apartment house life, the janitor.

The janitor it is whose operations with the furnace may be heard in pitch black hours while his tenants lie snugly in bed. He it is who carries off garbage, waste paper and tin cans, now salvaged for war use. He puts new washers on leaky faucets, inserts new fuses and rewraps defective light cords. He cleans floors and arranges for painters and paperhangers. Life in an apartment house simply could not go along without him, and under his ministrations the tenants become as useless, for household activities of their own, as the vermiform appendix.

Whoever invented the janitor was a benefactor of the city-dwelling species. Now that war needs are taking a toll of his ranks, he, like other overlooked helpers, is reaping recognition of his services.

General Franco, Spanish dictator, says Liberals are doomed. But they're only damned by their enemies, and that won't last long.

Manchurian students must bow eastward every morning toward the royal palace at Tokyo, but even that may not win the war.

All this rationing doesn't seem rational; but it's an irrational world.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

OVERWEIGHTS DISLIKE EXERCISE

It is estimated that about 9 of every 10 cases of overweight are due directly to overeating, another 5 per cent to inactivity of certain glands, and the other 5 per cent to overeating combined with lack of gland activity. This means that 95 of every 100 overweights should follow a reducing diet containing an insufficient number of calories, the extra calories really needed to do the body's work being made up from the excess fat in and on the body.

What about exercise?

If overweights realized the benefits derived from exercise, they would be more willing to take it regularly. All that most of them find is that exervises increase their appetite and so little or no weight is lost.

As a matter of fact reducing weight means using strength of will; practically every overweight has had to use strength of will in either of two directions—doing without foods they enjoy or taking exercise which they do not enjoy.

Which of the two directions is more popular or rather which is the least disliked?

Doing without the starch and fat foods!

Much as these foods appeal to their sight, smell, and taste, it is easier to do without these foods than to take regular physical exercise.

Why do overweights so greatly dislike exercise? Exercise means effort and there is less than the normal desire for effort in overweights. Every movement they make—walking, jogging, bending—means the lifting or carrying of much more weight than for one of normal weight. So, rather than use this severe effort, they are willing to do without some of their daily intake of food. They simply choose the lesser of the two evils.

If, however, they are willing to take the exercise instead of doing without the food, they will not only use up the excess fat and so bring their figure back or nearly back to normal, but will get rid of their dislike for exercise and be more willing to take it regularly. As they grow lighter and more "limber", they may actually develop a desire for exercise.

Remember, exercise is useful in reducing weight before middle age. After middle age, cutting down on food is the safest method.

PHYSICIAN, HEAL THYSELF

By Bressler

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Three well known residents of Kingston died within a few days of each other in August, 1928. The first was Dr. John A. Huhne, well known veterinarian; the second, the Rev. J. Wilbur Tetley, pastor of St. James Methodist Church, and the third, Dr. A. P. Chalker of West Chestnut street.

Dr. Huhne, who was 60 years old at the time of his death on August 9, 1928, was a graduate of old Ulster Academy. During the Spanish American War he served as first lieutenant with old Company M of this city. He was one of the best known veterinarians in Ulster county, and for years made his home on Abeel street. His brother, Dr. Fred Huhne, was a widely known physician, residing on Hone street, who for years had been a member of the city's health board.

The Rev. Mr. Tetley had served the uptown church for six years at the time of his death on August 10, 1928. He died in Cornwallville at the age of 52 years, where he had gone for a brief vacation. His first charge as a minister was at Cornwallville. While serving as pastor of the local church he was very active in the religious life of the city.

Dr. A. P. Chalker was 83 years of age when he died on August 16, 1928, and had been practicing medicine in Kingston for 59 years at the time of his death. He opened an office in this city in 1869. Uu until the time of his death he continued to practice his profession, and was one of the best known doctors of Kingston.

I recall that on July 30, 1928, that Frank S. Campbell of this city was awarded the contract to remodel the Rondout National Bank, turning it into a modern banking structure. In order to make the necessary improvements to the new banking house it was necessary to demolish a large three story brick building on East Strand. The first floor of the building housed the Bank Arcade, Ben W. Johnston's drug store and the millinery store of Isaac Abrahams.

The second floor housed the offices of the late Dr. A. Stern, a widely known physician and surgeon of this city, who for many years was an active member of the staff of the Kingston Hospital. He also served for years as physician for the old Ulster & Delaware railroad. When the new banking house was erected office rooms for Dr. Stern were located on the second floor of the building, and also a remodeled and modern drug store for Mr. Johnston.

Mr. Johnston is one of the oldest drug store proprietors in years of service in Kingston, and his store has been located on the Strand for a long period of years.

With the retirement of Louis Kolts as president of the Board of Fire Commissioners, after serving 21 years as a member of that board, Harry B. Walker was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Kolts' retirement.

HITS HIGHWAY LIMIT

War Department opposition to restrictions on the distances which may be operated by common carrier motor vehicles recently was made public by Colonel W. J. Williamson, chief of the Transportation Corps. In response to reports that the Office of Defense Transportation is considering limiting the radius of operation of motor vehicles, Colonel Williamson said that if such limits are imposed, which the War Department considers unwise, it will exercise its authority to declare all highway common carriers in service of the War Department, thereby removing them from control of any other agency.

Night traffic accidents in New York city have increased 19 per cent under present more drastic "dimout" regulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brought of Port Chester, are spending two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Brought of Warren street. Abram Elmendorf has returned to his home here after a visit with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Elmendorf, in Trenton, N. J.

Pvt. Kenneth P. Mance, who left two weeks ago with the draft contingent, is now stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Miss Grace Kudlich of Cragsmoor has taken an apartment in the Dewitt house on Market street for the winter.

KRUMVILLE

Krumville, Dec. 15 — Last Wednesday, Mrs. Simon Merrihew and son, Henry, went to Middletown to attend the funeral of their cousin, Mrs. Leulla Galbraith.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Community Circle, held at the home of Elder John A. Barringer, it was voted not to undertake carol singing at the homes of the sick people this year, due to the gasoline and rubber shortage and it was voted to assist the pastor and the Church School at the morning worship service next Sunday morning.

Mrs. Carl Webber of New York spent the week-end at her summer home here and visited Mr. and Mrs. Glenford Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Quick with their three children were dinner guests last Sunday at the home of their uncle, John A Barringer.

The next meeting of the Community Circle is to be held Wednesday, January 13. This is the fifth annual meeting when the new officers are to be elected. The place of the meeting is to be announced later.

Raymond Davis expects to leave for Camp Upton, Friday. He is the ninth one from the district now in service.

At 10 o'clock the Church School will meet next Sunday morning.

At the regular morning worship service, the Church School, the Community Circle and the choir will unite with the pastor in a special Christmas service at 11 o'clock, with readings and Christmas carols, which is to be given in five parts: Part one, the Prophecies; part two, the Annunciation and Magnificat; part three, the Angel's Song; part four, the Nativity; part five, Adoration of The Magi. The readers are to be Elvira Wager, Helen Davis, Clara Davis and the pastor. All members and friends of the Church are invited to attend this special service. Mrs. Loren Hover will have charge of the music.

At the Lyonsville Reformed Church the same form of service is to be held at 10 o'clock and the special readers expected to assist the pastor are: Miss Mildred Barley, Mrs. Sherman Barley and Mrs. Clyde Roosa. Mrs. Chester Roosa is to have charge of the music.

Approximately $145,000,000 annually is spent by the states for psychiatric services.

Major Issue of New Congress Will Be Whether Americans Shall Be Congress Ruled or Under Bureaucrats

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 16—Congress is adjourning but both houses will be back here in January for what may prove to be the most historic session in American history.

For at that session the major issue—which doubtless will be carried into the 1944 elections—will be whether the American people shall be governed by laws made by their elected representatives or by appointed bureaucrats who interpret the law as they please.

Already the issuance of an executive order limiting American initiative has produced a virtual rebellion in Congress, and there are plans afoot to deny funds to any executive agency which abuses its power and violates the will of Congress.

The idea of writing executive regulations in defiance of the expressed wish of Congress is much more a totalitarian than a democratic concept. And the idea of levelling off all incomes is much more a Communuistic than an American program.

"An arbitrary limitation and ceiling on income of individuals," says Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, Democrat, "has been one of the basic parts of the platform of both the Socialist and Communist parties for many years. Why take the amount of $25,000? Why not limit all incomes to $10,000 or $5,000, or even less, and thus level off and put a ceiling on the incentive and the initiative of the individual just as it has been done in those countries with Communistic governments?"

If the logic of the New Dealers in the executive agencies who are using the war emergency to put over so-called reforms is followed, then a ceiling on incomes at $3,000 a year would be far more effective in attaining the alleged goals than the limitation at the $25,000 point.

Thus, there are only 10.6 per cent of all the people gainfully employed — namely 53,000,000 — who receive $3,000 a year or over. In terms of the total population of this country, there is only 4.2 per cent who receive $3,000 or over.

According to the official expressions of the New Dealers, this makes the plan desirable, because, if only a few persons are injured it presumably doesn't matter. Thus, a plan that does not affect 95.8 per cent of the people is in conformity with the New Deal theory of the maximum good for the maximum number. It might turn out, of course, that the successful and talented persons who earn $3,000 a year or more might be so demoralized that this limitation might break down the whole management system, but that's not an argument which affects the New Dealers. For in the midst of war they have permitted America's most successful management class to have its personal financial affairs upset, and the hardships haven't been of the slightest concern to the powers-that-be.

Erroneous reports have been published that the management class can get $25,000 net after payment of fixed obligations and insurance, but a careful reading of the regulations will prove that the propaganda as to the alleged amelioration of the rules is incorrect. The truth is that nobody can get any allowances unless he can prove he is a virtual pauper or a bankrupt and that he cannot sell his assets—his home and his belongings—to get enough money to meet current obligations of a fixed nature.

If the purpose of the reform were to gain revenues for the treasury, it would be defensible. But under this scheme, when $25,000 net is the top income, there is actually less coming in to the government than before."

This defect would be remedied if $3,000 were the top salary. For while all the income of persons both from salaries and investments, if confiscated 100 per cent, would give the treasury about $272,000,000, the intake by limiting salaries and wages to $3,000 a year would give the treasury about $12,370,000,000.

Inasmuch as Randolph Paul, assistant secretary of the treasury, says that at least $15,000,000,000 must be siphoned out of the stream of purchasing power to prevent inflation, her is a big lump sum that meets his specifications. Incidentally, the amount retained by the citizens in the $3,000-a-year-or-over class would be more than $16,000,000,000.

It may be assumed that nobody would starve on $3,000 a year. It may be assumed that, if the New Dealers are sincerely anxious to cure alleged inequalities, they cannot afford to ignore the more than $12,000,000,000 which can be confiscated from only 4.2 per cent of the population. Maybe the New Dealers are getting ready to defend their sincerity of purpose by issuing another executive order limiting salaries to $3,000 a year. Certainly their consistency, if not their sincerity, may otherwise be open to question.

"Preacher's Kid," by Ladd Haystead

Perhaps it was lucky that the press of fall books forced me to put over Ladd Haystead's "Preacher's Kid" until the Christmas season. It's the warming kind of book that fits the time.

It's a different type of book from Hartsell Spence's recent effort along the same line. Mr. Spence has glossed things a bit, perhaps, to make his book "come out right," but in the main he has told a pretty straight story of what happened to him as the son of the Protestant minister. Not so Mr. Haystead.

"Preacher's Kid" is set in Montana, up by the Canadian border. The preacher's town is a lumber center, it is divided by the railroad tracks into respectable Eaton and the District, and it is divided in a religious sense between the Catholic faith and the several Protestant denominations. These adult divisions run down through the community of the young, and this is the basis of a good deal of the book.

A good many of the things in "Preacher's Kid" probably happened to Mr. Haystead—the fights, the initiations, the snow fort incidents and such matters. But he has not been able to resist the temptation to embroider, and sometimes his kids sound more like juvenile John Henrys than like kids. For instance, when the District and respectable Eaton come to blows over a jail delivery, and the boys settle the matter by rolling flaming barrels down a long runway which (mirabile dictu!) just happens to be set so as to drive the rowdies away and burn down the district as well. I felt a yank on my leg at that point.

Still, it's good fun and not safe to doubt too much. There is the initiation aforementioned, which might have happened. It seems that one boy came to town who wore glasses, used good English and had the beginnings of heart diasease, and therefore was labeled a sissy. The Preacher's Kid was forced to play with him—the new boy was initiated into the Mohicans, and in the final ordeal, burning at the stake, he didn't cry as expected and did get liberally scorched. Scandal ensued, and the Preacher's Kid netted a new friend out of it all.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

(First of Two Articles on food at war)

Washington — Some of our even more conservative Capital observers are saying that now that Claude R. Wickard is virtually a food production czar, it's time to quit fiddling around with half-way measures and jingoistic phrases about our food supply and what is going to happen to it.

Our war strategists, they say, have already decided that American beans are bullets and that a few thousand pounds of beefsteak can be more devastating than all the four-ton blockbusters dropped on Italy in an hour-long night raid.

They argue, and with some justification, that the prospects of getting on the bread line has kept Spain from going over to the Axis and that the smiles we now get from Portugal come from their two-way look at the food situation on both sides of the fence.

In hungry Italy, they contend, faint heart is a disease caused by empty stomachs. In a little different way, the same thing applies to France. In Greece, Holland, Belgium, Norway and many other countries, once we have our bridgeheads food will give birth overnight to millions of loyal commandos.

That summary doesn't even consider the near-starvation of the Russians. If that hunger-hardened nation falls (and well it could), it will be for lack of nourishment—not for lack of courage or arms.

That, briefly, is how the military and civilian strategists now look at the global war picture. Food has ceased to be a mere humanitarian product. It's a weapon as vital as air-power, manpower or control of the seas.

A glance at the meat supply-demand is interesting. Discussing the proposed rationing the other day with a representative of the packing interests, I got this statement:

"The United States' normal consumption of meat is around 17 billion pounds. Next year we will produce and market 24 billion pounds, if all goes well—and that will be three billion pounds less than the prospective demand."

And that doesn't mean giving more than a subsistence minimum to any Allied nations or Axis captive nations which might be released in the meantime.

Back of all this isn't any inability on the part of this country to feed itself and its soldiers and feed them royally. It's just that at the same time the demand has hit an all-time high, the strategists have realized that food is ammunition which may knock more of our enemies out of the war (by bringing them over to our side) than any other weapon.

Science Assists Great Army of Potato Peelers

By LARRY ROBINSON

Caldwell, Idaho, Dec. 16 (AP) — Here's great news for doughboys stuck on K. P. duty. There's a growing army of American potatoes on the way—and they won't have to be peeled.

Science has come to the rescue of potato peelers of the Army and Navy. This year the American potato industry has its sights raised to 30 million pounds of spuds cut to wartime specifications — skinned, streamlined and conveniently tinned. The entire output is headed for fighting men overseas.

Last year 10,000,000 pounds of beauties from Idaho, Maine and other potato-growing sections were stripped of their jackets and shipped for military mess tables.

Dehydrating is the answer. There's nothing especially new about dehydration, but science has cut some new capers with it.

During the first World War, more than 6,000,000 pounds of dehydrated potatoes were sent overseas. But the boys didn't like them. The dried-out potatoes couldn't be coaxed back to their original shape, color and flavor.

It's different now. It would take an expert to tell dehydrated potatoes out of a can from the ones mother peeled out in the kitchen and cooked before putting them through the masher.

Probably the dehydrated spud's biggest selling point is that the fresh product may be condensed to one-tenth usual size. That's important with every square foot of cargo space so precious.

Packed in Tins

The potatoes are packed in five-gallon tins with each can packing the food value of a 100-pound sack of tubers fresh from the fields. When placed in water and boiled, the dehydrated potato cooks out to pre-drying size.

One of the most popular numbers in the dehydrated potato line from the soldier's viewpoint is the "strips julienne," as the Quartermaster Corps knows them, or "shapes," which is the processor's term. They look like French fries in the raw. Thirty minutes of brisk boiling returns them to normal.

Another favorite is shredded or riced dehydrates. These are a Mess Sergeant's dream when he wants to whip up a batch of potatoes in short order, as they resume original form in five or 10 minutes of boiling.

The actual dehydration process, aside from the operation of certain machines, is comparatively simple. The potatoes are washed, mechanically peeled and then "spotted" for blemishes by crews of women working beside belt conveyors.

The belt spills the spuds into a machine which shreds them preparatory to blanching with a short steam or hot water bath to kill enzyne action and guarantee preservation.

The gleaming white potatoes travel through an air-heated tunnel and are dried out to six or seven per cent moisture content by huge blast-type oil furnaces. The last step is to seal the spuds in the five-gallon tins.

Another thing dehydration is doing is giving the cull potato a new dignity. Idaho's record-shattering crop of 31,500,000 bushels of potatoes this year is bound to have thousands of bushels of misshapen and undersized tubers.

Dehydraters want these culls and will pay good prices for them. The food content is as good as in fancier grades. They require somewhat more work from the dehydration crews, but at least they now find a market where formerly they went to waste.

The 'Boy Wonder' Of Puerto Rico . .

By MARGARET KERNODLE
AP Features Writer

Washington—At 7 A. M. daily 33-year-old Jaime Benitez shows up at his office at the University of Puerto Rico with his coat on, but he quickly pulls it off because he is a shirtsleeves college president and one of the youngest.

By 9 o'clock he has taught a class in political science. His office day never ends before 6 or 7, and he considers his job a 24-hour duty.

He is in the United States now to watch war programs invade college campuses because he wants to reorganze his university of 5,000 students on a war-working basis. He knows Washington well, having spent six years here working his way through Georgetown University.

He will consult leading college presidents including Robert Hutchens of the University of Chicago, which he attended. He was thrilled to lecture to students of Spanish at Bolling field the other day because he likes teaching better than any other work.

Chancellor Benitez was one of those boy wonders we read about. At 21 he had two bachelor degrees (one in art, one in law) and two M.A.'s (ditto) and was political science instructor at the University of Puerto Rico.

Today he talks of re-vamping the courses in philosophy at the university "to make people live in the 20th century and, if possible, in Puerto Rico, because so few people live for today."

Chancellor Benitez plans to change the university of which he has been the head for two months by adapting the Hutchens plan to the needs of Puerto Rico. He intends to put the university on a year-round schedule and require basic courses in "the things everybody should know about history, science, humanities and philosophy" before allowing students to specialize.

Among new members of the faculty he is selecting are three Spanish refugees: Don Fernando de los Rios, Spanish ambassador to the United States during the Civil War, as a political science professor; Don Juan Ramon Jimenez, Spanish poet now in Washington, as a literature professor; and Don Felipe-Sanchez Roman, outstanding law scholar.

His popularity with the students stems partly from the fact that they consider him almost one of them. He taught there 12 years and even attended classes as a student while he was a member of the faculty.

JAIME BENIETZ
. . .College President At 33. . .

Twice during his career as a teacher he had been suspended for being "too frank and reading too much."

Via his university he hopes to help the food scarcity in Puerto Rico by instruction in agriculture. He says teachers of farming are needed there more than harvesters. He has converted the university farms to food crops entirely, and expects students to operate them before long.

His wife is a war worker despite the fact that they have a five-months-old daughter. Grandmother takes care of the baby while mother works at one of the 166 milk stations which she helped Mrs. Rex Tugwell, the governor's wife, and others to organize.

The young chancellor carries a cardboard portfolio like students often use. Terrific is his favorite word. It's also his word for the state his country's in.

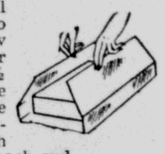
And he says that if Governor Tugwell were to resign it would mean that the only attempt to break the feudal systems existing in Puerto Rico had failed. He believes Puerto Rico could be the United States' example to imperial nations of how to handle a colonial possession.

Yule Gifts Take a Bow

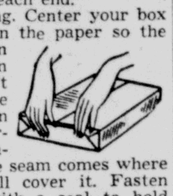
By GLADYS DEGNER
AP Features Writer

It doesn't take an artist to wrap Christmas packages attractively. If you're one of the countless people who get head over heels in ribbons, trimmings, paper and such, then you're missing up on some of the finer points used by professional wrappers (no more an artist than you). Here they are:

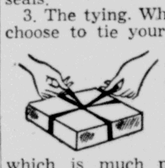
1. The size of the wrapping. Cut your paper to fit the box, not too small and not too large. Allow enough for overlapping 1½ inches at the top, and have the paper extend the depth of the box at each end.



2. The folding. Center your box unside down on the paper so the seam will be on the bottom. In case the gift won't take the upside-down treatment, arrange the paper so that the seam comes where the ribbon will cover it. Fasten the overlap with a seal to hold the paper tight. In folding the ends, make neat, sharp creases at the sides, and then fold up the bottom. Secure the ends with seals.



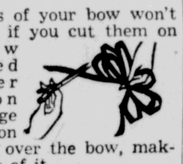
3. The tying. Whatever way you choose to tie your ribbon—across the middle, off-center or diagonally, — the ends should be long enough for tying around a separate bow, which is much prettier than a skimpy one made of the tying ribbon.



4. Diagonal, or across-the-corners, tying. Start the ribbon at the upper right of the top of your package. Bring it across the top, down under the box, up on the left, across the top, down under the box again and up on the right to the starting point. Then tie your knot.

5. The trimming. To make a bow that will look like something, form a loop and hold between your thumb and forefinger. Make another loop in the opposite direction. Holding center firmly, continue making loops until the bow is as full as you wish. You can make all the loops even length, or vary them according to the style bow you wish.

6. The ends of your bow won't fray or ravel if you cut them on a slant. Bow all finished place it over the knot on your package and tie ribbon ends securely over the bow, making them part of it.



BLOOMINGTON

Mrs. William H. Van Wagenen of Yonkers, formerly of New Paltz, is visiting her son, Nathan, in Parker, Ariz.

AUTO SIRENS BANNED

New Jersey's Governor Edison has issued an executive order banning use of sirens on all automobiles including police cars, fire apparatus and ambulances "except in event of an extreme emergency." Acting under his war emergency powers, the governor explained that most air raid alarms in New Jersey are sirens and the use of these devices on motor vehicles has caused confusion among civilians mistaking them for black-out or air raid alert alarms.

DELIVERIES CURTAILED

Retail deliveries by motor vehicle in the New York metropolitan area during the week ending November 14, were 26 per cent smaller than in the similar 1941 week according to reports of delivery services. In the four-week period ending November 14, deliveries were 23 per cent less than last year.

. . this Christmas Day!

Home is a long way from our men fighting in the jungles of Guadalcanal and the sands of Tunisia — yet not too far for thoughts and hopes to travel on Christmas Day. But millions of other young men in uniform are closer to the ones they love and the places they want to be—near enough for fleeting visits home to brighten the Holidays for themselves and their families.

Men on leave naturally deserve first call on transportation—and get it. But because gasoline rationing for private motor cars has added so greatly to the civilian need for Greyhound service, the cooperation of every traveler is more important now.

You will find it more comfortable to take your trip before the heaviest Holiday rush —and to return after it's over. Voluntarily saving a bus seat for a soldier or a sailor the week before Christmas — that's the American way. At the same time, you'll be aiding the buses to carry as many as possible of all those who have reason to travel.

To help our boys get home, many of us can easily stay home during the Holidays!

Help in Vehicle Shortage

Automotive dealers are helping to relieve the critical shortage of heavy-duty motor vehicles by increasing capacity of medium sized models. One manufacturer has made available to all its dealers complete instructions on the conversion job. Recently the capacity of a highway tanker was increased from 14,000 to 56,000 pounds gross weight by the addition of a tandem drive rear and, special transmission and tandem semi-trailer.

Scottish coal merchants are disturbed over recent orders limiting maximum deliveries of coal to 200 pounds per week to consumers which, they say, requires uneconomic use of scarce motor fuels.

War Board Asked About Supply of Critical Material

The War Production Board and the War, Navy, Interior and Commerce departments have been called upon by the Senate Committee on Small Business (Senator Murray, chairman, and members: Senators Maloney, Ellender, Mead, Stewart, Capper and Taft, to tell what they have done and what they propose to do toward getting a more adequate supply of strategic and critical raw materials for the use of the nation in the war effort.

In making this announcement today, Chairman Murray spoke of a continuous flow of complaints from the smaller mine operators of the country, who say that their productive capacities are being sparsely used, although it seems to be general knowledge that the production of metals and minerals is not up to expectation, either for present or prospective requirements.

"The Senate Committee on Small Business," the senator said, "has a double interest in the raw materials supply. First, we want to sift these complaints to the bottom. Second, in our effort to get smaller plants into war production, we want to know why the total supply of raw materials cannot be increased for that purpose. Metals and minerals are the lifeblood of our war-effort—on the home front as well as on the battlefront."

The determination of the committee to seek this information follows the recent testimony of James W. English, president of the Boulder Mining Company, who described to the committee on October 8 how he and his associates, owners of a lead and zinc mine in Arizona, had been given a year's "run-around" by Washington war agencies. After the agencies had examined the mine, pronounced it worthy of development and expansion in the war effort, and advanced $40,000 of a promised $200,000 for that purpose, they decided that the mine should be abandoned. This decision was made almost at the moment when the mine was ready to double its production. This case may be taken up in more detail when Secretary of the Interior Ickes appears before the committee in the near future to give his views regarding a raw materials program to help small manufacturers and mine operators.

To obtain the necessary information, the committee has sent a detailed list of questions to each of the five government agencies previously named. This list covers five general headings: the measuring of requirements for raw materials; the obtaining of supplies of raw materials; problems involved in certain specific materials; previous experience of personnel handling raw materials; and relationships among the various federal agencies.

Under the first heading each agency is asked to outline the step-by-step procedure whereby it may calculate material requirements, including stockpile requirements. With regard to supply, each agency has been asked, "What are the major obstacles in the path of increased domestic production of strategic and critical raw materials? Of increased domestic production through use of submarginal mineral resources?"

Each agency has also been asked to outline the production prospects of smaller domestic producers of each strategic or critical raw material, together with all possible methods of increasing the supply of the three metals under the Controlled Materials Plan—steel, copper, and aluminum—and of zinc and magnesium.

The final series of questions is aimed at finding out what improvements may be necessary in the present division of responsibilities among the various federal agencies dealing with raw materials supply.

Cooperate for Victory

Richmond, Va., Dec. 15 (ANS)—In less than three months this fall more than 7,000 Southern States patrons have asked 8,579 of their neighbors to join with them in using their cooperative. By the end of the year, says L. E. Raper, director of membership relations, probably 10,000 patrons will have signed the "Cooperative-for-Victory" pledge.

OPPOSES HIGHWAY BARRIERS

Removal of state highway barriers impeding efficient transportation and "free and untrammeled encouragement of all means of transportation" are among objectives of the National Grange adopted at its recent annual meeting at Wenatchee, Wash. This nation-wide farm organization also went on record as opposed to fixing an arbitrary limit on the radius of operation of motor vehicles and favored increasing safety programs to reduce accidents on the highways and in the homes.

Lutheran Men Are Hosts to Baptists

The Men's Club of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer entertained a group of men from the First Baptist Men's Club at their regular meeting Tuesday evening, December 15.

The meeting was opened with a business session and the annual election of officers of the Men's Club of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer. The newly elected officers are as follows: George Ramming, president; George Schick, vice president; Donald Griffin, recording secretary; Alfred Messinger, financial secretary; Kenneth Lang, treasurer; George Spalt, chaplain, and John Herrmann, trustee. A nominating committee composed of Alfred Messinger, John Herrmann and Kenneth Lang presented the slate of officers before the group who voted them in unanimously.

Following the business session the Rev. Russell Gaenzle, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, introduced Raymond Rignall who presented to the group a sound motion picture on the development and significance of the X-ray. The pictures showed not only the importance of the X-ray in the field of medicine but its contribution to science and industry as well.

The Redeemer men defeated the First Baptist group in a game of dart baseball following the showing of the film.

The evening's activities were brought to a close with the serving of refreshments.

Members of Lowell Club Hold Annual Party

Mrs. William Delaplane was hostess at her home on Albany avenue, yesterday afternoon at the annual Christmas party of the Lowell Club. Christmas carols were sung by the group and members contributed quotations from Christmas poems and stories.

Mrs. Delaplane read Grace L. Richmond's story, "On Christmas Day in the Morning." The members exchanged gifts and brought donations of jams and jellies for the Industrial Home.

At the close of the meeting tea and refreshments were served with Mrs. O. D. B. Ingalls and Miss Mary Hale assisting by pouring. Hostesses for the afternoon were members of the program committee, of which Mrs. Delaplane is chairman: Mrs. Arthur Cole, Mrs. Wesley Hale and Mrs. John Saxe.

Those attending were: Mrs. A. S. Cole, Miss Flora Davison, Mrs. W. D. Delaplane, Mrs. W. N. Fessenden, Mrs. J. D. Groves, Mrs. C. V. Gunther, Mrs. J. A. Guttridge, Miss Mary E. Hale, Mrs. W. D. Hale, Mrs. E. L. Howe, Mrs. O. D. B. Ingalls, Mrs. J. J. Murphy, Jr., Miss Anna D. Quimby, Miss L. May Quimby, Mrs. J. H. Saxe, Mrs. Frederick Snyder, Mrs. A. H. Van Buren, Mrs. R. K. Witter, Mrs. Clyde Wonderly, Mrs. George Long and Miss Helen Atkins.

Lieut. David Liscom Weds Miss Applegate of Trenton

The marriage of Miss Mary Eileen Applegate of Trenton, N. J., to Lieut. David W. Liscom, son of Mrs. Kathryn Liscom of 164 O'Neil street and the late Robert A. Liscom, has been announced. The wedding took place at Miami Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Alvin B. Applegate was matron of honor and Lieut. Lawrence Ellison of Wodeboro, N. C., acted as best man. A wedding reception was held at the Seven Seas.

The couple traveled from Miami Beach, to Los Angeles, Cal., and after a brief stay there, Lieutenant Liscom was assigned to Hobbs Field, N. M., as assistant post adjutant.

Burger-Shea

Eleanor S. Shea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Smith of Kerhonkson, and Charles D. Burger, son of Mrs. Cora M. Burger and the late Benjamin E. Burger of Accord were united in marriage, Friday, December 11, at 7 p. m. in the parsonage of the Bellevue Reformed Church, Schenectady, by the Rev. Calvin C. Meury.

The bride wore a street length dress of winter white with wine accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Joseph F. Thoneman of Schenectady, who wore a powder blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. The bridegroom was attended by Joseph F. Thoneman.

A wedding dinner was held for the bridal party at the Tavern, and a reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Thoneman where the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Christian, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weigele, Mrs. Julia Stock, George F. Schonger, William Atkins, Wallace Stock and Miss Helen Weigele. The home was decorated in yellow and white crepe paper and yellow chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Burger will make their home at Accord after a short wedding trip.

Will Be Married, Sunday

Mrs. Jacob Eymann of 42 Janet street announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Dorothy Eymann, to Lieut. Darwin L. Hinsdale, who is now stationed at Tampa, Fla. The wedding will take place Sunday, December 20, at 5 p. m. at the Trinity Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone streets.

Kingston W. C. T. U. Meeting

The Christmas meeting of Kingston W.C.T.U., will be held tomorrow afternoon, December 17, at St. James Methodist Church. Mrs. Andrew J. Keefe will have charge of the program. Donations of jams and jellies will be received for Christmas cheer.

Cub Troop Den 4 Holds Christmas Party

Freeman Photo

C. E. Will Give Original Pageant

An original Christmas pageant entitled "Holy Night" will be presented, Sunday evening, December 20, at 7:30 p. m. at the Ponckhockie Congregational Church. This pageant has been written, directed and will be presented by the Christian Endeavor Society of the church.

The pageant is the Biblical story of the birth of the Christ child at Bethlehem. As the play opens the scene is that of the Angel of the Lord appearing to the shepherds in the fields and follows the scriptural story closely through to the birth of the Christ in the manager.

Special lighting effects are being arranged. A large choir will sing the Christmas hymns and carols throughout the presentation and the public is invited to attend the service.

Norwegian schools have been closed for lack of fuel.

Kingston Group at Concert

A number of Kingstonians participated in and attended the concert given by the Dutchess County Philharmonic Society, Monday evening in Poughkeepsie. Seals Sale Marks 35th Anniversary

First Christmas Seal Was Sold in Wilmington

Wednesday marks the 38th anniversary of the first Christmas Seal Sale in the United States, and the occasion is being celebrated at the offices of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Association in the recording of the sudden upswing that seals returns took yesterday. A total of $396.30 was received, an increase over the preceding day of $133.70.

Joseph M. Fowler, chairman of the Christmas Seal Committee, told the story of the early years of the Christmas Seal Sale in this country. During December, 1907, the first American Seal Sale was held in Wilmington, Del., by Miss Emily P. Bissell, to maintain a small tuberculosis hospital.

Miss Bissell needed $300. The Seal Sale, receiving almost instant and widespread approval in the locality of Wilmington and Philadelphia, resulted in $3,000. The following year, 1908, the Seal Sale was held for the first time on a nationwide basis, and $135,000 was received. In 1909, a quarter of a million dollars resulted.

As the Seal Sale increased from year to year, the organized antituberculosis movement became more effective. Today, there are approximately 1,700 tuberculosis associations affiliated with the National Tuberculosis Association, throughout this country, Alaska, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and the Canal Zone.

The nationwide goal for this year's Seal Sale is $8,000,000—the largest amount ever set by the National Association. "The increased income is imperative to finance the expanded work of the tuberculosis associations throughout the country in our all-out effort to prevent any material wartime rise in the disease," said Mr. Fowler.

To date $5,406.12 has been received. Ulster county's quota is $11,000. Mr. Fowler expressed full confidence that the association would hear from the still unanswered letters mailed on November 23.

Second Cheer Broadcast Will Be Given Tonight

The second in this year's series of Christmas Cheer programs broadcast over Station WKNY from 8 to 9 p. m., will be given this evening. Several more musical numbers will be given with the following musicians participating: Miss Marian Flaherty, soloist, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Heaps; Ralph and Bob, songs of the singing saddle; Miss Helen Schoonmaker, solo; Miss Amelia Altamari, pianist; Miss Joan Gunter, pianist; Miss Joyce Halloran, soloist.

The entire hour Thursday evening will be conducted by the Hercules Powder Co.

Tuesday evening the program was most successful and a number of contributions were received. An appeal is being made that the good work be continued so that the committee may carry out its plans.

Schools Close Friday

Kingston's schools will close for the Christmas vacation period on Friday at noon. The schools will reopen on January 4.

Michaux-Rogers

Saugerties, Dec. 16—Word has been received by Mrs. Ella Mauterstock of Barclay Heights of the marriage of her grandson, Eugene Michaux, U. S. Navy, to Miss Shirley Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rogers of 799 Sanford avenue, San Diego, Cal.

Souto-Voerg

Saugerties, Dec. 16 — Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Voerg of Elm street announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Emma Jeanne Voerg, to Serge John Souto. The ceremony was performed, Tuesday, November 17, at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Astoria, L. I.

When soap was recently rationed in Eire, an Irish philosopher declared that "washing is an Amreican idiosyncrasy, anyway."

Guest Preacher

REV. SAMUEL TREXLER, D. D.

The Rev. Samuel Trexler, D. D., S. T. D., president of the United Lutheran Synod of New York, will be the guest preacher at the Rededication services of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone streets, Sunday, December 20, at 10:30 a. m. The United Lutheran Synod of New York consists of 420 parishes and 496 pastors with a total baptized membership of almost a quarter of a million members. Dr. Trexler served as a chaplain in the last war and is a noted author, preacher and lecturer. His most recent book is "A Pastor Wings Over South America."

Personal Notes

Kelton Jansen of High Falls, a student at Colgate University, is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jansen.

The weekly duplicate contract bridge tournament at the Hotel Stuyvesant was won Monday evening, by Dr. and Mrs. Paul Perlman, first honors; and Miska Petersham and Luther Russell, of Woodstock, second honors.

Last evening Mrs. Robert Umpleby of Fair street entertained her bridge club. During the course of the evening Mrs. Umpleby drew an unusual hand containing 13 hearts. Her guests were Mrs. Harry Beck, Mrs. Charles Goodley, Miss Charlotte Kolb and Mrs. Charles Marabell.

Pvt. John MacConnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene MacConnell of 261 Smith avenue, is now stationed with the regimental headquarters company at Camp Maxey, Tex.

Miss Constance Dierfelter of Ellenville is listed on the latest honor roll at the Albany Business College.

Youth Presbytery Meets at Highland

Mid-Winter Meeting Will Be Held December 29

The mid-winter meeting of the Youth Presbytery of the North River, will be held on Tuesday evening, December 29, in the Presbyterian Church in Highland. This group is made up of the young people of the churches in the North River Presbytery.

The annual fellowship supper will be served in the church that night at 6:30 o'clock, and the guest speaker will be the Rev. Leon D. Sanborne, recently appointed secretary of youth work of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions. The Rev. Mr. Sanborne will have a message of interest to the young people.

Notices of the mid-winter meeting have been mailed to the various young peoples' organizations in the church of the Presbytery by Ralph Taylor of Poughkeepsie, president of the group, and the Rev. Dwight Beller, adviser for the Presbytery.

It is expected that every church in the North River Presbytery will be represented at this mid-winter gathering.

Education Board Considers Added Stokers in Schools

of Kingston $146.75 and Mrs. Anna S. Newkirk of Kingston $149. It was voted to award the contract to Viola Atwater if she could meet the figure of the low bidder since the board desired to keep the contract in Kingston if possible.

Trustee Feeney for the building committee reported that anticipated work in the chemical laboratory which was scheduled for the holiday season could not be done since the priority on needed materials could not be brought high enough to get the supplies. The chemistry laboratory sewage system from experimental sinks has been plugged for some time and a plan was devised to run a new line. This is now out because of inability to get supplies.

A letter of appreciation was received from the Benedictine Hospital management thanking the needle trade classes for sewing work done for the hospital. The letter to Mr. Hoderath, director of vocational training, praised the classes under the direction of Miss Smith, who have done this sewing as a part of their training course. In connection with the vocational school work, Mr. Laidlaw stated that measuring gauges were being made in the vocational school for use in manufacturing plants and the work being done was of a high order.

President Case to Speak

President Everett Case of Colgate University at Hamilton has notified Superintendent Laidlaw that he would accept the invitation extended him to speak at the annual graduation in Kingston High School on June 22.

The payroll and bills amounting to $5,882.36 were audited as well as the usual bills for vocational school.

A communication was received from station WKNY asking that the high school put in a permanent wire for broadcasts so that school activities might be broadcast from time to time or as a regular feature. The cost is $7.50 per month for the wire service plus an installation charge. Principal Dumm as well as Superintendent Laidlaw suggested that this might be a means of getting school activities into the homes and the board voted to have the service installed and maintained at the discretion of the principal and superintendent.

The first program to be broadcast will be the Christmas program which will be given at the high school on Friday morning from 11 until 11:30 o'clock when the student body will hold the annual Christmas exercises. There will be Christmas carols by the 235 members of the chorus. The high school orchestra of 50 will play and there will be a chorus of 1,000 student voices heard on the program.

Superintendent Laidlaw reported that the Federal Aid check in the sum of $2,463 for vocational training aid had been received and that the State Non-Resident aid check based on attendance in the sum of $34,606.84 had been received.

The proposition of what to do in the cases of 18 and 19 year old high school students who are called into the army prior to graduation was discussed at length. A proposed resolution was drawn up and referred to the rules committee to study and present a draft later which would provide for the giving of diplomas to these boys. It was suggested that seniors, engaged in their final semester, should be given diplomas if they are called into service before they graduate. However the exact regulations to cover this was left to the rules committee. In the January class are 29 boys who complete their studies at that time and who are eligible for the Army now.

Clarence Rowland for the athletic committee reported that because of transportation shortage the basketball schedule had been cut down from 17 to 11 games.

Superintendent Laidlaw reported that Clifford Van Velkenburgh, who was a teacher at the M. J. M. school and was one of the first teachers to enter the service last February, was now a first lieutenant in the armed forces and was making a splendid record as a member of the artillery.

Superintendent Laidlaw made his monthly report on attendance to the board.

The teachers committee reported that Anthony J. Messina, with five years' experience teaching music at Goshen, had been hired to take the place of Kenneth G. Appleton as band director in the Kingston High School during the absence of Mr. Appleton. The committee offered the following resolution which was adopted:

BE IT RESOLVED that Anthony J. Messina, graduate of New York University in 1937 with a degree of Bachelor of Science, and in 1940 with the degree of Master of Science, with five years experience as teacher of music at Goshen, New York, be given temporary appointment as director of the band at a salary of $200 per month, effective December 2, 1942, taking the place of Kenneth G. Appleton who has been drafted for military service. This appointment is made with the definite understanding that Mr. Appleton is on "leave of absence" approved by the Board of Education, and upon his release from military service shall be restored to his position as director of the band in the Kingston public schools.

The board adjourned.

First Dutch Choir Will Give Program

Special Christmas Music Will Be Presented

Next Sunday's services at the First Reformed Church will offer two unusual opportunities for all those who love the joyous music of the Christmas season.

At the regular morning service at 10:50 o'clock, the five choirs of the church, totaling more than 100 voices, will appear in a singing processional, and will participate, both separately and together, in a festival of Christmas carols. These groups consist of the Primary choir, composed of boys and girls five to seven, the Junior girls' choir, ages eight to eleven, the Intermediate girls' choir ages 12 to 16, the Boys' choir, composed of boys with unchanged voices, and the Senior choir, a mixed choir of adults.

The music will include "A Joyous Christmas Song," by Gevaert, "Jesu, Thou Dear Babe Divine," a traditional carol from the island of Haiti, "The Birthday of a King," by Neidlinger, and a "Choral Fantasy of Old Christmas Carols" by the renowned English composer Gustav Holst.

The pastor, the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, will present a message suitable to the season.

In the evening at 8 o'clock, Maunder's cantata "Bethlehem" will be presented in pageant form, with colorful costumes and lighting effects, by two choirs and a cast totaling 75 people. Both of these services are under the general direction of the Rev. Herbert C. Greenland, associate pastor, with W. Whiting Fredenburgh presiding at the organ.

Shoplifters Are Arrested Here

One Is Said to Be Parole Violator; Both Young

Allen LeRoy Hughes, 17, of 132 Prospect street, and George Bishop, Jr., 17, of 69 Prospect street, accused of shoplifting in the Montgomery Ward store on North Front street, were arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court this morning.

Young Hughes, who is also charged with violation of parole, was turned over to Lawrence Jenson, the county probation officer, for such action as he deemed necessary, while Bishop was placed on probation with orders to report to the probation officer.

Julio Amoros of New York city, charged with public intoxication, had his hearing adjourned to Thursday, while Harry W. Henderson, 51, of Connelly, charged with public intoxication, was given a suspended sentence as it was the first time he had ever been arrested.

William Kaercher of Grandview avenue, charged with double parking on Broadway, forfeited bail he had posted by failing to appear in answer to the charge.

Railroad Service Flag Dedication

The dedication of a service flag for local railroaders will be held Sunday afternoon, December 20, at 2:30 o'clock at the West Shore Railroad station.

According to present plans, local railroad men will meet at the Central Post Office, where they will form and march to the station on Railroad avenue. Efforts are being made to have a band to lead the parade.

The dedication services at the station will feature an address by Mayor William F. Edelmuth.

Mr. Walker Will Officiate

Alexander Walker, Jr., associate administrator for New York state will be master of ceremonies at the War Bonds and Stamps program tonight at the Fessenden Conalescent Home, (formerly Sahler's Sanitarium) Mr. Walker is one of the treasury department's "Dollar a Year" men. Attractive Christmas posters will be given away to all attending who wish them for home or store decoration.

New Yorkers Go Third Day Without News, Read Paper Ragged When One Is Found

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Newsstarved New Yorkers took what steps they could today to keep informed while a newspaper delivery strike kept most of the city's papers out of general circulation for the third day.

The Newspaper and Mail Deliverer's Union and the Publishers Association of New York ended separate all night meetings without effecting a settlement which again would permit delivery of the papers to postoffices, news stands and stores. Representatives of the groups said that further conferences would be held today.

Meantime, a newspaper — today's, yesterday's or even Monday's—was a prized possession, especially among the city's commuting millions on train and subway. The few copies which were discarded were generally retrieved from tras receptacles and read literally ragged. Some riders turned to magazines, some brought books, others perused the car cards with new interest, and still others merely dozed.

There were numerous calls to newspaper and press association offices about specific news developments.

The papers continued to print complete editions, but again curtailed press runs sharply, selling individual copies at their main offices. The Daily News reported 21,000 copies of its Monday and Tuesday editions sold in this manner.

Philadelphia and Newark papers, as well as those from more distant cities, were in heavy demand at news stands, and quickly sold out. In Newark, the Evening News and Morning Star-Ledger suggested their readers caution news dealers to reserve copies as protection against the unusual demand for them, and said extra copies could not be printed because of newsprint shortage.

Circulation of the afternoon daily PM, not a member of the Publishers Association, skyrocketed. Its business manager, Lowell Leake, said the normal press run of around 160,000 was near 600,000 yesterday and was being increased to 700,000 today.

Through yesterday, last night and the early morning, Dr. Fred C. Croxton of the U. S. Conciliation Service, who had been serving with Chairman Arthur S. Meyer of the state mediation board as mediator, carried proposals and counter-proposals between the meetings.

Close of the sessions brought no formal statements.

Meyer had declared last night, however, that "today, for the first time, definite proposals and counter proposals to settle the matter through arbitration have been made, and although no definite solution has yet been reached, progress has been made."

When the meeting of the union men ended, Louis Waldman, counsel for the unaffiliated organization, said:

"We are for arbitration, but we are against delays and procrastination because we know what it means in this industry."

The strike was voted after the two groups failed to agree on terms for a new contract—mainly wages and job security—following months of negotiations.

The papers affected by the strike, all members of the association, are The Times, Herald Tribune, Daily News, Daily Mirror, Journal of Commerce and Wall Street Journals, morning papers, and The Sun, Post, World-Telegram, Journal American, Brooklyn Citizen and Long Island Daily Star-Journal, afternoon. Combined circulation is around 5,000,000.

Not affected are the morning Telegraph, a sports paper, and The Brooklyn Eagle and PM, in the afternoon field. None are members of the publishers organization.

The papers involved have curtailed their press runs greatly. All placed papers on sale at their plants.

The union seeks a 15 per cent wage increase, or about $6.60 a week to lowest paid workers, now receiving $44 weekly. The union contends that this demand is in keeping with the National War Labor Board policy in permitting raises up to 15 per cent over the scale in effect on January 1, 1941. In September, an arbitrator granted the union a $3 weekly wage increase, but the union refused it.

The union also demands job "freezing" for the war's duration and a guarantee against dismissals resulting from gasoline and tire rationing.

The Publishers Association has said in a statement that it "has been willing at all times to submit the pending issues to arbitration."

Saturday Is Deadline

Lists are being completed of those wishing to entertain British seamen at their homes during the holidays. Many of these service men will be stationed in New York at this time and as a gesture of hospitality, communities near the metropolitan section have formed groups who will entertain the sailors either for Christmas Day, week-end or through the holiday week. The lists will be closed Saturday and all persons who desire to participate in this project are urged to have their registrations in not later than that day, by calling the Volunteer Office, 247 Clinton avenue, telephone 1125.

Eire has reduced the gas ration for clergymen in large cities to supply more to those in rural parishes.

UNHAPPY TAXPAYER

What makes the taxpayer poor? Just now, perhaps, the demands of the war which must be met lest a worse thing than mere financial inconvenience befall all Americans. In the long run, however, the taxpayer's troubles have been due mainly to the existence of unnecessary and overlapping units of government.

With but 48 states there are no fewer than 160,000 governmental bodies in the United States. These include counties (and parishes, as in Louisiana), incorporated cities and villages, towns and townships, and school districts, besides 8,382 special districts, like those established to look after roads, bridges and housing. The figures are compiled, through 1941, by Prof. William Anderson of the University of Minnesota.

What happens is that every citizen is a member of at least three, often more, of these governmental units. All have officials, and all are supported by taxes. In many cases they entirely overlap, as in Massachusetts, where Boston and Suffolk County cover exactly the same territory with two sets of officials. One could be abolished with great advantage to the taxpayer.

That is where his money goes. The one encouraging feature is that 10 years ago the situation was worse. There were then 175,000 units instead of 165,000. But much more than this must be done before there is real relief for the payer of taxes.

THE LAST FRONTIER

Our war in the Pacific has been, so far, a rather small affair compared with American involvement in Europe and the big expeditionary force we have sent to Africa. Steady pressure is maintained against the Japs in the Solomons, New Guinea and elsewhere, but comparatively small bodies of troops are in operation. The nation has not really put forth its might in that area. Yet national interest in every move is so keen that it may seem out of proportion to the present operations.

Perhaps there is a reason for it, aside from the natural desire to slap down the arrogant Japanese. All those forays made against the enemy, in small numbers, over large and sparsely settled areas, with sporadic fighting likely to break out almost anywhere unexpectedly—don't they remind Americans of something?

When you once think of it, how similar they are to our old Indian wars of the last century, in which stout-hearted troops fought the Redskins over a vast region, pressing them ever westward!

There is endless water now instead of endless plains, and islands instead of hills, and there are bombers instead of muzzle-loading rifles, but the purpose, the fighting methods and the spirit of it seem a good deal the same. The American people might be regarded now as pressing westward to win their last frontier.

CURE FOR SPEEDING

A new way has been found to punish speeders and other practitioners of careless driving. Take away their gasoline ration books, and you have the answer. Some judges in large cities are already adopting this method of repressing abuses of a wartime privilege, and are finding the public behind them.

In the past, vigorous enforcement of traffic laws has sometimes been dangerous politically, but not now. People selfish enough to trifle with the special favors they receive at other persons' expense will get very little public support when they protest their punishment.

DEAR FRIEND, FAREWELL!

The American way of life is in danger. An institution that has been with us for centuries and never betrayed the faith, is about to disappear. The American doughnut is on its way out.

There is a shortage of sugar and shortening, causing the bakers of one of our largest cities to announce that with the materials available there is five times as much profit in coffee cake as in doughnuts. While only a few cities so far seem to have given out this bad news, such a precedent is only too likely to be followed by the others.

With the doughnut goes that occupation of millions, dunking. Nothing worse could be said of this war than that it is extinguishing both the dunking and the dunked. The doughnut will soon be as obsolete as the second cup of coffee.

UNSUNG JANITORS

The housing shortage in cities with defense plants has caused many to live in apartment buildings who once had houses, and others to live in houses who once dwelt in flats. Both are now discovering, in the one case with joy at his presence, in the other with grief over his loss, that unsung hero of American apartment house life, the janitor.

The janitor it is whose operations with the furnace may be heard in pitch black hours while his tenants lie snugly in bed. He it is who carries off garbage, waste paper and tin cans, now salvaged for war use. He puts new washers on leaky faucets, inserts new fuses and rewraps defective light cords. He cleans floors and arranges for painters and paperhangers. Life in an apartment house simply could not go along without him, and under his ministrations the tenants become as useless, for household activities of their own, as the vermiform appendix.

Whoever invented the janitor was a benefactor of the city-dwelling species. Now that war needs are taking a toll of his ranks, he, like other overlooked helpers, is reaping recognition of his services.

General Franco, Spanish dictator, says Liberals are doomed. But they're only damned by their enemies, and that won't last long.

Manchurian students must bow eastward every morning toward the royal palace at Tokyo, but even that may not win the war.

All this rationing doesn't seem rational; but it's an irrational world.

OVERWEIGHTS DISLIKE EXERCISE

It is estimated that about 9 of every 10 cases of overweight are due directly to overeating, another 5 per cent to inactivity of certain glands, and the other 5 per cent to overeating combined with lack of gland activity. This means that 95 of every 100 overweights should follow a reducing diet containing an insufficient number of calories, the extra calories really needed to do the body's work being made up from the excess fat in and on the body.

What about exercise?

If overweights realized the benefits derived from exercise, they would be more willing to take it regularly. All that most of them find is that exercises increase their appetite and so little or no weight is lost.

As a matter of fact reducing weight means using strength of will; practically every overweight has had to use strength of will in either of two directions—doing without foods they enjoy or taking exercise which they do not enjoy.

Which of the two directions is more popular or rather which is the least disliked?

Doing without the starch and fat foods!

Much as these foods appeal to their sight, smell, and taste, it is easier to do without these foods than to take regular physical exercise.

Why do overweights so greatly dislike exercise? Exercise means effort and there is less than the normal desire for effort in overweights. Every movement they make—walking, jogging, bending—means the lifting or carrying of much more weight than for one of normal weight. So, rather than use this severe effort, they are willing to do without some of their daily intake of food. They simply choose the lesser of the two evils.

If, however, they are willing to take the exercise instead of doing without the food, they will not only use up the excess fat and so bring their figure back or nearly back to normal, but will get rid of their dislike for exercise and be more willing to take it regularly. As they grow lighter and more "limber", they may actually develop a desire for exercise.

Remember, exercise is useful in reducing weight before middle age. After middle age, cutting down on food is the safest method.

PHYSICIAN, HEAL THYSELF

By Bressler

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By R. L. VAN DEUSEN

Three well known residents of Kingston died within a few days of each other in August, 1928. The first was Dr. John A. Huhne, well known veterinarian; the second, the Rev. J. Wilbur Tetley, pastor of St. James Methodist Church, and the third, Dr. A. P. Chalker of West Chestnut street.

Dr. Huhne, who was 60 years old at the time of his death on August 9, 1928, was a graduate of old Ulster Academy. During the Spanish American War he served as first lieutenant with old Company M of this city. He was one of the best known veterinarians in Ulster county, and for years made his home on Abeel street. His brother, Dr. Fred Huhne, was a widely known physician, residing on Hone street, who for years had been a member of the city's health board.

The Rev. Mr. Tetley had served the uptown church for six years at the time of his death on August 10, 1928. He died in Cornwallville at the age of 52 years, where he had gone for a brief vacation. His first charge as a minister was at Cornwallville. While serving as pastor of the local church he was very active in the religious life of the city.

Dr. A. P. Chalker was 83 years of age when he died on August 16, 1928, and had been practicing medicine in Kingston for 59 years at the time of his death. He opened an office in this city in 1869. Up until the time of his death he continued to practice his profession, and was one of the best known doctors of Kingston.

I recall that on July 30, 1928, that Frank S. Campbell of this city was awarded the contract to remodel the Rondout National Bank, turning it into a modern banking structure. In order to make the necessary improvements to the new banking house it was necessary to demolish a large three story brick building on East Strand. The first floor of the building housed the Bank Arcade, Ben W. Johnston's drug store and the millinery store of Isaac Abrahams.

The second floor housed the offices of the late Dr. A. Stern, a widely known physician and surgeon of this city, who for many years was an active member of the staff of the Kingston Hospital. He also served for years as physician for the old Ulster & Delaware railroad. When the new banking house was erected office rooms for Dr. Stern were located on the second floor of the building, and also a remodeled and modern drug store for Mr. Johnston.

Mr. Johnston is one of the oldest drug store proprietors in years of service in Kingston, and his store has been located on the Strand for a long period of years.

With the retirement of Louis Kolls as president of the Board of Fire Commissioners, after serving 21 years as a member of that board, Harry B. Walker was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Kolls' retirement.

HITS HIGHWAY LIMIT

War Department opposition to restrictions on the distances which may be operated by common carrier motor vehicles recently was made public by Colonel W. J. Williamson, chief of the Transportation Corps. In response to reports that the Office of Defense Transportation is considering limiting the radius of operation of motor vehicles, Colonel Williamson said that if such limits are imposed, which the War Department considers unwise, it will exercise its authority to declare all highway common carriers in service of the War Department, thereby removing them from control of any other agency.

Night traffic accidents in New York city have increased 74 per cent under present more drastic "dimout" regulations.

KRUMVILLE

Krumville, Dec. 15 — Last Wednesday, Mrs. Simon Merrihew and son, Henry, went to Middletown to attend the funeral of their cousin, Mrs. Leulla Galbraith.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Community Circle, held at the home of Elder John A. Barringer, it was voted not to undertake carol singing at the homes of the sick people this year, due to the gasoline and rubber shortage and it was voted to assist the pastor and the Church School at the morning worship service next Sunday morning.

Mrs. Carl Webber of New York spent the week-end at her summer home here and visited Mr. and Mrs. Glenford Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Quick with their three children were dinner guests last Sunday at the home of their uncle, John A Barringer.

The next meeting of the Community Circle is to be held Wednesday, January 13. This is the fifth annual meeting when the new officers are to be elected. The place of the meeting is to be announced later.

Raymond Davis expects to leave for Camp Upton, Friday. He is the ninth one from the district now in service.

At 10 o'clock the Church School will meet next Sunday morning.

At the regular morning worship service, the Church School, the Community Circle and the choir will unite with the pastor in a special Christmas service at 11 o'clock, with readings and Christmas carols, which is to be given in five parts: Part one, the Prophecies; part two, the Annunciation and Magnificat; part three, the Angel's Song; part four, the Nativity; part five, Adoration of The Magi. The readers are to be Elvira Wager, Helen Davis, Clara Davis and the pastor. All members and friends of the Church are invited to attend this special service. Mrs. Loren Hover will have charge of the music.

At the Lyonsville Reformed Church the same form of service is to be held at 10 o'clock and the special readers expected to assist the pastor are: Miss Mildred Barley, Mrs. Sherman Barley and Mrs. Clyde Roosa. Mrs. Chester Roosa is to have charge of the music.

Approximately $145,000,000 annually is spent by the states for psychiatric services.

Major Issue of New Congress Will Be Whether Americans Shall Be Congress Ruled or Under Bureaucrats

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 16—Congress is adjourning but both houses will be back here in January for what may prove to be the most historic session in American history.

For at that session the major issue—which doubtless will be carried into the 1944 elections—will be whether the American people shall be governed by laws made by their elected representatives or by appointed bureaucrats who interpret the law as they please.

Already the issuance of an executive order limiting American initiative has produced a virtual rebellion in Congress, and there are plans afoot to deny funds to any executive agency which abuses its power and violates the will of Congress.

The idea of writing executive regulations in defiance of the expressed wish of Congress is much more a totalitarian than a democratic concept. And the idea of levelling off all incomes is much more a Communistic than an American program.

"An arbitrary limitation and ceiling on income of individuals," says Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, Democrat; "has been one of the basic parts of the platform of both the Socialist and Communist parties for many years. Why take the amount of $25,000? Why not limit all incomes to $10,000 or $5,000, or even less, and thus level off and put a ceiling on the incentive and the initiative of the individual just as it has been done in those countries with Communistic governments?"

If the logic of the New Dealers in the executive agencies who are using the war emergency to put over so-called reforms is followed, then a ceiling on incomes at $3,000 a year would be far more effective in attaining the alleged goals than the limitation at the $25,000 point.

Thus, there are only 10.6 per cent of all the people gainfully employed — namely 53,000,000 — who receive $3,000 a year or over. In terms of the total population of this country, there is only 4.2 per cent who receive $3,000 or over.

According to the official expressions of the New Dealers, this makes the plan desirable, because, if only a few persons are injured it presumably doesn't matter. Thus, a plan that does not affect 95.8 per cent of the people is in conformity with the New Deal theory of the maximum good for the maximum number. It might turn out, of course, that the successful and talented persons who earn $3,000 a year or more might be so demoralized that this limitation might break down the whole management system, but that's not an argument which affects the New Dealers. For in the midst of war they have permitted America's most successful management class to have its personal financial affairs upset, and the hardships haven't been of the slightest concern to the powers-that-be.

Erroneous reports have been published that the management class can get $25,000 net after payment of fixed obligations and insurance, but a careful reading of the regulations will prove that the propaganda as to the alleged amelioration of the rules is incorrect. The truth is that nobody can get any allowances unless he can prove he is a virtual pauper or a bankrupt and that he cannot sell his assets—his home and his belongings—to get enough money to meet current obligations of a fixed nature.

If the purpose of the reform were to gain revenues for the treasury, it would be defensible. But under this scheme, when $25,000 net is the top income, there is actually less coming in to the government than before."

This defect would be remedied if $3,000 were the top salary. For while all the income of persons both from salaries and investments, if confiscated 100 per cent, would give the treasury about $272,000,000, the intake by limiting salaries and wages to $3,000 a year would give the treasury about $12,370,000,000.

Inasmuch as Randolph Paul, assistant secretary of the treasury, says that at least $15,000,000,000 must be siphoned out of the stream of purchasing power to prevent inflation, her is a big lump sum that meets his specifications. Incidentally, the amount retained by the citizens in the $3,000-a-year-or-over class would be more than $16,000,000,000.

It may be assumed that nobody would starve on $3,000 a year. It may be assumed that, if the New Dealers are sincerely anxious to cure alleged inequalities, they cannot afford to ignore the more than $12,000,000,000 which can be confiscated from only 4.2 per cent of the population. Maybe the New Dealers are getting ready to defend their sincerity of purpose by issuing another executive order limiting salaries to $3,000 a year. Certainly their consistency, if not their sincerity, may otherwise be open to question.

"Preacher's Kid," by Ladd Haystead

Perhaps it was lucky that the press of fall books forced me to put over Ladd Haystead's "Preacher's Kid" until the Christmas season. It's the warming kind of book that fits the time.

It's a different type of book from Hartsell Spence's recent effort along the same line. Mr. Spence has glossed things a bit, perhaps, to make his book "come out right," but in the main he has told a pretty straight story of what happened to him as the son of the Protestant minister. Not so Mr. Haystead.

"Preacher's Kid" is set in Montana, up by the Canadian border. The preacher's town is a lumber center. It is divided by the railroad tracks into respectable Eaton and the District, and it is divided in a religious sense between the Catholic faith and the several Protestant" denominations. These adult divisions run down through the community of the young, and this is the basis of a good deal of the book.

A good many of the things in "Preacher's Kid" probably happened to Mr. Haystead—the fights, the initiations, the snow fort incidents and such matters. But he has not been able to resist the temptation to embroider, and sometimes his kids sound more like juvenile John Henrys than like kids. For instance, when the District and respectable Eaton come to blows over a jail delivery, and the boys settle the matter by rolling flaming barrels down a long runway which (mirabile dictu!) just happens to be set so as to drive the rowdies away and burn down the district as well, I felt a yank on my leg at that point.

Still, it's good fun and not safe to doubt too much. There is the initiation aforementioned, which might have happened. It seems that one boy came to town who wore glasses, used good English and had the beginnings of heart disease, and therefore was labeled a sissy. The Preacher's Kid was forced to play with him—the new boy was initiated into the Mohicans, and in the final ordeal, burning at the stake, he didn't cry as expected and did get liberally scorched. Scandal ensued, and the Preacher's Kid netted a new friend out of it all.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

(First of Two Articles on food at war)

Washington — Some of our even more conservative Capital observers are saying that now that Claude R. Wickard is virtually a food production czar, it's time to quit fiddling around with half-way measures and jingoistic phrases about our food supply and what is going to happen to it.

Our war strategists, they say, have already decided that American beans are bullets and that a few thousand pounds of beefsteak can be more devastating than all the four-ton blockbusters dropped on Italy in an hour-long night raid.

They argue, and with some justification, that the prospects of getting on the bread line has kept Spain from going over to the Axis and that the smiles we now get from Portugal come from their two-way look at the food situation on both sides of the fence.

In hungry Italy, they contend, faint heart is a disease caused by empty stomachs. In a little different way, the same thing applies to France. In Greece, Holland, Belgium, Norway and many other countries, once we have our bridgeheads food will give birth overnight to millions of loyal commandos.

That summary doesn't even consider the near-starvation of the Russians. If that hunger-hardened nation falls (and well it could), it will be for lack of nourishment—not for lack of courage or arms.

That, briefly, is how the military and civilian strategists now look at the global war picture. Food has ceased to be a mere humanitarian product. It's a weapon as vital as air-power, manpower or control of the seas.

A glance at the meat supply-demand is interesting. Discussing the proposed rationing the other day with a representative of the packing interests, I got this statement:

"The United States' normal consumption of meat is around 17 billion pounds. Next year we will produce and market 21 billion pounds, if all goes well—and that will be three billion pounds less than the prospective demand."

And that doesn't mean giving more than a subsistence minimum to any Allied nations or Axis captive nations which might be released in the meantime.

Back of all this isn't any inability on the part of this country to feed itself and its soldiers and feed them royally. It's just that at the same time the demand has hit an all-time high, the strategists have realized that food is ammunition which may knock more of our enemies out of the war (by bringing them over to our side) than any other weapon.

Santa Claus at Ward's; to Visit With Children

The children of Kingston and Ulster county will be delighted to learn that Santa Claus has paid a surprise visit to the large Montgomery Ward store at Kingston. He brought with him a huge pack just filled with toys and gifts of all kinds for old and young.

The heavy demand on Ward's toy and gift departments had somewhat depleted the stock, and a hurried telegram to Santa Claus land was relayed to jolly old Nick himself. He not only responded with a fine assortment to replenish the stock, but also announced that he would remain at the store to visit with the youngsters until Christmas Eve.

So now Wards is equipped to supply all requirements demanded of them by the agents of Santa Claus and Santa himself is right in the store to help in various ways in suggesting what would be just the right article for Junior's present for Christmas.

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

We never heard of an Xian, why then spell Christmas Xmas?

Fred—Ethel, I'm ashamed of you. I saw that Frenchman in the hall kissing you repeatedly. Why didn't you tell him to stop?

Ethel—I couldn't, Fred.

Fred—You couldn't? Why not?

Ethel—I can't speak French.

A Buck Is Good Luck

The rupee is droopy,
The ruble's a screwble,
And sometimes the lira
Can act even queera;
The pound's none too sound,
The frank also shrank,
The mark's in the dark
The krone's flesh and bone;
You'll find a bad coaty
On the tongue of the xlotty;
The florin's not soaring,
The drachma is slackma;
The poor old escudo's
In no shape for kudos;
The yen's weak again;
The sol's in the hole;
The lou is there, too.
And the peso? I'll say so;
So be glad when you collar
An Almighty Dollar!

Junior—Dad, can you help me with this problem?

Father—I could, son, but I don't think it would be right.

Junior—No, I don't suppose it would, but take a crack at it and see.

Man — My motto is: What is worth doing is worth doing well.

His Wife—Yes, I notice that when you make a fool of yourself.

The Ladies' Bowling League will hold a Christmas party, Thursday evening at the Reformed Church hall at 6:30 o'clock. All members are requested to bring their own dishes for the pot-luck supper.

On Friday evening the Priscilla Society of the Methodist Church held the annual Christmas party and regular monthly business meeting in the church house. A pot luck supper was enjoyed by 31 members. Just before the business session, Santa Claus, Jr., appeared and distributed gifts to all present. In behalf of the Society, Miss Mary Bishop presented the president, Mrs. Charles Zimmerman with a potted plant. A short business session was held during which final arrangements were made for the purchase of an American and a Christian flag for the church auditorium. At the close of the business session, games were played. The evening ended with the singing of Christmas carols. Those present were: Mrs. Charles Zimmerman, Mrs. Eltinge Ellsworth, Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Mrs. William Schweigel, the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Coutant, Mrs. Wallace Mabie, Mrs. Ralph Atkins, Mrs. James Tinnie, Mrs. Lester Ellerbrook, Mrs. Lester Stagg, Mrs. Raymond Howe, Mrs. Amelia Rose, Mrs. Basil Potter, Mrs. Horace Woolsey, Mrs. Harry Jump, Mrs. Lester Minkler, Mrs. George Bonesteel, Mrs. George Castor, Mrs. Alanson Short, Mrs. Percy Fairbrother, Mrs. Wilson Tinney, Mrs. Maud Stratton, Mrs. Cyril Small and son, Mrs. Samuel Tinney, E. Science Assists Great Army of Potato Peelers

By LARRY ROBINSON

Caldwell, Idaho, Dec. 16 (AP) — Here's great news for doughboys stuck on K. P. duty. There's a growing army of American potatoes on the way—and they won't have to be peeled.

Science has come to the rescue of potato peelers of the Army and Navy. This year the American potato industry has its sights raised to 30 million pounds of spuds cut to wartime specifications — skinned, streamlined and conveniently tinned. The entire output is headed for fighting men overseas.

Last year 10,000,000 pounds of beauties from Idaho, Maine and other potato-growing sections were stripped of their jackets and shipped for military mess tables.

Dehydrating is the answer. There's nothing especially new about dehydration, but science has cut some new capers with it.

During the first World War, more than 6,000,000 pounds of dehydrated potatoes were sent overseas. But the boys didn't like them. The dried-out potatoes couldn't be coaxed back to their original shape, color and flavor.

It's different now. It would take an expert to tell dehydrated potatoes out of a can from the ones mother peeled out in the kitchen and cooked before putting them through the masher.

Probably the dehydrated spud's biggest selling point is that the fresh product may be condensed to one-tenth usual size. That's important with every square foot of cargo space so precious.

Packed In Tins

The potatoes are packed in five-gallon tins with each can packing the food value of a 100-pound sack of tubers fresh from the fields. When placed in water and boiled, the dehydrated potato cooks out to pre-drying size.

One of the most popular numbers in the dehydrated potato line from the soldier's viewpoint is the "strips julienne," as the Quartermaster Corps knows them, or "shapes," which is the processor's term. They look like French fries in the raw. Thirty minutes of brisk boiling returns them to normal.

Another favorite is shredded or riced dehydrates. These are a Mess Sergeant's dream when he wants to whip up a batch of potatoes in short order, as they resume original form in five or 10 minutes of boiling.

The actual dehydration process, aside from the operation of certain machines, is comparatively simple. The potatoes are washed, mechanically peeled and then "spotted" for blemishes by crews of women working beside belt conveyors.

The belt spills the spuds into a machine which shreds them preparatory to blanching with a short steam or hot water bath to kill enzyne action and guarantee preservation.

The gleaming white potatoes travel through an air-heated tunnel and are dried out to six or seven per cent moisture content by huge blast-type oil furnaces. The last step is to seal the spuds in the five-gallon tins.

Another thing dehydration is doing is giving the cull potato a new dignity. Idaho's record-shattering crop of 31,500,000 bushels of potatoes this year is bound to have thousands of bushels of misshapen and undersized tubers.

Dehydraters want these culls and will pay good prices for them. The food content is as good as in fancier grades. They require somewhat more work from the dehydration crews, but at least they now find a market where formerly they went to waste.

NEW HURLEY

New Hurley, Dec. 16 — On Thursday afternoon the Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Gerow Schoonmaker. The President, Mrs. Tysse presided over the business meeting. The sum of $8 was received for the 60th anniversary birthday fund of the Board of Domestic Missions. The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Burton Ward. The subject was "The Road to Bethlehem." Several Christmas hymns were sung with Mrs. Edward Powell at the piano and a play was given; those taking part were Mrs. Edna DuBois, Mrs. John Tysse, Mrs. Wilbur VanWyck, Mrs. Stonberg and Mrs. Ward. Others attending the meeting beside those taking part were: Mrs. Fred Heidke, Mrs. Nicholas Cocks, Mrs. Charles Jenkins, Mrs. Iva Low, Mrs. Myra Dolan, Mrs. George VanWyck, Mrs. Marcus Bisch, Mrs. Edward Humphreys, Mrs. Nelson Hedges, Miss Bertha Sutton and the hostess Mrs. Schoonmaker. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Edward Humphreys on January 14, with Mrs. Charles Jenkins as leader.

Mrs. Myron Anderson who has been ill for several weeks is improving slowly. Mrs. Walter Elmendorf of Clintondale is caring for her.

Mrs. Esther Christiana has returned to her home in this place after spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mack West, Wallkill.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Cocks spent a few days last week in New York with their daughter and family Mr. and Mrs. William Grill and daughter.

The final rehearsal for the Christmas program will be held in the church on Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m.

Senior choir rehearsal will be held in the church on Saturday evening at 8 p. m.

On Monday evening at 8 p. m. the New Hurley Sunday school will hold its Christmas entertainment and tree in the church. Everyone is most cordially invited to attend this entertainment.

On Wednesday evening, December 23 at 8 p. m. the New Hurley school will hold its Christmas entertainment at the school house. This is in charge of the teacher, Mrs. Frank Dylewski.

TRAVELS THE HIGHWAYS

A Japanese two-man suicide submarine, weighing 22 tons, has started a highway tour of all 48 states under the direction of the United States Treasury to stimulate the sale of war bonds. The tour started in California and is being made with the sub mounted on a giant truck and trailer unit.

SAVES VITAL RUBBER

New Hampshire automobile conservation authorities are holding up that state's 57 per cent reduction in tire needs to the rest of the nation as an example of what can be done in saving vital rubber now on motor vehicles.

The 'Boy Wonder' Of Puerto Rico . .

By MARGARET KERNODLE
AP Features Writer

Washington—At 7 A. M. daily 33-year-old Jaime Benitez shows up at his office at the University of Puerto Rico with his coat on, but he quickly pulls it off because he is a shirtsleeves college president and one of the youngest.

By 9 o'clock he has taught a class in political science. His office day never ends before 6 or 7, and he considers his job a 24-hour duty.

He is in the United States now to watch war programs invade college campuses because he wants to reorganze his university of 5,000 students on a war-working basis. He knows Washington well, having spent six years here working his way through Georgetown University.

He will consult leading college presidents including Robert Hutchens of the University of Chicago, which he attended. He was thrilled to lecture to students of Spanish at Bolling field the other day because he likes teaching better than any other work.

Chancellor Benitez was one of those boy wonders we read about. At 21 he had two bachelor degrees (one in art, one in law) and two M.A.'s (ditto) and was political science instructor at the University of Puerto Rico.

Today he talks of re-vamping the courses in philosophy at the university "to make people live in the 20th century and, if possible, in Puerto Rico, because so few people live for today."

Chancellor Benitez plans to change the university of which he has been the head for two months by adapting the Hutchens plan to the needs of Puerto Rico. He intends to put the university on a year-round schedule and require basic courses in "the things everybody should know about history, science, humanities and philosophy" before allowing students to specialize.

Among new members of the faculty he is selecting are three Spanish refugees: Don Fernando de los Rios, Spanish ambassador to the United States during the Civil War, as a political science professor; Don Juan Ramon Jimenez, Spanish poet now in Washington, as a literature professor; and Don Felipe Sanchez Roman, outstanding law scholar.

His popularity with the students stems partly from the fact that they consider him almost one of them. He taught there 12 years and even attended classes as a student while he was a member of the faculty.

JAIME BENIETZ
. . .College President At 33. . .

Twice during his career as a teacher he had been suspended for being "too frank and reading too much."

Via his university he hopes to help the food scarcity in Puerto Rico by instruction in agriculture. He says teachers of farming are needed there more than harvesters. He has converted the university farms to food crops entirely, and expects students to operate them before long.

His wife is a war worker despite the fact that they have a five-months-old daughter. Grandmother takes care of the baby while mother works at one of the 166 milk stations which she helped Mrs. Rex Tugwell, the governor's wife, and others to organize.

The young chancellor carries a cardboard portfolio like students often use. Terrific is his favorite word. It's also his word for the state his country's in.

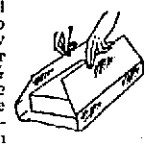
And he says that if Governor Tugwell were to resign it would mean that the only attempt to break the feudal systems existing in Puerto Rico had failed. He believes Puerto Rico could be the United States' example to imperial nations of how to handle a colonial possession.

Yule Gifts Take a Bow

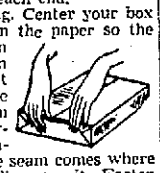
By GLADYS DEGNER
AP Features Writer

It doesn't take an artist to wrap Christmas packages attractively. If you're one of the countless people who get head over heels in ribbons, trimmings, paper and such, then you're missing up on some of the finer points used by professional wrappers (no more an artist than you). Here they are:

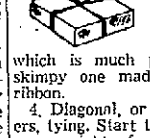
1. The size of the wrapping. Cut your paper to fit the box, not too small and not too large. Allow enough for overlapping 1½ inches at the top, and have the paper extend the depth of the box at each end.



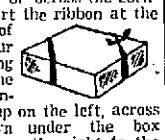
2. The folding. Center your box unside down on the paper so the seam will be on the bottom. In case the gift won't take the upside-down treatment, arrange the paper so that the seam comes where the ribbon will cover it. Fasten the overlap with a seal to hold the paper tight. In folding the ends, make neat, sharp creases at the sides, and then fold up the bottom. Secure the ends with seals.



3. The tying. Whatever way you choose to tie your ribbon—across the middle, off-center or diagonally, — the ends should be long enough for tying around a separate bow, which is much prettier than a skimpy one made of the tying ribbon.

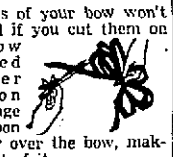


4. Diagonal, or across-the-corners, tying. Start the ribbon at the upper right of the top of your package. Bring it across the top, down under the box, up on the left, across the top, down under the box again and up on the right to the starting point. Then tie your knot.



5. The trimming. To make a bow that will look like something, form a loop and hold between your thumb and forefinger. Make another loop in the opposite direction. Holding center firmly, continue making loops until the bow is as full as you wish. You can make all the loops even length, or vary them according to the style bow you wish.

6. The ends of your bow won't fray or ravel if you cut them on a slant. Bow all finished place it over the knot on your package and tie ribbon ends securely over the bow, making them part of it.



NEW PALTZ NEWS

New Paltz, Dec. 16—Capt. Morton L. Deyo, cousin of Mrs. Clarence H. Woolsey of New Paltz and nephew of Mrs. Perry Deyo and Mrs. Jacob Deyo, also of New Paltz, was made a rear admiral by the President on December 3.

Mrs. L. D. LeFevre entertained the St. Andrew's Church Guild at her home Friday afternoon.

Edwin R. Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Curtis, has enlisted in the U. S. Marines and left Thursday morning for Parris Island, S. C.

Harry Charpek and sister, Mrs. Katherine Kelly, from Rifton, are now living in the Ruckmick house on Tricor avenue.

The N.S.V. Club met at the home of Miss Margaret Hall on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Beatty were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. William Connor in Kerhonkson.

Mrs. Jacob Deyo is staying at the Old Fort on Huguenot street.

This Friday afternoon the annual benefit performance for the New Paltz Christmas Committee will be given in the New Paltz Theatre. The feature attraction will be "The Under Pup." Thomas DiLorenzo, manager of the theatre, has announced that instead of asking for the usual can of food as an admission ticket, there will be a small charge for children and adults. All the proceeds will go to help the committee in its efforts to bring Christmas cheer to the unfortunate ones of the community.

Last week-end Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt C. Seward entertained Lieut. and Mrs. C. E. Tarvin, who have been living in Panacea, Fla. Mrs. Tarvin is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seward. She and her husband left on Sunday for Cambridge, Mass., where he is taking a navigation course at Harvard.

Lieut. Joseph McCaffrey, who was recently injured in an airplane crash, called on friends in town last week. He is on leave from Walter Reed Hospital, Washington.

Elton F. LeFevre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton P. LeFevre, has enlisted in the Army Air Corps and left his home Friday morning for Fort Dix, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Willklow celebraid their 62nd wedding anniversary at their home in Lloyd on December 2.

P.F.C. James Lo Cascio spent last week with his parents. He has been on maneuvers in Tennessee and throughout the mid-west.

Richard Corwin, a senor at Catawba College in Salisbury, N. C., will spend the Christmas vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Corwin, on the New Paltz-Highland road.

Mrs. Frank Gulnac and Miss Blanche Gulnac visited in Poughkeepsie Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Morris attended the burial service of Mary Ellen Fitzpatrick of LaJolla, Calif., which took place Wednesday in Wappingers Falls.

Country Life Club Christmas Cheer program will be held in the New Paltz State Teachers' College gymnasium on Friday at 10:30 before the students leave for the Christmas vacation. Students and faculty will participate. The purpose will be to obtain nonperishable foodstuffs that can be distributed to the needy of the vicinity.

Mrs. Paul Jensen has received a letter from her son, "Buckie," in North Africa.

Mrs. William H. Van Wagenen of Yonkers, formerly of New Paltz, is visiting her son, Nathan, in Parker, Ariz.

AUTO SIRENS BANNED

New Jersey's Governor Edison has issued an executive order banning use of sirens on all automobiles including police cars, fire apparatus and ambulances "except in event of an extreme emergency." Acting under his war emergency powers, the governor explained that most air raid alarms in New Jersey are sirens and the use of these devices on motor vehicles has caused confusion among civilians mistaking them for black-out or air raid alert alarms.

DELIVERIES CURTAILED

Retail deliveries by motor vehicle in the New York metropolitan area during the week ending November 14, were 26 per cent smaller than in the similar 1941 week according to reports of delivery services. In the four-week period ending November 14, deliveries were 23 per cent less than last year.

. . this Christmas Day!

Home is a long way from our men fighting in the jungles of Guadalcanal and the sands of Tunisia — yet not too far for thoughts and hopes to travel on Christmas Day. But millions of other young men in uniform are closer to the ones they love and the places they want to be—near enough for fleeting visits home to brighten the Holidays for themselves and their families.

Men on leave naturally deserve first call on transportation—and get it. But because gasoline rationing for private motor cars has added so greatly to the civilian need for Greyhound service, the cooperation of every traveler is more important now.

You will find it more comfortable to take your trip before the heaviest Holiday rush—and to return after it's over. Voluntarily saving a bus seat for a soldier or a sailor the week before Christmas—that's the American way. At the same time, you'll be aiding the buses to carry as many as possible of all those who have reason to travel.

To help our boys get home, many of us can easily stay home during the Holidays!

Lutheran Men Are Hosts to Baptists

The Men's Club of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer entertained a group of men from the First Baptist Men's Club at their regular meeting Tuesday evening, December 15.

The meeting was opened with a business session and the annual election of officers of the Men's Club of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer. The newly elected officers are as follows: George Ramming, president; George Schick, vice president; Donald Grillin, recording secretary; Alfred Messinger, financial secretary; Kenneth Lang, treasurer; George Spalt, chaplain, and John Herrmann, trustee. A nominating committee composed of Alfred Messinger, John Herrmann and Kenneth Lang presented the slate of officers before the group who voted them in unanimously.

Following the business session the Rev. Russell Gaenzle, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, introduced Raymond Rignall who presented to the group a sound motion picture on the development and significance of the X-ray. The pictures showed not only the importance of the X-ray in the field of medicine but its contribution to science and industry as well.

The Redeemer men defeated the First Baptist group in a game of dart baseball following the showing of the film.

Members of Lowell Club Hold Annual Party

Mrs. William Delaplane was hostess at her home on Albany avenue, yesterday afternoon at the annual Christmas party of the Lowell Club. Christmas carols were sung by the group and members contributed quotations from Christmas poems and stories.

Mrs. Delaplane read Grace L. Richmond's story, "On Christmas Day in the Morning." The members exchanged gifts and brought donations of jams and jellies for the Industrial Home.

At the close of the meeting tea and refreshments were served with Mrs. O. D. B. Ingalls and Miss Mary Hale assisting by pouring. Hostesses for the afternoon were members of the program committee, of which Mrs. Delaplane is chairman: Mrs. Arthur Cole, Mrs. Wesley Hale and Mrs. John Saxe.

Those attending were: Mrs. A. S. Cole, Miss Flora Davison, Mrs. W. D. Delaplane, Mrs. W. N. Fessenden, Mrs. J. D. Groves, Mrs. C. V. Gunther, Mrs. J. A. Guttridge, Miss Mary E. Hale, Mrs. W. D. Witter, Mrs. Clyde Wonderly, Mrs. George Long and Miss Helen Atkins.

Lieut. David Liscom Weds Miss Applegate of Trenton

The marriage of Miss Mary Eileen Applegate of Trenton, N. J., to Lieut. David W. Liscom, son of Mrs. Kathryn Liscom of 164 O'Neil street and the late Robert A. Liscom, has been announced. The wedding took place at Miami Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Alvin B. Applegate was matron of honor and Lieut. Lawrence Ellison of Wodehoro, N. C., acted as best man. A wedding reception was held at the Seven Seas.

The couple traveled from Miami Beach, to Los Angeles, Cal., and after a brief stay there, Lieutenant Liscom was assigned to Hobbs Field, N. M., as assistant post adjutant.

Burger-Shea

Eleanor S. Shea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Smith of Kerhonkson, and Charles D. Burger, son of Mrs. Cora M. Burger and the late Benjamin E. Burger of Accord were united in marriage, Friday, December 11, at 7 p. m. in the parsonage of the Bellevue Reformed Church, Schenectady, by the Rev. Calvin C. Meury.

The bride wore a street length dress of winter white with wine accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Joseph F. Thoneman of Schenectady, who wore a powder blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. The bridegroom was attended by Joseph F. Thoneman.

A wedding dinner was held for the bridal party at the Tavern, and a reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Thoneman where the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Christian, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weigele, Mrs. Julia Stock, George F. Schonger, William Atkins, Wallace Stock and Miss Helen Weigele. The home was decorated in yellow and white crepe paper and yellow chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Burger will make their home at Accord after a short wedding trip.

Will Be Married Sunday

Mrs. Jacob Eysmann of 42 Janet street announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Dorothy Eysmann, to Lieut. Darwin L. Hinsdale, who is now stationed at Tampa, Fla. The wedding will take place Sunday, December 20, at 3 p. m. at the Trinity Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone streets.

C. E. Will Give Original Pageant

An original Christmas pageant entitled "Holy Night" will be presented, Sunday evening, December 20, at 7:30 p. m. at the Ponckhockie Congregational Church. This pageant has been written, directed and will be presented by the Christian Endeavor Society of the church.

The pageant is the Biblical story of the birth of the Christ child at Bethlehem. As the play opens the scene is that of the Angel of the Lord appearing to the shepherds in the fields and follows the scriptural story closely through to the birth of the Christ in the manager.

Special lighting effects are being arranged. A large choir will sing the Christmas hymns and carols throughout the presentation and the public is invited to attend the service.

Norwegian schools have been closed for lack of fuel.

Seals Sale Marks 35th Anniversary

First Christmas Seal Was Sold in Wilmington

Wednesday marks the 38th anniversary of the first Christmas Seal Sale in the United States, and the occasion is being celebrated at the offices of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Association in the recording of the sudden upswing that seals returns took yesterday. A total of $396.30 was received, an increase over the preceding day of $133.70.

Joseph M. Fowler, chairman of the Christmas Seal Committee, told the story of the early years of the Christmas Seal Sale in this country. During December, 1907, the first American Seal Sale was held in Wilmington, Del., by Miss Emily P. Bissell, to maintain a small tuberculosis hospital.

Miss Bissell needed $300. The Seal Sale, receiving almost instant and widespread approval in the locality of Wilmington and Philadelphia, resulted in $3,000. The following year, 1908, the Seal Sale was held for the first time on a nationwide basis, and $135,000 was received. In 1909, a quarter of a million dollars resulted.

As the Seal Sale increased from year to year, the organized anti-tuberculosis movement became more effective. Today, there are approximately 1,700 tuberculosis associations affiliated with the National Tuberculosis Association, throughout this country, Alaska, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and the Canal Zone.

The nationwide goal for this year's Seal Sale is $8,000,000—the largest amount ever set by the National Association. "The increased income is imperative to finance the expanded work of the tuberculosis associations throughout the country in our all-out effort to prevent any material wartime rise in the disease," said Mr. Fowler.

To date $5,406.12 has been received. Ulster county's quota is $11,000. Mr. Fowler expressed full confidence that the association would hear from the still unanswered letters mailed on November 23.

Second Cheer Broadcast Will Be Given Tonight

The second in this year's series of Christmas Cheer programs broadcast over Station WKNY from 8 to 9 p. m., will be given this evening. Several more musical numbers will be given with the following musicians participating: Miss Marian Flaherty, soloist, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Heaps; Ralph and Bob, songs of the singing saddle; Miss Helen Schoonmaker, solo; Miss Amplia Altamari, pianist; Miss Joan Gunter, pianist; Miss Joyce Halloran, soloist.

The entire hour Thursday evening will be conducted by the Hercules Powder Co.

Tuesday evening the program was most successful and a number of contributions were received. An appeal is being made that the good work be continued so that the committee may carry out its plans.

Schools Close Friday

Kingston's schools will close for the Christmas vacation period on Friday at noon. The schools will reopen on January 4.

Michaux-Rogers

Saugerties, Dec. 16—Word has been received by Mrs. Ella Mauterstock of Barclay Heights of the marriage of her grandson, Eugene Michaux, U. S. Navy, to Miss Shirley Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rogers of 799 Sanford avenue, San Diego, Cal.

Seuto-Voerg

Saugerties, Dec. 16 — Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Voerg of Elm street announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Emma Jeanne Voerg, to Serge John Seuto. The ceremony was performed, Tuesday, November 17, at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Astoria, L. I.

When soap was recently rationed in Eire, an Irish goldsmith declared that "washing is an American idiosyncrasy, anyway."

REV. SAMUEL TREXLER, D. D.

The Rev. Samuel Trexler, D. D., S. T. D., president of the United Lutheran Synod of New York, will be the guest preacher at the Rededication services of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone streets, Sunday, December 20, at 10:30 a. m. The United Lutheran Synod of New York consists of 420 parishes and 496 pastors with a total baptized membership of almost a quarter of a million members. Dr. Trexler served as a chaplain in the last war and is a noted author, preacher and lecturer. His most recent book is "A Pastor Wings Over South America."

Personal Notes

Kelton Jansen of High Falls, a student at Colgate University, is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jansen.

The weekly duplicate contract bridge tournament at the Hotel Stuyvesant was won Monday evening, by Dr. and Mrs. Paul Perlman, first honors; and Miska Petersham and Luther Russell, of Woodstock, second honors.

Last evening Mrs. Robert Umpleby of Fair street entertained her bridge club. During the course of the evening Mrs. Umpleby drew an unusual hand containing 13 hearts. Her guests were Mrs. Harry Beck, Mrs. Charles Goodley, Miss Charlotte Kolb and Mrs. Charles Marabell.

Pvt. John MacConnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene MacConnell of 261 Smith avenue, is now stationed with the regimental headquarters company at Camp Maxey, Tex.

Miss Constance Dierfelter of Ellenville is listed on the latest honor roll at the Albany Business College.

Eye Exercises Are Means by Which 34 Men Pass Tests

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

State College, Pa., Dec. 15—Eye exercises have enabled 34 once-rejected young men at the Pennsylvania State College to pass army, navy or air force vision tests. The exercises re-educated the brain in how to see.

These results were announced today. About 100 more men are now being trained, and there is a waiting list of still another hundred.

Dr. Emett A. Betts, director of the reading clinic conducts the seeing exercises. His work is based on the fact that the brain has the major role in seeing. Even perfectly sound eyes sometimes fail to see well, because the gray matter is not doing its share properly. For example, persons with hysteria are sometimes temporarily blind although their eyes are perfect. On the retina of the eye, everything is focussed upside down in normal vision. But the brain interprets these inverted images correctly.

Dr. Betts works on the belief that poor brain patterns of seeing are a widespread cause of faulty vision. He says that many cases of headache, eye ache, blurred vision, tears and burning sensation in the eyes are the result of the brain's failure to co-ordinate and control the eyes properly.

In the 34 military cases, examinations of each eye separately showed that each eye was structually sound, and the muscles were normal.

The exercises include rotating one eye at a time; reading alternately with each eye while the mind sees only one page of print. Monocular or one-eyed training is followed by binocular or two-eyed training to complete the change in the brain pattern to insure efficient seeing.

Even with these exercises, structurally imperfect eyes do not attain normal vision. But under Dr. Betts' system imperfect eyes have improved. Cases of paralysis have been helped.

A wide range of defects have been corrected. These include lowered visual acuity (lack of clearness of image), faulty ocular notility (inability to move one or both eyes easily and accurately), faulty fixation (inability to shift the gaze from one point to another without momentarily seeing double). Faulty near-point of convergence (inability to follow a light with both eyes from a distant point to within three inches of the bridges of the nose) and inability to maintain efficient binocular vision with comfort.

Telephone Company Has 125 Buildings Converted

Additional conversions from oil to coal in the heating units in 85 telephone buildings in New York state by the New York Telephone Company will bring the total to 125 buildings. The annual saving in fuel oil of the combined program will be 4,430,000 gallons or 77 per cent of the company's 1941 fuel oil usage. This will release an amount of fuel oil sufficient, under the oil rationing regulations, for 3,000 average-sized homes, it is estimated.

The additional conversions are an extension of the program begun last summer in connection with the War Production Board's fuel oil conservation plans. The work has been completed in 65 buildings including 23 of the largest in New York and it is expected that many of the other buildings will be converted before the first of the year. The change to coal is being made in every building where it is practicable to do so, the company says.

Latin American Foods to Come via Pan-Am Highway

Kansas City, Dec. 16 (AP)—Dr. Logan Clendening, physician-author who once attacked a W. P. A. project with an axe, has two ideas about what America is going to eat.

Mamey, sapodilla, ceriman, papaya, soursop, star apple or guava may appear on your table about the time coffee returns, the doctor predicts.

These foods grow mostly on trees in Central and South America, and they're very tasty despite the odd names, he said.

"We're going to have to rearrange our food habits and forget some of our food prejudices," he explains. And the South American foods may come north—along with more coffee and bananas—because the Pan-American highway will be completed to Panama by next June.

David D. Duncan, representing Nelson Rockefeller, coordinator of inter-American affairs, dropped in the other day to announce that fact, and he added that the new road doubtless will help solve the coffee and food transportation problem.

Dr. Clendening listened with more than usual interest because he grimaced, "drinking tea is like kissing your sister."

Clendening, bulky, mustached, 58-year-old medical school faculty member and physician who found much of his effort shunted into literature after "I unfortunately wrote a book one time," achieved the national front pages in 1939.

An air hammer had been pounding paving outside his study window for months, as part of a W. P. A. sewer project. Finally, he smashed the mechanism while workers fled. There was quite a hubbub about it. And policemen came. Dr. Clendening paid $50 fine for disturbing the peace.

His second idea about America's diet:

"For breakfast, you sit down and there'll be a little package—a lamb chop. Another tiny page — an orange. Another — cereal. Then a bowl of water in which you dip each dehydrated food—and wait a minute.

"Then you can mix white, odorless, tasteless vitamin powders in jellies or jams, and have a complete diet. It's already being done to some extent with dehydrated foods shipped to England."

Such a synthetic diet will supply everything we need, he said, except—"I don't know what in the world we'll do for bulk. Why, heavens! By 1960 it will take all the cascara in the state of California—"

Advent Service

The last in a series of mid-week Advent services will be held at Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The Rev. E. L. Witte will preach on the theme, "Jesus and the Ancient Leader Moses." Next week on Christmas Eve, the children of the church will present the pageant, "The King of Glory."

Guard Officers Attend Luncheon

Major Preston Asks Local Men Join Unit

Kingston men who are at present draft exempt, especially those in the 3-A classification, were urged to join the local unit of the State Guard by Major Carlton O. Preston and other officers who were guests yesterday at the regular weekly meeting of the Kingston Lions Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Major Preston, commanding officer of the local company of the 56th Regiment, said that there are vacancies at present for which between 30 and 40 volunteers are needed to bring the unit up to full strength.

Comparing the present State Guard to the National Guard units which were federalized two years ago, Major Preston disclosed that some of the Kingston National Guard members are now serving in Alaska. As a result of the National Guard training they received here, many have risen high in Army ranks, he said.

Membership in the State Guard now offers the same type of training to men who are not now in the Army but who may be drafted, but the guard needs especially the voluntary services of those who are classified as 3-A or who are otherwise deferred, Major Preston declared. These men, of course, would become permanent members of the local State Guard company and would give the guard permanent replacements for those who already have been drafted or who have been forced to resign because they have moved elsewhere.

Major Preston defended the record of his State Guard company, declaring, "Give me one hour's time . . . and I'd have 25 to 30 men available for duty at any specified point. We're doing a good job."

In addition to Major Preston, other officers of the First Battalion, 56th Regiment, who were guests of the Lions Club, included Lieutenants Jerry Martin, Roland Green, J. H. Tremper, Harry Rigby and John Melville. Following the commanding officer's address, Lieut. Tremper discussed briefly the use of gas in modern warfare and the way in which State Guard members are taught to combat gas, and Lieut. Rigby explained the different types of arms with which the local unit is equipped.

HOME BUREAU

Hurley Unit

The Home Bureau of Hurley met at the school, Thursday, December 10, for a lesson on Christmas decorations with Mrs. Adams of Lomontville as leader. There were seven members present and four guests. The next meeting will be, January 28, 1943, at the home of Mrs. Catherine Clearwater.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, Dec. 16—Mrs. Emma Carpenter, president of the Ulster County W.C.T.U., entertained members of the Plattekill unit at her home recently. Christmas gifts were sent to Marines on Fire Island by the group and reports of other activities made by Mrs. Thomas Masterjohn.

The Busy Bee Society of the Rossville Methodist Church, associate of Plattekill, met at Mrs. Samuel Dransfield's for the December meeting, when plans were discussed for the Christmas party to be held Monday evening in the parsonage at Plattekill. Attending the meeting were the Rev. and Mrs. Leo Benjamin, Mrs. Willet Deyo, Mrs. George Decker, Mrs. Elvin Pressler, Mrs. Herman Cook, Mrs. J. Clifford Roe, Mrs. Frank Lozier, Mrs. Benjamin Fergueson.

Mrs. Matilda Waite left town for Washington, D. C., last week, where she will spend the winter months with her daughter, Mrs. Wilmer Hill, and family.

Lieut. Donald Baxter of Camp Hope, Texas, is spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Baxter. Augustus Baxter is a veteran of the World War.

Mrs. Myron Bloomer of Middle Hope recently visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood.

Mrs. Myron Coons, Miss Mary Anderson and Miss Elizabeth Fosler attended the Home Bureau meeting held in Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, Modena, on Wednesday.

Ignatz Staszewski, employed on the farm of Mrs. M. Augusta Johnston during the past 14 years, cut his foot with an axe so badly that it was necessary to amputate one of his toes at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh.

Frank Gerow was a caller in New Paltz last week.

Mrs. Jacob DePew, Mrs. Frank DePew attended a stork shower given to Mrs. Thorolf Hagen, a former resident of this section, at the home of her mother, Mrs. William DePew, near New Hurley, recently.

The Plattekill Service League met Tuesday afternoon in the auditorium of the Plattekill school when a good attendance was reported.

St. James Gives Pageant

A pageant, "The Nativity," by Margaret I. Snyder, will be given Sunday evening, 7:30 p. m., by the Epworth League of St. James Church in the church auditorium. The pageant will be given with music and the characters include a choir of 16 girls, the Angel of the Lord, the prolocutor, the Holy Family, six shepherds and three kings. There will be a free will offering during the service to help defray expenses. The public is invited.

Mexico will camouflage all its airports and aviation landing fields.

Nazi Mystery Man

AP Features

Into the murky picture of Germany now steps a genuine mystery man—General Kurt Zeitzler, comparative unknown, new army chief of staff.

Unlisted in any standard German reference book, Zeitzler is 47, stocky, a personal friend of dreaded Gestapo Chief Henrich Himmler. He was born in Luckau, volunteered in World War I and served as lieutenant, entered this war as a colonel and was appointed chief of staff of Field Marshal Ewald Von Kleist's first panzer army. He became a major general early this year, and—as Hitler discarded older chieftains—moved up to lieutenant general, then full general.

Zeitzler is said to have prepared plans for the Nazi drive into the Caucasus, now stalled at Mozdok. Recently he was attached to Hitler's headquarters, representing his buddy Himmler.

Why Zeitzler was given his new, important job is speculative. But three reasons, none military, are said to be behind it: He is a "ja" man to Der Fuehrer; a fervent Nazi; unlinked to the Junkers reportedly feuding with Hitler.

Since Australia rationed travel, stories of railway stowaways are rife.

Bread rationing has increased the consumption of walnuts in Turkey.

Codwise Is Elected Council President

Ulster-Greene Boy Scout Meeting Chooses Former City Engineer

G. Wallace Codwise, former Kingston city engineer, was elected president of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the annual meeting held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday night.

Mr. Codwise, who has been active in the work of the council for a number of years, thanked the members for the confidence reposed in him. He said that he appreciated the importance of the work, the responsibility of the office he was assuming and with the cooperation of all the members of the council looked forward to a successful year.

Dr. Henry W. Keator, who presided at the annual meeting, retires after serving four years as head of the organization. During his term, and to a great degree through his efforts, the large debt which had been hanging over the council was cleared off. At the annual meeting last year his faithfulness and interest were recognized when he was awarded the Silver Beaver, highest award the council can bestow.

The Silver Beaver award this year was bestowed upon Charles H. Weidner of West Shokan, who has been active in scout work for over 30 years, having served as a scoutmaster in 1911. The award came as a complete surprise and he was so overcome that he found difficulty in expressing his appreciation of the honor. "I don't think I have done anything to merit exceptional reward," he said.

The presentation was made by Scout Commissioner Sidney K. Clapp ,himself a holder of the Silver Beaver. Mr. Clapp said that this was one of those occasions which once in a while give an opportunity to show an individual how much the work he has done is appreciated.

He referred to Mr. Weidner's long experience in scouting, his interest in the work since its inception and as one who had "come up through the ranks." He told of Mr. Weidner's activity in his own community, a successful business man, active not only in scout matters, but in his church, the welfare of the school and in community interests generally.

Four of the seven districts of the council were represented in brief reports as follows: Kingston—the Rev. A. S. Cole; Northern—Dr. Maurice Hammond of Catskill; Saugerties—Frank W. Mason of Saugerties; Southern—H. Karl Ernst of Milton.

Dr. Keator reported that the budget for 1943 had been set at $7,165 as against $7,370 in 1942. The finance campaign is not yet completed in some communities, but receipts to date are $6,651.20. The doctor said that it would be necessary to raise in all about $2,000 more in order to make possible the employment of a field executive.

Officers and Executive Board Members

Chairman George B. Matthews of the nominating committee submitted the following list of officers for 1943, which was unanimously approved:

President, G. Wallace Codwise, Kingston; Vice Presidents: C. D. Raymond, Ellenville; George W. Osborn, Windham; Dr. Maurice Hammond, Catskill; Frank W. Mason, Saugerties; Treasurer, Dr. Henry W. Keator, Kingston; Scout Commissioner, Sidney K. Clapp, Kingston.

The following district chairman, committee heads, etc., were approved:

District chairmen and representatives:

Kingston District—Dr. A. S. Cole, Kingston, chairman; Harry Halverson, Kingston, representative.

Mountain District—John Aston, Hunter, chairman; George W. Osborn, Windham, representative.

Northern District—John A. Lederar, Catskill, chairman; Dr. Maurice Hammond, Catskill, representative.

Rabbi Will Broadcast

Rabbi Bernard D. Gershuny, of Congregation Agudas Achim, will conduct services and preach the sermon on the "Call of Israel" program, station WKNY, this evening at 7:15 o'clock.

Sweden is trading reindeer meat with Norway for fish.

Preston and His Aides To Be Kiwanis Guests

Major Carlton Preston, commander of the 1st Battalion, Lieut. Jacob Tremper of Headquarters Co., and officers of Company B, 56th Regiment, New York Guard, will be guests of Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday.

The scope of military training of the guard, relationship of the Kingston companies to local defense and armament of the units will be discussed and there will be an exhibit of specialized equipment and weapons by officers of Co. B.

The fact that some former members of the guard who have been inducted into federal service have qualified for non-commissioned officer ratings within an unusually short time after joining the army stresses the value of the training given at the local armory.

Youth Presbytery Meets at Highland

Mid-Winter Meeting Will Be Held December 29

The mid-winter meeting of the Youth Presbytery of the North River, will be held on Tuesday evening, December 29, in the Presbyterian Church in Highland. This group is made up of the young people of the churches in the North River Presbytery.

The annual fellowship supper will be served in the church that night at 6:30 o'clock, and the guest speaker will be the Rev. Leon D. Sanborne, recently appointed secretary of youth work of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions. The Rev. Mr. Sanborne will have a message of interest to the young people.

Notices of the mid-winter meeting have been mailed to the various young peoples' organizations in the church of the Presbytery by Ralph Taylor of Poughkeepsie, president of the group, and the Rev. Dwight Beller, adviser for the Presbytery.

It is expected that every church in the North River Presbytery will be represented at this mid-winter gathering.

Education Board Considers Added Stokers in Schools

of Kingston $146.75 and Mrs. Anna S. Newkirk of Kingston $149. It was voted to award the contract to Viola Atwater if she could meet the figure of the low bidder since the board desired to keep the contract in Kingston if possible.

Trustee Feeney for the building committee reported that anticipated work in the chemical laboratory which was scheduled for the holiday season could not be done since the priority on needed materials could not be brought high enough to get the supplies. The chemistry laboratory sewage system from experimental sinks has been plugged for some time and a plan was devised to run a new line. This is now out because of inability to get supplies.

A letter of appreciation was received from the Benedictine Hospital management thanking the needle trade classes for sewing work done for the hospital. The letter to Mr. Hodgrath, director of vocational training, praised the classes under the direction of Miss Smith, who have done this sewing as a part of their training course. In connection with the vocational school work, Mr. Laidlaw stated that measuring gauges were being made in the vocational school for use in manufacturing plants and the work being done was of a high order.

President Case to Speak

President Everett Case of Colgate University at Hamilton has notified Superintendent Laidlaw that he would accept the invitation extended him to speak at the annual graduation in Kingston High School on June 22.

The payroll and bills amounting to $5,882.36 were audited as well as the usual bills for vocational school.

A communication was received from station WKNY asking that the high school put in a permanent wire for broadcasts so that school activities might be broadcast from time to time or as a regular feature. The cost is $7.50 per month for the wire service plus an installation charge. Principal Dumm as well as Superintendent Laidlaw suggested that this might be a means of getting school activities into the homes and the board voted to have the service installed and maintained at the discretion of the principal and superintendent.

The first program to be broadcast will be the Christmas program which will be given at the high school on Friday morning from 11 until 11:30 o'clock when the student body will hold the annual Christmas exercises. There will be Christmas carols by the 235 members of the chorus. The high school orchestra of 50 will play and there will be a chorus of 1,000 student voices heard on the program.

Superintendent Laidlaw reported that the Federal Aid check in the sum of $2,463 for vocational training aid had been received and that the State Non-Resident aid check based on attendance in the sum of $34,606.84 had been received.

The proposition of what to do in the cases of 18 and 19 year old high school students who are called into the army prior to graduation was discussed at length. A proposed resolution was drawn up and referred to the rules committee to study and present a draft later which would provide for the giving of diplomas to these boys. It was suggested that seniors, engaged in their final semester, should be given diplomas if they are called into service before they graduate. However the exact regulations to cover this was left to the rules committee. In the January class are 29 boys who complete their studies at that time and who are eligible for the Army now.

Clarence Rowland for the athletic committee reported that because of transportation shortage the basketball schedule had been cut down from 17 to 11 games.

Superintendent Laidlaw reported that Clifford Van Velkenburgh, who was a teacher at the M. J. M. school and was one of the first teachers to enter the service last February, was now a first lieutenant in the armed forces and was making a splendid record as a member of the artillery.

Superintendent Laidlaw made his monthly report on attendance to the board.

The teachers committee reported that Anthony J. Messina, with five years' experience teaching music at Goshen, had been hired to take the place of Kenneth G. Appleton as band director in the Kingston High School during the absence of Mr. Appleton. The committee offered the following resolution which was adopted:

BE IT RESOLVED that Anthony J. Messina, graduate of New York University in 1937 with a degree of Bachelor of Science, and in 1940 with the degree of Master of Science, with five years experience as teacher of music at Goshen, New York, be given temporary appointment as director of the band at a salary of $200 per month, effective December 2, 1942, taking the place of Kenneth G. Appleton who has been drafted for military service. This appointment is made with the definite understanding that Mr. Appleton is on "leave of absence" approved by the Board of Education, and upon his release from military service shall be restored to his position as director of the band in the Kingston public schools.

The board adjourned.

First Dutch Choir Will Give Program

Special Christmas Music Will Be Presented

Next Sunday's services at the First Reformed Church will offer two unusual opportunities for all those who love the joyous music of the Christmas season.

At the regular morning service at 10:50 o'clock, the five choirs of the church, totaling more than 100 voices, will appear in a singing processional, and will participate, both separately and together, in a festival of Christmas carols. These groups consist of the Primary choir, composed of boys and girls five to seven, the Junior girls' choir, ages eight to eleven, the Intermediate girls' choir ages 12 to 16, the Boys' choir, composed of boys with unchanged voices, and the Senior choir, a mixed choir of adults.

The music will include "A Joyous Christmas Song," by Gevaert, "Jesu, Thou Dear Babe Divine," a traditional carol from the island of Haiti, "The Birthday of a King," by Neidlinger, and a "Choral Fantasy of Old Christmas Carols" by the renowned English composer Gustav Holst.

The pastor, the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, will present a message suitable to the season.

In the evening at 8 o'clock, Maunder's cantata "Bethlehem" will be presented in pageant form, with colorful costumes and lighting effects, by two choirs and a cast totaling 75 people. Both of these services are under the general direction of the Rev. Herbert C. Greenland, associate pastor, with W. Whiting Fredenburgh presiding at the organ.

Shoplifters Are Arrested Here

One Is Said to Be Parole Violator; Both Young

Allen LeRoy Hughes, 17, of 132 Prospect street, and George Bishop, Jr., 17, of 69 Prospect street, accused of shoplifting in the Montgomery Ward store on North Front street, were arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court this morning.

Young Hughes, who is also charged with violation of parole, was turned over to Lawrence Jenson, the county probation officer, for such action as he deemed necessary, while Bishop was placed on probation with orders to report to the probation officer.

Julio Amoros of New York city, charged with public intoxication, had his hearing adjourned to Thursday, while Harry W. Henderson, 51, of Connelly, charged with public intoxication, was given a suspended sentence as it was the first time he had ever been arrested.

William Kaercher of Grandview avenue, charged with double parking on Broadway, forfeited bail he had posted by failing to appear in answer to the charge.

Railroad Service Flag Dedication

The dedication of a service flag for local railroaders will be held Sunday afternoon, December 20, at 2:30 o'clock at the West Shore Railroad station.

According to present plans, local railroad men will meet at the Central Post Office, where they will form and march to the station on Railroad avenue. Efforts are being made to have a band to lead the parade.

The dedication services at the station will feature an address by Mayor William F. Edelmuth.

Mr. Walker Will Officiate

Alexander Walker, Jr., associate administrator for New York state will be master of ceremonies at the War Bonds and Stamps program tonight at the Fessenden Convalescent Home, (formerly Sahler's Sanitarium) Mr. Walker is one of the treasury department's "Dollar a Year" men. Attractive Christmas posters will be given away to all attending who wish them for home or store decoration.

New Yorkers Go Third Day Without News, Read Paper Ragged When One Is Found

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Newsstarved New Yorkers took what steps they could today to keep informed while a newspaper delivery strike kept most of the city's papers out of general circulation for the third day.

The Newspaper and Mail Deliverer's Union and the Publishers Association of New York ended separate all night meetings without effecting a settlement which again would permit delivery of the papers to postoffices, news stands and stores. Representatives of the groups said that further conferences would be held today.

Meantime, a newspaper — today's, yesterday's or even Monday's—was a prized possession, especially among the city's commuting millions on train and subway. The few copies which were discarded were generally retrieved from tras receptacles and read literally ragged. Some riders turned to magazines, some brought books, others perused the car cards with new interest, and still others merely dozed.

There were numerous calls to newspaper and press association offices about specific news developments.

The papers continued to print complete editions, but again curtailed press runs sharply, selling individual copies at their main offices. The Daily News reported 21,000 copies of its Monday and Tuesday editions sold in this manner.

Philadelphia and Newark papers, as well as those from more distant cities, were in heavy demand at news stands, and quickly sold out. In Newark, the Evening News and Morning Star-Ledger suggested their readers caution news dealers to reserve copies as protection against the unusual demand for them, and said extra copies could not be printed because of newsprint shortage.

Circulation of the afternoon daily PM, not a member of the Publishers Association, skyrocketed. Its business manager, Lowell Leake, said the normal press run of around 160,000 was near 600,000 yesterday and was being increased to 700,000 today.

Through yesterday, last night and the early morning, Dr. Fred C. Croxton of the U. S. Conciliation Service, who had been serving with Chairman Arthur S. Meyer of the state mediation board as mediator, carried proposals and counter-proposals between the meetings.

Close of the sessions brought no formal statements.

Meyer had declared last night, however, that "today, for the first time, definite proposals and counter proposals to settle the matter through arbitration have been made, and although no definite solution has yet been reached, progress has been made."

When the meeting of the union men ended, Louis Waldman, counsel for the unaffiliated organization, said:

"We are for arbitration, but we are against delays and procrastination because we know what it means in this industry."

The strike was voted after the two groups failed to agree on terms for a new contract—mainly wages and job security—following months of negotiations.

The papers affected by the strike, all members of the association, are The Times, Herald Tribune, Daily News, Daily Mirror, Journal of Commerce and Wall Street Journals, morning papers, and The Sun, Post, World-Telegram, Journal American, Brooklyn Citizen and Long Island Daily Star-Journal, afternoon. Combined circulation is around 5,000,000.

Not affected are the morning Telegraph, a sports paper, and The Brooklyn Eagle and PM, in the afternoon field. None are members of the publishers organization.

The papers involved have curtailed their press runs greatly. All placed papers on sale at their plants.

The union seeks a 15 per cent wage increase, or about $6.60 a week to lowest paid workers, now receiving $44 weekly. The union contends that this demand is in keeping with the National War Labor Board policy in permitting raises up to 15 per cent over the scale in effect on January 1, 1941. In September, an arbitrator granted the union a $3 weekly wage increase, but the union refused it.

The union also demands job "freezing" for the war's duration and a guarantee against dismissals resulting from gasoline and tire rationing.

The Publishers Association has said in a statement that it "has been willing at all times to submit the pending issues to arbitration."

Saturday Is Deadline

Lists are being completed of those wishing to entertain British seamen at their homes during the holidays. Many of these service men will be stationed in New York at this time and as a gesture of hospitality, communities near the metropolitan section have formed groups who will entertain the sailors either for Christmas Day, week-end or through the holiday week. The lists will be closed Saturday and all persons who desire to participate in this project are urged to have their registrations in not later than that day, by calling the Volunteer Office, 247 Clinton avenue, telephone 1125.

Eire has reduced the gas ration for clergymen in large cities to supply more to those in rural parishes.

Recreations All Set for Dehnert's Detroit Eagles Tonight

Visitors Expected To Give Kingston Toughest Struggle

'Dutch' Dehnert's Aggregation Meets Undefeated Recreations at 9:15; Preliminary Starts at 8:15

Booked as the major attraction of the current season, "Dutch" Dehnert's Detroit Eagles will furnish the opposition to the undefeated Kingston Recreations tonight at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium. Game time for this main attraction is scheduled for 9:15 o'clock.

Preceding the big game there will be a preliminary contest between the Kingston Yankees and the Cubs. This game is scheduled to start at 8:15.

Meeting its toughest opponents of the early season schedule, the local basketball representatives will have one grand opportunity to establish themselves as among the top flight cagers of the country. Dehnert's team is comprised of two veterans of the professional game and the remainder college stars. His reputation to build up a championship combination is widely recognized and this year's squad is expected to equal those of former years.

Manager Karam isn't frightened by the strength of the Eagles, but at the same time he knows his team must be in rare fighting trim if it is going to keep its record intact.

Kingston has been tried and tested and has not been found lacking in power this season and it is expected that tonight the Eagles will discover this strength.

Scoring form should also play an important part as both teams have high scoring records.

All told the game should prove worth while witnessing.

Florida Horsemen Look to Season With Uncertainty

By JOHN WILDS

Miami, Fla., Dec. 16 (AP)—Taking heart from a wartime racing boom in other states, Florida horsemen are looking forward confidently to the opening next Monday of a season still clouded in uncertainty.

The best winter racing talent in the country is on hand and both Miami tracks are determined to go ahead even if they lose money. Still to be answered, however, is the big question:

Can racing thrive in a resort where thousands of soldiers and sailors have taken the place of tourists, and where travel restrictions and gasoline rationing hit home hard?

The test will come in the first part of Tropical Park's split meeting, ending January 12, and President Henry L. Straus said today that he is optimistic over the prospects.

The Army and Navy have taken over most of the beach hotels, usually occupied by winter visitors, but Straus insisted that thousands will find a way to have a Miami vacation—and if they don't:

"I think the normal population of this area is large enough to support racing."

He refused to be worried by the facts that both tracks here are suburban and that Florida is one of the states where the basic gasoline ration is only three gallons a week.

"That's a problem for the racegoers," Straus declared. "We'll give them the best meeting we can, and leave it to them to get to the races by sharing their automobiles or in other ways."

Both Tropical and Hialeah Parks cleared a profit last winter although the impact of the war was felt in attendance and betting.

Since then, there has been a tremendous upsurge in other parts of the country in pari-mutuel wagering—all tracks handling $948,067,552 in bets this year, against $526,277,335 in 1941. Straus is hopeful that factors, such as increased spending powers, will take effect here.

Tropical hedged against possible lean times by cutting the minimum purse to $800 instead of $1,000, but Hialeah held to a $1,200 bottom, although cutting the prizes in the big stake races.

There will be about 1,750 horses in Miami during the winter, about 1,000 of them at Hialeah.

Basketball Bulletin

Higher, More Experienced 'Whiz Kids' Expected to Retain Big Ten Honors

AP Features

Campaign, Ill. — The tall 18- and 19-year-old youngsters, whose sensational play last season brought the University of Illinois its first undisputed Big Ten basketball championship in 27 years, are growing up.

The "Whiz Kids," as they were christened by sports writers as they marched to 13 Conference victories in 15 starts, will average slightly under 6 feet 3½ inches this winter, nearly a full inch per man more than last year.

Andy Phillip, all-Conference guard and spark plug of the 1941-42 five, was the second tallest player on Coach Doug Mills' starting five last season, but at 6 feet 2½, he's the smallest of the current Illini regulars.

Capt. Art Mathisen, center, and the only senior letterman on the squad, stands 6 feet, 5 inches, two inches more than Vic Wukovits, the No. 1 pivot man with whom Mathisen alternated last year. Gene Vance and Jack Smiley, guards, and Ken Menke, forward are 6 feet 3.

ANDY PHILLIP

Phillip and Smiley figure in Mills' lone important lineup change for the 1942-43 campaign. Phillip, who scored 159 points from his guard post to place sixth among Conference scorers as a sophomore, will be moved forward, while Smiley, Illinois' best defensive player, will move from forward to guard.

Loss of Wukovits, whose cool, steady play was a major factor in the success of the Illini last year, was the heaviest blow dealt Illinois by graduation.

Besides the starting five, Ed "Ace" Parker, a 6 foot 3 inch forward whom Mills calls the most improved player on the squad, and Chuck Fowler, a 5 foot 10 inch forward, will be available. Both are juniors.

Lone sophomores likely to break into the first 10 are Oliver Shoaff, forward from Mt. Carmel, and Art Dufelmeier, guard from Beardstown. Both won all-state recognition in 1941.

Because they have a year of experience, including the eastern playoffs of the N.C.A.A. tournament, behind them, Mills expects his Illini to be somewhat improved. Stiffest Conference competition, he believes, will come from Wisconsin, Purdue, Indiana, and Minnesota.

Frankie Sinkwich Brighest Star of All Male Athletes

Ted Williams, Slugging Star of Boston Red Sox, Closest Rival; First Place to Sixteen

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—All-America Frankie Sinkwich, who ran and passed Georgia's football team to the southeastern conference championship and into the Rose Bowl, is the people's choice as the brightest star among all the male athletes of 1942.

Fireball Frankie collected 94 points in the annual Associated Press poll of 69 sports editors, finishing far ahead of his closest rival, the slugging star of Boston's American League baseball club, Ted Williams.

Sixteen athletes drew first-place votes in the wide-open balloting. Sinkwich was named first by only 15 of the voters, but he received 19 second and third-place votes to account for his top-heavy point total, figured on the basis of three for first, two for second and one for third.

Williams, who can qualify for the title of "runner-up champion" for various honors, finished second in the voting for the second straight year. The lanky outfielder, now training with the army air forces, polled a dozen first-place votes but received little support elsewhere and wound up with 55 points.

Last year's winner, Joe Dimaggio of the New York Yankees, was forgotten in the balloting this time. Sinkwich, a member of the marine corps reserve, got 12 votes in the 1941 poll.

Don Hutson, the record-breaking, pass-catching end of the Green Bay professional football club, was third with 42 points, while Johnny Beazley, the rookie hurler who pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to two victories in the world series, came fourth with 38.

Hutson and Beazley received six first-place votes each. Gunder Haegg, the Swedish track star who cracked world records at distances from a mile to 5,000 meters, was voted first on ten ballots, but had a point total of only 37, good for fifth place.

Other stars who placed first on one or more ballots were Ray Robinson, welterweight boxer; Mort Cooper, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher; Cornelius Warmerdam, California pole vaulter; Ben Hogan, professional golfer; Joe Louis, world heavyweight boxing champion and an army sergeant; Greg Rice, middle distance runner; Paul Governali, all-America football player from Columbia; George Kurowski, St. Louis Cardinals' world series hero; Walker Cooper, Cardinal catcher, and Joe Gordon, New York Yankees' second baseman.

The complete voting:

Athlete and Sport	1st	Pts
Frank Sinkwich, football	15	84
Ted Williams, baseball	12	55
Don Hutson, pro football	6	42
John Beazley, baseball	6	38
Gunder Haegg, track	10	37
Ray Robinson, boxing	1	29
Morton Cooper, baseball	6	26
Cornelius Warmerdam, track	6	24
Ben Hogan, golf	1	22
Joe Louis, boxing	3	14
Greg Rice, track	2	8
Paul Governali, football	1	5
Willie Pep, boxing	0	4
Bill Smith, swimming	0	4
George Kurowski, baseball	1	3
Gil Dodds, track	1	3
Walker Cooper, baseball	1	3
Joe Gordon, baseball	1	3

Two points—Ted Lyons, baseball; Robert Falkenberg, tennis; Mel Ott, baseball; Les Steers, track.

One point — Garrard Ramsey, football; Byron Nelson, golf; Angelo Bertelli, football; Ed Dudley, golf; Paul Sarringhaus, football; Don Budge, tennis; Glenn Dobbs, football.

Kentucky Coach Moans Again

(AP) Features

Lexington, Ky.—Squire Adolph Rupp, the combination basketball coach and tiller of the Bluegrass soils, reports a typical basketball story these days at the University of Kentucky.

Whispers Adolph, "it could be worse, but I don't see how."

The natives here in the Bluegrass never give this pre-season prognostigation much thought. "Adolph is up to his old tricks," they inform you.

"Wait and see, he'll have a better team than last season's Southeastern Conference championship five despite the fact that he lost 12 out of 15 players."

For 13 years now, Rupp has been bemoaning his team's chances against "those big boys from those wealthy colleges." But figures never have been known to lie.

Since the Southeastern Conference was formed nine years ago, Kentucky has returned home champions six times, runners-up twice, and out of the money only once, and that's pretty fair basketball, considering Adolph's "poor little mountain boys."

What kind of competition does Kentucky face? "Toughest schedule in America," Adolph replys.

"Indiana, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Great Lakes, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia Tech and that's just part of the schedule," Adolph commented.

As for the personnel of this season's quintet, Rupp has three lettermen back in Marv Akers, a guard whom last season received All-American considerations, Mel Brewer, second string Southeastern Conference center, and Milt Ticco, an erratic but resourceful forward.

ADOLPH RUPP
Tells Sad Story

From seven reserves, Adolph will have to select his other two starters. Bill Barlowe, Kenneth Rollins or Clyde Parker could be the other guard to work along with Akers. They're all well over six feet.

The other starting forward to work with Ticco will be chosen from either Mulford Davis or a freshman by the name of Paul Noel.

"This will be the best season in the history of basketball," the squire concluded, meaning that it will be another good season for Kentucky's Wildcats, and a poor season for their opponents.

Whirlaway Is Named Best Horse of This Year

One-Sided Vote of Turf Writers Represented All Parts of Country, Other Selections Noted

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Ending an argument that has been bouncing around racing circles for months, Whirlaway today was named the "best horse of this year" by a one-sided vote of turf writers representing all parts of the country.

A total of 128 writers balloted in the Turf and Sports Digest's annual poll of the top gallopers in all divisions, and 76 of them picked Little Mr. Big Tail to hang onto the honor for the second straight season. Only 45 voted for Al Sabaths Alsab, the Chicago express who had been expected to give Whirly a much closer fight than that.

Settling the other title disputes, the writers picked Alsab over Mrs. Payne Whitney's shut out as 1942's three-year-old boss, and Mrs. John D. Hertz's rapid-running Count Fleet, advancing favorite for next spring's Kentucky Derby, as the best of the two-year colts, by a comparatively close margin over John Marsch's mid-west ace, occupation.

Hal Price Headley's Askmenow, top money-winner of the year in her division, with a total of $39,610, was tabbed queen of the two-year old fillies, and, of course, Whirlaway was a cake-walk in the balloting for the champion handicap campaigner in the four year-old-and-up set.

In taking the horse of the year crown, Whirly became the second horse to win it twice in a row in the several years of the Turf and Sport Digest poll. Before the world's leading money winner, the only repeater was big, husky Challedon, who had a two-year run in 1939 and '40.

In picking Warren Wright's Whizz-bang, the writers apparently decided in favor of Whirly's all-around record of becoming the first half-million dollar money winner in turf history, of rounding out three years without the slightest trace of pain or ache indicating unsoundness and of completing his second straight year without finishing out the money in any race.

Alsab's Record

The ARIsab cheering and Chowder Society, meantime, pointed to its hero's performance in knocking off Whirlaway two-out-of-three times this year. For the year, Whirly won 12 of 22 starts and added $211,250 to his bankroll, thereby boosting his total earnings to a gaudy $561.911. Alsab came waltzing home in nine out of 23 outings and, with more chances at bigger purses than the little four-year old flier from Kentucky, grabbed off $234,565 for the year. But Alsab finished out of the money four times and had to be laid up for repairs part of the year.

In the three-year old contest, in which votes are added up a bit differently, Alsab knocked off Shut Out, 348 points to 272. In the age divisions, the writers picked their one-two-three choices, and the Turf and Sport Digest awarded three points for a first-place selection, two for second and one for third.

Last spring, Shut Out pinned it on Alsab in the derby and Belmont, while Sabath's pride and Joy took the Preakness. But the Son of Equipose went "sour" during the fall campaigning and the "Sab" came along to mop up several of the late fixtures.

Third place in this balloting went to William Woodward's tall filly, Vagrancy, the best of the three-year old "Queens." She polled 57 points.

Count Fleet, who hit his peak this fall and turned in a 1:34 4/5 mile for a world record for a two-year-old, drew 331 points in the selection for the best of the juveniles. Occupation, winner of nine races and $192,355, had 275, and Devil's Thumb, the fast galloper was retired for the year after winning five straight stakes at Saratoga in August.

Askmenow took the two-year old filly crown with 272 points to 170 for Joseph E. Widener's Fair Weather.

Declares Two Dividends

Richmond, Va., Dec. 15 (ANS)—The board of directors of Southern States Cooperative has declared semi-annual dividends of 3 per cent and 2½ per cent on two issues of its outstanding preferred stock, the dividends payable December 31, B. G. Locher of Glasgow, Va., president of the cooperative, has announced.

All officers and three directors, whose terms expire this year, were re-elected.

Santa Claus at Ward's; to Visit With Children

The children of Kingston and Ulster county will be delighted to learn that Santa Claus has paid a surprise visit to the large Montgomery Ward store at Kingston. He brought with him a huge pack just filled with toys and gifts of all kinds for old and young.

The heavy demand on Ward's toy and gift departments had somewhat depleted the stock, and a hurried telegram to Santa Claus land was relayed to jolly old Nick himself. He not only responded with a fine assortment to replenish the stock, but also announced that he would remain at the store to visit with the youngsters until Christmas Eve.

So now Wards is equipped to supply all requirements demanded of them by the agents of Santa Claus and Santa himself is right in the store to help in various ways in suggesting what would be just the right article for Junior's present for Christmas.

Ulster-Greene Council Gives Annual Report; Debt Free

Reports submitted at the annual meeting of the Ulster-Greene Council held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday night show the Council to be out of debt and in a good condition financially, but that although there are 53 troops enrolled, with a membership of 1,050 scouts, this represents instead of a growth a net loss of two troops over the preceding year and a small drop in membership.

The reports of both President Henry W. Keator and Scout Executive Douglas A. Dye refer to this failure to move ahead in the matter of membership and both ascribe it primarily to the same cause—the attempt to run a scout organization of the scope of the Ulster-Greene Council, spread over such an area, with a one-man executive staff.

Thus President Keator says of the loss in membership, that it is due "I believe, primarily, to the fact that our Council has reached the limit of its growth unless the scout executive staff can be enlarged."

Scout Executive Dye, referring to Dr. Keator's statement, says: "This is not a need just apparent this year, but one that the Council has hoped to meet for the past two or three years." He adds, "our membership record for 1942 shows that a one-man executive staff cannot do the job for the Ulster-Greene Council." He sees a field scout executive as "the greatest need as we look forward to 1943."

President Keator's Report

Dr. Henry W. Keator, who has served the Council with great faithfulness and enthusiasm as president for several years and who has had much to do with relieving it of its burden of debt, gave the following report:

The growth of the Ulster-Greene Council during the past year has not kept pace with that of the preceeding year. While we added 5 troops during 1942, making a total of 53, we have not been able to reach our goal of 56 troops set for 1942, the number remaining at 53. Scout membership has dropped correspondingly from 1,089 to 1,050. The situation is due to loss from lapsed troops and loss of leadership, many of our scoutmasters and assistant scoutmasters having gone into the service, and I believe primarily to the fact that our council has reached the limit of its growth unless the scout executive staff can be enlarged. It is the intention of the executive board to add a field executive to the staff if the results of the finance drive now on permit. May I repeat my statement of last year that we are not yet reaching two out of every four of the 3,500 boys in the Ulster-Greene area. Dropped boys is still our problem.

Cubbing is making more rapid progress than scouting. We have three packs with 86 cubs as compared with one pack with 47 cubs last annual report, and cubs are of course, the material from which we expect to recruit future scouts.

Our debt has been liquidated, and we feel that our feet are on much firmer ground financially. While the returns from our recent finance campaign are not yet complete, indications are that we will not be too much behind last year's total.

Improvements have been made at Camp Half Moon, and the season was successful, but if we are to make our camp permanently attractive for the boys, the facilities for water sports must be materially improved. This year needy boys were given the privilege of a free week at camp.

Our most urgent need is sponsorship and leadership, and to this end more leaders training classes should be organized.

Scouts are, and have been doing a grand job in national defense work, so much so that their activities have elicited warm commendation from our government officials. They are nobly and unselfishly doing their part in the preservation of America for democracy.

We have recently lost our scout executive, R. Gardner Burns, who did such splendid work during his four years in this council. While we regret his going, we congratulate him on his well merited promotion in the field of scouting. I ask you to give Douglas A. Dye, his successor who has just come to us, the same loyalty and co-operation that you gave Mr. Burns.

While I am retiring from the office of president because of other arduous duties, my heart is still in the movement, and my interest in the council and its boys shall not cease, and I want to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to my co-workers for the co-operation, encouragement, and helpful suggestions that they have given me.

Yours for better scouting,
HENRY W. KEATOR,
President.

A further report, bringing the statement up to December 1, shows receipts during November of $3654.18. These include contributions of $3382.92.

Disbursements for November totaled $1522.40. Included in these were: Awards $24.87; campaign costs $229.75; old debt payment $200.

There was a balance on hand December 1 of $2131.78 and accounts receivable of $1405.75, which includes $1246.70 of 1942-43 pledges.

Organization and Extension

From the statistical report of the committee on organization and extension, covering 1942, the following facts are taken:

No. Troops on December 8, 1942, 53 as against 55 in 1941

No. Scouts 1050 compared with 1070 year ago.

There are 86 Cub scouts as against 60 last year.

Standing of the various districts in the Council, showing present number of Troops, scouts added and scouts dropped during the year and present scout membership:

	No. Troops	Scouts Added	Scouts dropped	No. Scouts
Northern	8	66	48	156
Mountain	5	13	30	91
Western	3	7	29	36
Saugerties	8	61	57	102
Kingston	16	131	135	414
Southern	7	52	46	130
Rondout Valley	6	47	52	121

During the year new troops were organized at New Baltimore, Sea Scout Ship at Catskill, Malden-on-Hudson, Saugerties, Rosendale and a Cub Pack at Marlborough.

Offsetting these troops were dropped at Phoenicia, Wittenberg, West Saugerties, Catskill (47), Ulster Heights, Maplecrest and Napanoch.

In addition Troop 74 at New Paltz, 75 at Gardiner and 46 at Catskill are listed as "lapsed and inactive."

Charles E. Davis, chairman of the committee, says: "A year ago this organization set an objective which they had full confidence of reaching. As we all know since December 7, 1941, we have had many things occur which interfered with any plans that we might have made, and Scouting was no exception. At a time when we found a greater need for Scouting we have also encountered many more obstacles to overcome. You probably all realize the great loss in leadership that we have suffered and the difficulties to maintain a close association with the Scouters due to gasoline rationing. This does not mean that we should accept the situation as being inevitable and relax our effort to achieve the progress which we have enjoyed for the past four or five years, but rather that we have to make new plans to overcome these handicaps. These new plans will be unfolded during 1943 as the year progresses.

"We are again taking as our goal for 1943 the same figures that we had set for 1942. In view of the handicaps we have mentioned we do not feel justified in setting a higher quota. However since we do realize what we are up against we entertain a real hope of accomplishing this."

Camping and Activities

Fred S. Van Voorhis, chairman of this committee, reports that 112 different scouts attended camp last summer, compared with 129 in 1941; No. of troops was the same, 30; there were 169 boy-week units as against 249 year before. Rationing of gasoline and unfavorable swimming conditions at camp are primarily blamed for the reduced attendance this year.

The building of a permanent dam at camp is seen necessary to secure satisfactory swimming arrangements and to do this, title to the south side of the stream must be secured. If this cannot be done the committee favors continuance of camping on a temporary basis at the present site or some other site until the council can secure a permanent site with full title to property.

At the sixth annual camporee held in Forsyth Park 600 scouts and leaders attended. Due to gasoline rationing it may be necessary to hold district camporees this coming year.

There is given a long list of activities in which scout troops participated in 1942, including collection of scrap, distribution of posters for the Red Cross, TB Association, U. S. O. and helping in similar causes.

Leadership Training

For the leadership training committee, Dr. H. W. Keator reported that the training program did not realize the goals set up for 1942. In the Kingston district four leaders and 27 scouts completed the emergency service training course and were awarded certificates. Cub leaders training was given for the first time and five Den Mothers completed the training course. He sees it as necessary to offer training courses on a district basis.

Health and Safety

Dr. John B. Krom reported that policies for health and safety of scouts had been continued and strengthened during 1942. These included physical examination of every boy as he joins a troop and examination of scouts prior to going to camp.

Advancement Committee

B. C. Van Ingen, chairman of the committee on advancement, reported courts of honor held as follows: Kingston and Saugerties districts, three courts in each; Rondout, Western and Northern, two courts each; Mountain and Southern, one each, with two courts at Camp Half Moon.

Ten courts were held by troops during the year, with the approval of the council.

He says that "In comparing the awards for 1942 with 1941 we notice an increase of approximately 29 per cent in the tenderfoot class, but a loss in all the other ranks except Life.

The council made the following awards during the year:

Tenderfoot, 331; Second Class, 155; First Class 68; Star Rank, 54; Life Rank, 36; Eagle Rank, 15; Eagle Palms, 29; Merit Badges, 1033; Air Scout Candidate, 13; Apprentice Air Scout 6.

Scout Executive's Report

Reports concluded with that of Scout Executive Douglas A. Dye, who said:

Since November 1, I have had the pleasure of serving as the scout executive of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America. My report of these few weeks is that they have been spent in getting acquainted and helping communities finish up on their finance campaigns.

I have been impressed by the high esteem which you all hold for my predecessor, R. G. Burns. My hope is that I can carry on the work from where he ended when he went to serve as the Scout Executive of the Louis Agassiz Fuertes Council at Ithaca, N. Y.

The preceding reports of our President, Dr. H. W. Keator, and the chairmen of the council operating committees give a clear picture of our council. As in most councils throughout the United States much has been accomplished, but there is much yet to be done. The accomplishments fill us all with pride and satisfaction which is the reward of good work. That which remains to be done fills us with concern. It is this concern that must serve as our incentive to forge ahead.

The organization and extension report shows that we are not quite up to where we were last year. We started 1942 with 53 troops and during the year we organized five new troops but dropped seven. At present we have 53 troops showing a net loss of two. We also have three troops which are lapsed and inactive and will probably have to be dropped at the end of the year.

In the President's report the need for a field scout executive is stressed. This is not a need just apparent this year, but one that the council has hoped to meet for the past two or three years. Now that the council has retired all of its debt we must meet this need for sufficient executive staff.

Our membership record for 1942 shows that a one-man executive staff cannot do the job for the Ulster-Greene Council. This is all the more apparent when we consider the tremendous turnover in scoutmasters and other scouters due to military service and war work.

Therefore if the council is not to regress further and also to do what is expected in general by the Boy Scouts of America in the war effort we must have the services of a field scout executive. This is our greatest need and we look forward to 1943. If we meet this need we can once again look forward to a steady and continual rate of progress. It will mean more troops and many more boys reached for character-building and citizenship training through the Boy Scout program.

Position of Allies Considered Good

tensity. He couldn't even use airpower to give anything approaching an adequate answer to powerful British and American bombing attacks against occupied European territory and Germany.

I was in London five weeks during that period and not once did a Boche airplane reach the city.

Then, General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the British eighth army, and allied forces including strong American air units lashed out unexpectedly at Rommel. The Nazi marshal was caught napping and outgeneraled. His defenses cracked and there began one of the greatest routs of the whole war.

The allied surprise attack on Tunisia which followed placed Axis forces in the jaws of a potential trap. Meantime, British and American air fleets continued to strike heavily at vital Axis industries and communications. There was an intensification of bombing in the Mediterranean area to frustrate Hitler's efforts to send aid to his Africa corps.

Thus we find the Fuehrer engaged on all fronts and each allied operation supplements the others. He is in the unhappy position at the moment of being unable to meet any one of them adequately. He dare not shift much of his weight because that would give his enemy on a weakened front a chance to profit.

As things stand, the Nazi chief's greatest immediate concern must lie in North Africa, since he probably figures he can hold the Russian line for the time. Should he be thrown out of Africa, however, it would immeasurably speed the end which already is dogging the heels of another world beater's ambitions. The best he could do would be to dig himself in on the continent and sell his life—or rather the lives of his unfortunate followers—as dearly as possible.

This being so, War Secretary Henry L. Stimson's statement that operations in Tunisia are a month ahead of schedule, although a start has only just been made, comes at a particularly opportune moment in this part of the world. The secretary's unemotional, straightforward account of the situation has received wide publicity and will afford encouragement to a public which has lacked information as to exactly how the Tunisian show was going.

Just as Stimson indicated that progress in Tunisia depends heavily on acquirement of air superiority there by the allies, so it can be said that the entire Mediterranean conflict pivots largely on air power. Happily for the allies, they have definite superiority in the Libyan end of the North African battle.

Bombardment of Axis communications, including harbors such as Naples, is one of the greatest services that the allied air forces can perform at this juncture and they are doing magnificent work. Hitler is dependent on his air and water communications to reinforce his armies in Africa and he is having a sticky job. So long as the allies can keep those lines crippled, the Nazi chief must fight a losing battle.

The African conflict is, in its essence, one of transport and the allies are increasingly exploiting the fact that the best place to catch transport and supplies is at the source.

Fourteen Men Fail In Physical Exam

Officer Sammons Is One; Inductees Leave Tuesday

It was unofficially reported today that 14 men in the contingent of 65 men who left for an army induction center in Albany on Tuesday morning, failed to pass the physical tests, and that four of the group were kept over until today to undergo further physical tests.

Among the 14 men rejected was Policeman Frank E. Sammons of the Kingston police department, who resumed his duties as a patrolman today.

The men who passed the physical tests yesterday were inducted into the U. S. Army, and will leave Kingston for training camp on Tuesday, December 22.

It is not expected that any more men will be called up for physical tests this year. The number of men in the January quota is not known as yet.

Essential Driving

Failure to keep this country on rubber for essential driving "would be equal to a military disaster" Rubber Director William M. Jeffers recently told members of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

R. L. Sahm Becomes New West Shore Trainmaster

New York Ceintral headquarters announced today that R. L. Sahm of Batavia, has taken over the position of trainmaster of the River Division (West Shore Railroad) of the New York Central System. Trainmaster Sahm replaces Captain Stephen J. Keating, who has been called to active duty with the engineer corps of the United States Army.

At Batavia, Mr. Sahm held the position of Supervisor of Track, and previous to this the new trainmaster has held various positions in the Maintenance of Way Department of the New York Central System at Jersey Shore, Pa., Newburgh, Beacon, Buffalo and Clearfield, Pa.

NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given, that in pursuance of the powers vested in me by law, I shall on Wednesday, December 30, 1942, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the Court House in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, commence selling at public auction so much of each of the said several and respective lots, tracts, pieces or parcels of land, as shall be sufficient to pay all State, County, Highway, School or other taxes assessed thereon in the year 1937 and also upon certain lands in the years 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930, that may then remain due on such Decree, respectively together with the interests, costs and charges which have arisen or accrued or that may arise or accrue thereon, and shall sell, and continue from day to day to sell, until the said sale shall be completed. The purchaser at such sale shall pay the amount of their respective bids to the County Treasurer within forty-eight hours after the last day of the sale and receive certificates describing the lands purchased, the sums paid, and the time when the purchaser will be entitled to deeds and after the expiration of one year from the last day of such sale, they shall be entitled to receive conveyances of the lands so purchased by them, respectively or their agents may purchase the lands provided by law unless said lands shall have been previously redeemed pursuant to law, by payment to the County Treasurer, for the use of the purchaser, his heirs or assigns, the sum mentioned in the certificate, with interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the date of such certificate and any tax which the holder of such certificate shall have paid between the days of sale and redemption together with the costs of the expenses of the publication of notices to redeem the real estate sold or unpatented to the County Treasurer to the year 1936 for unpaid taxes, as apportioned by the County Treasurer to the real estate so redeemed.

C. A. LEONE,
County Treasurer.

CUBAN LEADER AT AIRACOBRA CONTROLS

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Kalamazoo Choo Choo

Kalamazoo, Mich. — When the Kalamazoo Stove Co.'s boiler blew out officials borrowed a Michigan Central locomotive, parked it on a siding and pumped steam from its boilers into the heating system of the plant until the building was warm enough for employees to resume their war work.

Hi Yu, Boss!

Philadelphia — Ernest Parnell, hit by an automobile, didn't have to call his office to explain why he didn't report for work. He found his boss, Henry Smedley, in a hospital room adjoining his. Smedley had just stumbled and injured his hip.

Strong Bait

Petersburg, Ind. — In granting eight duplicate gasoline rationing stamps to Barney Elkins, filling station proprietor, local rationing officials considered as evidence of necessity a dead mouse, a mousetrap and a partly destroyed gasoline stamp.

Cheese failed to lure the mouse, which had eaten seven stamps, Elkins explained, so he used the eighth stamp as bait.

Rubber Trouble

Boise, Ida.—Think of the rubber situation and spare a tear for Fire Chief Frank Pulaski. His men, fighting a fire across the railroad tracks, uncoiled 1,650 feet of hose. While they weren't looking, a train swiped the precious rubber tubing into three pieces.

Wrong Address

Denver—Arrested on a federal charge of defacing currency, a 50-year-old man explained he wrote Biblical quotations on dollar bills, hoping they would fall into the hands of criminals and reform them.

Secret Service agents were at a loss to explain why some of the bills were mailed to them.

Judicial Advice

Spokane, Wash.—It may be unethical for a wife to go through her husband's pockets while he sleeps, but if he buries his cash in the ground—that's different.

"You should have dug it up," scolded Judge E. W. Greenough, after a woman testified her husband was handy with a spade. "You were entitled to half of it."

Private Affair

Topeka, Kas.—A man called police and said there was a fight next door.

Officers Charles Connell and Frank Scott responded. Her eye blackened, the woman who answered the door sent them away.

"He's my husband," she scowled, "and if he wants to beat me that's my business!"

Stamps IN THE NEWS

By the AP Feature Service

Apparently the scarcity in dealers' supplies of new foreign stamps, caused by censorship, is to continue for some time. If it were not for letter mail, dealers in the United States would be without any copies at all of many recent issues.

Only stamps salvaged from letters are available in the new Venezuelan values of 1 bolivar plum, 5-centimes dark green and 10-centimes scarlet. These stamps have the design showing a statue of Simon Bolivar used in previous issues.

There are limited supplies of the long-awaited Curacao airmails, issued on Oct. 20. These

Eye Exercises Are Means by Which 34 Men Pass Tests

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

State College, Pa., Dec. 15—Eye exercises have enabled 34 once-rejected young men at the Pennsylvania State College to pass army, navy or air force vision tests. The exercises re-educated the brain in how to see.

These results were announced today. About 100 more men are now being trained, and there is a waiting list of still another hundred.

Dr. Emett A. Betts, director of the reading clinic conducts the seeing exercises. His work is based on the fact that the brain has the major role in seeing. Even perfectly sound eyes sometimes fail to see well, because the gray matter is not doing its share properly. For example, persons with hysteria are sometimes temporarily blind although their eyes are perfect. On the retina of the eye, everything is focussed upside down in normal vision. But the brain interprets these inverted images correctly.

Dr. Betts works on the belief that poor brain patterns of seeing are a widespread cause of faulty vision. He says that many cases of headache, eye ache, blurred vision, tears and burning sensation in the eyes are the result of the brain's failure to co-ordinate and control the eyes properly.

In the 34 military cases, examinations of each eye separately showed that each eye was structually sound, and the muscles were normal.

The exercises include rotating one eye at a time; reading alternately with each eye while the mind sees only one page of print. Monocular or one-eyed training is followed by binocular or two-eyed training to complete the change in the brain pattern to insure efficient seeing.

Even with these exercises, structurally imperfect eyes do not attain normal vision. But under Dr. Betts' system imperfect eyes have improved. Cases of paralysis have been helped.

A wide range of defects have been corrected. These include lowered visual acuity (lack of clearness of image), faulty ocular motility (inability to move one or both eyes easily and accurately), faulty fixation (inability to shift the gaze from one point to another without momentarily seeing double), Faulty near-point of convergence (inability to follow a light with both eyes from a distant point to within three inches of the bridges of the nose) and inability to maintain efficient binocular vision with comfort.

Telephone Company Has 125 Buildings Converted

Additional conversions from oil to coal in the heating units in 85 telephone buildings in New York state by the New York Telephone Company will bring the total to 125 buildings. The annual saving in fuel oil of the combined program will be 4,430,000 gallons or 77 per cent of the company's 1941 fuel oil usage. This will release an amount of fuel oil sufficient, under the oil rationing regulations, for 3,000 average-sized homes, it is estimated.

The additional conversions are an extension of the program begun last summer in connection with the War Production Board's fuel oil conservation plans. The work has been completed in 65 buildings including 23 of the largest in New York and it is expected that many of the other buildings will be converted before the first of the year. The change to coal is being made in every building where it is practicable to do so, the company says.

Latin American Foods to Come via Pan-Am Highway

Kansas City, Dec. 16 (AP)—Dr. Logan Clendening, physician-author who once attacked a W. P. A. project with an axe, has two ideas about what America is going to eat.

Mamey, sapodilla, ceriman, papaya, soursop, star apple or guava may appear on your table about the time coffee returns, the doctor predicts.

These foods grow mostly on trees in Central and South America, and they're very tasty despite the odd names, he said.

"We're going to have to rearrange our food habits and forget some of our food prejudices," he explains. And the South American foods may come north—along with more coffee and bananas—because the Pan-American highway will be completed to Panama by next June.

David D. Duncan, representing Nelson Rockefeller, coordinator of inter-American affairs, dropped in the other day to announce that fact, and he added that the new road doubtless will help solve the coffee and food transportation problem.

Dr. Clendening listened with more than usual interest because he grimaced, "drinking tea is like kissing your sister."

Clendening, bulky, mustached, 58-year-old medical school faculty member and physician who found much of his effort shunted into literature after "I unfortunately wrote a book one time," achieved the national front pages in 1939.

An air hammer had been pounding paving outside his study window for months, as part of a W. P. A. sewer project. Finally, he smashed the mechanism while workers fled. There was quite a hubbub about it. And policemen came. Dr. Clendening paid $50 fine for disturbing the peace.

His second idea about America's diet:

"For breakfast, you sit down and there'll be a little package—a lamb chop. Another tiny page — an orange. Another — cereal. Then a bowl of water in which you dip each dehydrated food—and wait a minute.

"Then you can mix white, odorless, tasteless vitamin powders in jellies or jams, and have a complete diet. It's already being done to some extent with dehydrated foods shipped to England."

Such a synthetic diet will supply everything we need, he said, except—"I don't know what in the world we'll do for bulk. Why, heavens! By 1960 it will take all the cascara in the state of California—"

Advent Service

The last in a series of mid-week Advent services will be held at Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The Rev. E. L. Witte will preach on the theme, "Jesus and the Ancient Leader Moses." Next week on Christmas Eve, the children of the church will present the pageant, "The King of Glory."

Guard Officers Attend Luncheon

Major Preston Asks Local Men Join Unit

Kingston men who are at present draft exempt, especially those in the 3-A classification, were urged to join the local unit of the State Guard by Major Carlton O. Preston and other officers who were guests yesterday at the regular weekly meeting of the Kingston Lions Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Major Preston, commanding officer of the local company of the 56th Regiment, said that there are vacancies at present for which between 30 and 40 volunteers are needed to bring the unit up to full strength.

Comparing the present State Guard to the National Guard units which were federalized two years ago, Major Preston disclosed that some of the Kingston National Guard members are now serving in Alaska. As a result of the National Guard training they received here, many have risen high in Army ranks, he said.

Membership in the State Guard now offers the same type of training to men who are not now in the Army but who may be drafted, but the guard needs especially the voluntary services of those who are classified as 3-A or who are otherwise deferred, Major Preston declared. These men, of course, would become permanent members of the local State Guard company and would give the guard permanent replacements for those who already have been drafted or who have been forced to resign because they have moved elsewhere.

Major Preston defended the record of his State Guard company, declaring, "Give me one hour's time . . . and I'd have 25 to 30 men available for duty at any specified point. We're doing a good job."

In addition to Major Preston, other officers of the First Battalion, 56th Regiment, who were guests of the Lions Club, included Lieutenants Jerry Martin, Roland Green, J. H. Tremper, Harry Rigby and John Melville. Following the commanding officer's address, Lieut. Tremper discussed briefly the use of gas in modern warfare and the way in which State Guard members are taught to combat gas, and Lieut. Rigby explained the different types of arms with which the local unit is equipped.

HOME BUREAU

Hurley Unit

The Home Bureau of Hurley met at the school, Thursday, December 10, for a lesson on Christmas decorations with Mrs. Adams of Lomonlville as leader. There were seven members present and four guests. The next meeting will be, January 28, 1943, at the home of Mrs. Catherine Clearwater.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, Dec. 16—Mrs. Emma Carpenter, president of the Ulster County W.C.T.U., entertained members of the Plattekill unit at her home recently. Christmas gifts were sent to Marines on Fire Island by the group and reports of other activities made by Mrs. Thomas Masterjohn.

The Busy Bee Society of the Rossville Methodist Church, associate of Plattekill, met at Mrs. Samuel Dransfield's for the December meeting, when plans were discussed for the Chrisitmas party to be held Monday evening in the parsonage at Plattekill. Attending the meeting were the Rev. and Mrs. Leo Benjamin, Mrs. Willet Deyo, Mrs. George Decker, Mrs. Elvin Pressler, Mrs. Herman Cook, Mrs. J. Clifford Roe, Mrs. Frank Lozier, Mrs. Benjamin Fergueson.

Mrs. Matilda Waite left town for Washington, D. C., last week, where she will spend the winter months with her daughter, Mrs. Wilmer Hill, and family.

Lieut. Donald Baxter of Camp Hope, Texas, is spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Baxter. Augustus Baxter is a veteran of the World War.

Mrs. Myron Bloomer of Middle Hope recently visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood.

Mrs. Myron Coons, Miss Mary Anderson and Miss Elizabeth Fosler attended the Home Bureau meeting held in Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, Modena, on Wednesday.

Ignatz Staszewski, employed on the farm of Mrs. M. Augusta Johnston during the past 14 years, cut his foot with an axe so badly that it was necessary to amputate one of his toes at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh.

Frank Gerow was a caller in New Paltz last week.

Mrs. Jacob DePew, Mrs. Frank DePew attended a stork shower given to Mrs. Thorolf Hagen, a former resident of this section, at the home of her mother, Mrs. William DePew, near New Hurley, recently.

The Plattekill Service League met Tuesday afternoon in the auditorium of the Plattekill school when a good attendance was reported.

St. James Gives Pageant

A pageant, "The Nativity," by Margaret I. Snyder, will be given Sunday evening, 7:30 p. m., by the Epworth League of St. James Church in the church auditorium. The pageant will be given with music and the characters include a choir of 16 girls, the Angel of the Lord, the prolocutor, the Holy Family, six shepherds and three kings. There will be a free will offering during the service to help defray expenses. The public is invited.

Mexico will camouflage all its airports and aviation landing fields.

Nazi Mystery Man

AP Features

Into the murky picture of Germany now steps a genuine mystery man—General Kurt Zeitzler, comparative unknown, new army chief of staff.

Unlisted in any standard German reference book, Zeitzler is 47, stocky, a personal friend of dreaded Gestapo Chief Henrich Himmler. He was born in Luckau, volunteered in World War I and served as lieutenant, entered this war as a colonel and was appointed chief of staff of Field Marshal Ewald Von Kleist's first panzer army. He became a major general early this year, and—as Hitler discarded older chieftains—moved up to lieutenant general, then full general.

Zeitzler is said to have prepared plans for the Nazi drive into the Caucasus, now stalled at Mozdok. Recently he was attached to Hitler's headquarters, representing his buddy Himmler.

Why Zeitzler was given his new, important job is speculative. But three reasons, none military, are said to be behind it: He is a "ja" man to Der Fuehrer; a fervent Nazi; unlinked to the Junkers reportedly feuding with Hitler.

Since Australia rationed travel, stories of railway stowaways are rife.

Freeman Photo

Codwise Is Elected Council President

Ulster-Greene Boy Scout Meeting Chooses Former City Engineer

G. Wallace Codwise, former Kingston city engineer, was elected president of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the annual meeting held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday night.

Mr. Codwise, who has been active in the work of the council for a number of years, thanked the members for the confidence reposed in him. He said that he appreciated the importance of the work, the responsibility of the office he was assuming and with the cooperation of all the members of the council looked forward to a successful year.

Dr. Henry W. Keator, who presided at the annual meeting, retires after serving four years as head of the organization. During his term, and to a great degree through his efforts, the large debt which had been hanging over the council was cleared off. At the annual meeting last year his faithfulness and interest were recognized when he was awarded the Silver Beaver, highest award the council can bestow.

The Silver Beaver award this year was bestowed upon Charles H. Weidner of West Shokan, who has been active in scout work for over 30 years, having served as a scoutmaster in 1911. The award came as a complete surprise and he was so overcome that he found difficulty in expressing his appreciation of the honor. "I don't think I have done anything to merit exceptional reward," he said.

The presentation was made by Scout Commissioner Sidney K. Clapp, himself a holder of the Silver Beaver. Mr. Clapp said that this was one of those occasions which once in a while give an opportunity to show an individual how much the work he has done is appreciated.

He referred to Mr. Weidner's long experience in scouting, his interest in the work since its inception and as one who had "come up through the ranks." He told of Mr. Weidner's activity in his own community, a successful business man, active not only in scout matters, but in his church, the welfare of the school and in community interests generally.

Four of the seven districts of the council were represented in brief reports as follows: Kingston—the Rev. A. S. Cole; Northern—Dr. Maurice Hammond of Catskill; Saugerties—Frank W. Mason of Saugerties; Southern—H. Karl Ernst of Milton.

Dr. Keator reported that the budget for 1943 had been set at $7,165 as against $7,370 in 1942. The finance campaign is not yet completed in some communities, but receipts to date are $6,651.20. The doctor said that it would be necessary to raise in all about $2,000 more in order to make possible the employment of a field executive.

Officers and Executive Board Members

Chairman George B. Matthews of the nominating committee submitted the following list of officers for 1943, which was unanimously approved:

President, G. Wallace Codwise, Kingston; Vice Presidents: C. D. Raymond, Ellenville; George W. Osborn, Windham; Dr. Maurice Hammond, Catskill; Frank W. Mason, Saugerties; Treasurer, Dr. Henry W. Keator, Kingston; Scout Commissioner, Sidney K. Clapp, Kingston.

The following district chairman, committee heads, etc., were approved:

Kingston District—Dr. A. S. Cole, Kingston, chairman; Harry Haiverson, Kingston, representative.

Mountain District—John Aston, Hunter, chairman; George W. Osborn, Windham, representative.

Northern District—John A. Lederar, Catskill, chairman; Dr. Maurice Hammond, Catskill, representative.

Preston and His Aides To Be Kiwanis Guests

Major Carlton Preston, commander of the 1st Battalion, Lieut. Jacob Tremper of Headquarters Co., and officers of Company B, 56th Regiment, New York Guard, will be guests of Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday.

The scope of military training of the guard, relationship of the Kingston companies to local defense and armament of the units will be discussed and there will be an exhibit of specialized equipment and weapons by officers of Co. B.

The fact that some former members of the guard who have been inducted into federal service have qualified for non-commissioned officer ratings within an unusually short time after joining the army stresses the value of the training given at the local armory.

Arrives for Visit

Tech. Sgt. Spencer C. Ennist, Jr., son of Spencer C. Ennist, Lucas avenue, arrived in town last night for a few days. He is stationed at Paine Airfield, Everett, Wash.

Recreations All Set for Dehnert's Detroit Eagles Tonight

Visitors Expected To Give Kingston Toughest Struggle

'Dutch' Dehnert's Aggregation Meets Undefeated Recreations at 9:15; Preliminary Starts at 8:15

Booked as the major attraction of the current season, "Dutch" Dehnert's Detroit Eagles will furnish the opposition to the undefeated Kingston Recreations tonight at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium. Game time for this main attraction is scheduled for 9:15 o'clock.

Preceding the big game there will be a preliminary contest between the Kingston Yankees and the Cubs. This game is scheduled to start at 8:15.

Meeting its toughest opponents of the early season schedule, the local basketball representatives will have one grand opportunity to establish themselves as among the top flight cagers of the country. Dehnert's team is comprised of two veterans of the professional game and the remainder college stars. His reputation to build up a championship combination is widely recognized and this year's squad is expected to equal those of former years.

Manager Karam isn't frightened by the strength of the Eagles, but at the same time he knows his team must be in rare fighting trim if it is going to keep its record intact.

Kingston has been tried and tested and has not been found lacking in power this season and it is expected that tonight the Eagles will discover this strength.

Scoring form should also play an important part as both teams have high scoring records.

All told the game should prove worth while witnessing.

By JOHN WILDS

Miami, Fla., Dec. 16 (AP)—Taking heart from a wartime racing boom in other states, Florida horsemen are looking forward confidently to the opening next Monday of a season still clouded in uncertainty.

The best winter racing talent in the country is on hand and both Miami tracks are determined to go ahead even if they lose money. Still to be answered, however, is the big question:

Can racing thrive in a resort where thousands of soldiers and sailors have taken the place of tourists, and where travel restrictions and gasoline rationing hit home hard?

The test will come in the first part of Tropical Park's split meeting, ending January 12, and President Henry L. Straus said today that he is optimistic over the prospects.

The Army and Navy have taken over most of the beach hotels, usually occupied by winter visitors, but Straus insisted that thousands will find a way to have a Miami vacation—and if they don't:

"I think the normal population of this area is large enough to support racing."

He refused to be worried by the facts that both tracks here are suburban and that Florida is one of the states where the basic gasoline ration is only three gallons a week.

"That's a problem for the racegoers," Straus declared. "We'll give them the best meeting we can, and leave it to them to get to the races by sharing their automobiles or in other ways."

Both Tropical and Hialeah Parks cleared a profit last winter although the impact of the war was felt in attendance and betting.

Since then, there has been a tremendous upsurge in other parts of the country in pari-mutuel wagering—all tracks handling $948,067,552 in bets this year, against $526,277,335 in 1941. Straus is hopeful that factors, such as increased spending powers, will take effect here.

Tropical hedged against possible lean times by cutting the minimum purse to $800 instead of $1,000, but Hialeah held to a $1,200 bottom, although cutting the prizes in the big stake races.

There will be about 1,750 horses in Miami during the winter, about 1,600 of them at Hialeah.

Basketball Bulletin

Higher, More Experienced 'Whiz Kids' Expected to Retain Big Ten Honors

AP Features

Campaign, Ill. — The tall 18- and 19-year-old youngsters, whose sensational play last season brought the University of Illinois its first undisputed Big Ten basketball championship in 27 years, are growing up.

The "Whiz Kids," as they were christened by sports writers as they marched to 13 Conference victories in 15 starts, will average slightly under 6 feet 3½ inches this winter, nearly a full inch per man more than last year.

Andy Phillip, all-Conference guard and spark plug of the 1941-42 five, was the second tallest player on Coach Doug Mills' starting five last season, but at 6 feet 2½, he's the smallest of the current Illini regulars.

Capt. Art Mathisen, center, and the only senior letterman on the squad, stands 6 feet, 5 inches, two inches more than Vic Wukovits, the No. 1 pivot man with whom Mathisen alternated last year. Gene Vance and Jack Smiley, guards, and Ken Menke, forward are 6 feet 3.

ANDY PHILLIP

Phillip and Smiley figure in Mills' lone important lineup change for the 1942-43 campaign. Phillip, who scored 159 points from his guard post to place sixth among Conference scorers as a sophomore, will be moved forward, while Smiley, Illinois' best defensive player, will move from forward to guard.

Loss of Wukovits, whose cool, steady play was a major factor in the success of the Illini last year, was the heaviest blow dealt Illinois by graduation.

Besides the starting five, Ed "Ace" Parker, a 6 foot 3 inch forward whom Mills calls the most improved player on the squad, and Chuck Fowler, a 5 foot 10 inch forward, will be available. Both are juniors.

Lone sophomores likely to break into the first 10 are Oliver Shoaff, forward from Mt. Carmel, and Art Dufelmeier, guard from Beardstown. Both won all-state recognition in 1941.

Because they have a year of experience, including the eastern playoffs of the N.C.A.A. tournament, behind them, Mills expects his Illini to be somewhat improved. Stiffest Conference competition, he believes, will come from Wisconsin, Purdue, Indiana, and Minnesota.

Whirlaway Is Named Best Horse of This Year

One-Sided Vote of Turf Writers Represented All Parts of Country, Other Selections Noted

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Ending an argument that has been bouncing around racing circles for months, Whirlaway today was named the "best horse of this year" by a one-sided vote of turf writers representing all parts of the country.

A total of 128 writers balloted in the Turf and Sports Digest's annual poll of the top gallopers in all divisions, and 76 of them picked Little Mr. Big Tail to hang onto the honor for the second straight season. Only 45 voted for Al Sabaths Alsab, the Chicago express who had been expected to give Whirly a much closer fight than that.

Settling the other title disputes, the writers picked Alsab over Mrs. Payne Whitney's shut out as 1942's three-year-old boss, and Mrs. John D. Hertz's rapid-running Count Fleet, advancing favorite for next spring's Kentucky Derby, as the best of the two-year colts, by a comparatively close margin over John Marsch's mid-west ace, occupation.

Hal Price Headley's Askmenow, top money-winner of the year in her division, with a total of $39,610, was tabbed queen of the two-year old fillies, and, of course, Whirlaway was a cake-walk in the balloting for the champion handicap campaigner in the four year-old-and-up set.

In taking the horse of the year crown, Whirly became the second horse to win it twice in a row in the several years of the Turf and Sport Digest poll. Before the world's leading money winner, the only repeater was big, husky Challedon, who had a two-year run in 1939 and '40.

In picking Warren Wright's Whizz-bang, the writers apparently decided in favor of Whirly's all-around record of becoming the first half-million dollar money winner in turf history, of rounding out three years without the slightest trace of pain or ache indicating unsoundness and of completing his second straight year without finishing out the money in any race.

Alsab's Record

The ARisab cheering and Chowder Society, meantime, pointed to its hero's performance in knocking off Whirlaway two-out-of-three times this year. For the year, Whirly won 12 of 22 starts and added $211,250 to his bankroll, thereby boosting his total earnings to a gaudy $561,911. Alsab came waltzing home in nine out of 23 outings and, with more chances at bigger purses than the little four-year old flier from Kentucky, grabbed off $234,565 for the year. But Alsab finished out of the money four times and had to be laid up for repairs part of the year.

In the three-year old contest, in which votes are added up a bit differently, Alsab knocked off Shut Out, 348 points to 272. In the age divisions, the writers picked their one-two-three choices, and the Turf and Sport Digest awarded three points for a first-place selection, two for second and one for third.

Last spring, Shut Out pinned it on Alsab in the derby and Belmont, while Sabath's pride and Joy took the Preakness. But the Son of Equipose went "sour" during the fall campaigning and the "Sab" came along to mop up several of the late fixtures.

Third place in this balloting went to William Woodward's tall filly, Vagrancy, the best of the three-year old "Queens." She polled 57 points.

Count Fleet, who hit his peak this fall and turned in a 1:34 4/5 mile for a world record for a two-year-old, drew 331 points in the selection for the best of the juveniles. Occupation, winner of nine races and $192,355, had 275, and Devil's Thumb, the fast galloper was retired for the year after winning five straight stakes at Saratoga in August.

Askmenow took the two-year old filly crown with 272 points to 170 for Joseph E. Widener's Fair Weather.

Frankie Sinkwich Brighest Star of All Male Athletes

Ted Williams, Slugging Star of Boston Red Sox, Closest Rival; First Place to Sixteen

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—All-America Frankie Sinkwich, who ran and passed Georgia's football team to the southeastern conference championship and into the Rose Bowl, is the people's choice as the brightest star among all the male athletes of 1942.

Fireball Frankie collected 94 points in the annual Associated Press poll of 69 sports editors, finishing far ahead of his closest rival, the slugging star of Boston's American League baseball club, Ted Williams.

Sixteen athletes drew first-place votes in the wide-open balloting. Sinkwich was named first by only 15 of the voters, but he received 19 second and third-place votes to account for his top-heavy point total, figured on the basis of three for first, two for second and one for third.

Williams, who can qualify for the title of "runner-up champion" for various honors, finished second in the voting for the second straight year. The lanky outfielder, now training with the army air forces, polled a dozen first-place votes but received little support elsewhere and wound up with 55 points.

Last year's winner, Joe Dimaggio of the New York Yankees, was forgotten in the balloting this time. Sinkwich, a member of the marine corps reserve, got 12 votes in the 1941 poll.

Don Hutson, the record-breaking, pass-catching end of the Green Bay professional football club, was third with 42 points, while Johnny Beazley, the rookie hurler who pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to two victories in the world series, came fourth with 38.

Hutson and Beazley received six first-place votes each. Gunder Haegg, the Swedish track star who cracked world records at distances from a mile to 5,000 meters, was voted first on ten ballots, but had a point total of only 37, good for fifth place.

Other stars who placed first on one or more ballots were Ray Robinson, welterweight, boxer; Mort Cooper, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher; Cornelius Warmerdam, California pole vaulter; Ben Hogan, professional golfer; Joe Louis, world heavyweight boxing champion and an army sergeant; Greg Rice, middle distance runner; Paul Governali, all-America football player from Columbia; George Kurowski, St. Louis Cardinals' world series hero; Walker Cooper, Cardinal catcher, and Joe Gordon, New York Yankees' second baseman.

The complete voting:

Athlete and Sport	1st	Pts
Frank Sinkwich, football	15	84
Ted Williams, baseball	12	55

Kentucky Coach Moans Again

(AP) Features

Lexington, Ky.—Squire Adolph Rupp, the combination basketball coach and tiller of the Bluegrass soils, reports a typical basketball story these days at the University of Kentucky.

Whispers Adolph, "it could be worse, but I don't see how."

The natives here in the Bluegrass never give this pre-season prognostigation much thought. "Adolph is up to his old tricks," they inform you.

"Wait and see, he'll have a better team than last season's Southeastern Conference championship five despite the fact that he lost 12 out of 15 players."

For 13 years now, Rupp has been bemoaning his team's chances against "those big boys from those wealthy colleges." But figures never have been known to lie.

Since the Southeastern Conference was formed nine years ago, Kentucky has returned home champions six times, runners-up twice, and out of the money only once, and that's pretty fair basketball, considering Adolph's "poor little mountain boys."

What kind of competition does Kentucky face? "Toughest schedule in America," Adolph sayiys.

"Indiana, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Great Lakes, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia Tech and that's just part of the schedule," Adolph commented.

As for the personnel of his season's quintet, Rupp has three lettermen back in Mary Akers, a guard whom last season received All-American considerations, Mel Brewer, second string Southeastern Conference center, and Milt Ticco, an erratic but resourceful forward.

ADOLPH RUPP
Tells Sad Story

From seven reserves, Adolph will have to select his other two starters. Bill Barlow, Kenneth Rollins or Clyde Parker could be the other guard to work alongwith Akers. They're all well over six feet.

The other starting forward to work with Ticco will be chosen from either Mulford Davis or a freshman by the name of Paul Noel.

"This will be the best season in the history of basketball," the squire concluded, meaning that it will be another good season for Kentucky's Wildcats, and a poor season for their opponents.

Ulster-Greene Council Gives Annual Report; Debt Free

Reports submitted at the annual meeting of the Ulster-Greene Council held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday night show the Council to be out of debt and in a good condition financially, but that although there are 53 troops enrolled, with a membership of 1,050 scouts, this represents instead of a growth a net loss of two troops over the preceding year and a small drop in membership.

The reports of both President Henry W. Keator and Scout Executive Douglas A. Dye refer to this failure to move ahead in the matter of membership and both ascribe it primarily to the same cause—the attempt to run a scout organization of the scope of the Ulster-Greene Council, spread over such an area, with a one-man executive staff.

Thus President Keator says of the loss in membership, that it is due "I believe, primarily, to the fact that our Council has reached the limit of its growth unless the scout executive staff can be enlarged."

Scout Executive Dye, referring to Dr. Keator's statement, says: "This is not a need just apparent this year, but one that the Council has hoped to meet for the past two or three years." He adds, "our membership record for 1942 shows that a one-man executive staff cannot do the job for the Ulster-Greene Council." He sees a field scout executive as "the greatest need as we look forward to 1943."

President Keator's Report

Dr. Henry W. Keator, who has served the Council with great faithfulness and enthusiasm as president for several years and who has had much to do with relieving it of its burden of debt, gave the following report:

The growth of the Ulster-Greene Council during the past year has not kept pace with that of the preceeding year. While we added 5 troops during 1942, making a total of 53, we have not been able to reach our goal of 56 troops set for 1942, the number remaining at 53. Scout membership has dropped correspondingly from 1,089 to 1,050. The situation is due to loss from lapsed troops and loss of leadership, many of our scoutmasters and assistant scoutmasters having gone into the service, and I believe primarily to the fact that our council has reached the limit of its growth unless the scout executive staff can be enlarged. It is the intention of the executive board to add a field executive to the staff if the results of the finance drive now on permit. May I repeat my statement of last year that we are not yet reaching two out of every four of the 3,500 boys in the Ulster-Greene area. Dropped boys is still our problem.

Cubbing is making more rapid progress than scouting. We have three packs with 86 cubs as compared with one pack with 47 cubs last annual report, and cubs are of course, the material from which we expect to recruit future scouts.

Our debt has been liquidated, and we feel that our feet are on much firmer ground financially. While the returns from our recent finance campaign are not yet complete, indications are that we will not be too much behind last year's total.

Improvements have been made at Camp Half Moon, and the season was successful, but if we are to make our camp permanently attractive for the boys, the facilities for water sports must be materially improved. This year needy boys were given the privilege of a free week at camp.

Our most urgent need is sponsorship and leadership, and to this end more leaders training classes should be organized.

Scouts are, and have been doing a grand job in national defense work, so much so that their activities have elicited warm commendation from our government officials. They are nobly and unselfishly doing their part in the preservation of America for democracy.

We have recently lost our scout executive, R. Gardner Burns, who did such splendid work during his four years in this council. While we regret his going, we congratulate him on his well merited promotion in the field of scouting. I ask you to give Douglas A. Dye, his successor who has just come to us, the same loyalty and co-operation that you gave Mr. Burns.

While I am retiring from the office of president because of other arduous duties, my heart is still in the movement, and my interest in the council and its boys shall not cease, and I want to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to my co-workers for the co-operation, encouragement, and helpful suggestions that they have given me.

Yours for better scouting,
HENRY W. KEATOR,
President.

Total	$12,280.20
Balance on Hand September 30, 1942	$82.60

A further report, bringing the statement up to December 1, shows receipts during November of $3654.16. These include contributions of $3382.92.

Disbursements for November totaled $1522.40. Included in these were: Awards $24.87; campaign costs $229.75; old debt payment $200.

There was a balance on hand December 1 of $2131.78 and accounts receivable of $1405.75, which includes $1246.70 of 1942-43 pledges.

Organization and Extension

From the statistical report of the committee on organization and extension, covering 1942, the following facts are taken:

No. Troops on December 8, 1942, 53 as against 55 in 1941

No. Scouts 1050 compared with 1070 year ago.

There are 86 Cub scouts as against 60 last year.

Standing of the various districts in the Council, showing present number of Troops, scouts added and scouts dropped during the year and present scout membership:

	No. Troops	Scouts Added	Scouts dropped	No. Scouts
Northern	8	66	48	156
Mountain	5	13	30	91
Western	3	7	29	36
Saugerties	8	61	57	102
Kingston	16	131	135	414
Southern	7	52	46	130
Rondout Valley	6	47	52	121

During the year new troops were organized at New Baltimore, Sea Scout Ship at Catskill, Malden-on-Hudson, Saugerties, Rosendale and a Cub Pack at Marlborough.

Offsetting these troops were dropped at Phoenicia, Wittenberg, West Saugerties, Catskill (47), Ulster Heights, Maplecrest and Napanoch.

In addition Troop 74 at New Paltz, 75 at Gardiner and 46 at Catskill are listed as "lapsed and inactive."

Charles E. Davis, chairman of the committee, says: "A year ago this organization set an objective which they had full confidence of reaching. As we all know since December 7, 1941, we have had many things occur which interfered with any plans that we might have made, and Scouting was no exception. At a time when we found a greater need for Scouting we have also encountered many more obstacles to overcome. You probably all realize the great loss in leadership that we have suffered and the difficulties to maintain a close association with the Scouters due to gasoline rationing. This does not mean that we should accept the situation as being inevitable and relax our effort to achieve the progress which we have enjoyed for the past four or five years, but rather that we have to make new plans to overcome these handicaps. These new plans will be unfolded during 1943 as the year progresses.

"We are again taking as our goal for 1943 the same figures that we had set for 1942. In view of the handicaps we have mentioned we do not feel justified in setting a higher quota. However since we do realize what we are up against we entertain a real hope of accomplishing this."

Camping and Activities

Fred S. Van Voorhis, chairman of this committee, reports that 112 different scouts attended camp last summer; compared with 129 in 1941; No. of troops was the same, 30; there were 169 boy-week units as against 249 year before. Rationing of gasoline and unfavorable swimming conditions at camp are primarily blamed for the reduced attendance this year.

The building of a permanent dam at camp is seen necessary to secure satisfactory swimming arrangements and to do this, title to the south side of the stream must be secured. If this cannot be done the committee favors continuance of camping on a temporary basis at the present site or some other site until the council can secure a permanent site with full title to property.

At the sixth annual camporee held in Forsyth Park 600 scouts and leaders attended. Due to gasoline rationing it may be necessary to hold district camporees this coming year.

There is given a long list of activities in which scout troops participated in 1942, including collection of scrap, distribution of posters for the Red Cross, TB Association, U. S. O. and helping in similar causes.

Leadership Training

For the leadership training committee, Dr. H. W. Keator reported that the training program did not realize the goals set up for 1942. In the Kingston district four leaders and 27 scouts completed the emergency service training course and were awarded certificates. Cub leaders training was given for the first time and five Den Mothers completed the training course. He sees it as necessary to offer training courses on a district basis.

Health and Safety

Dr. John B. Krom reported that policies for health and safety of scouts had been continued and strengthened during 1942. These included physical examination of every boy as he joins a troop and examination of scouts prior to going to camp.

Advancement Committee

B. C. Van Ingen, chairman of the committee on advancement, reported courts of honor held as follows: Kingston and Saugerties 6districts, three courts in each; Rondout, Western and Northern, two courts each; Mountain and Southern, one each, with two courts at Camp Half Moon.

Ten courts were held by troops during the year, with the approval of the council.

He says that "In comparing the awards for 1942 with 1941 we notice an increase of approximately 29 per cent in the tenderfoot class, but a loss in all the other ranks except Life.

The council made the following awards during the year:

Tenderfoot, 331; Second Class, 155; First Class 68; Star Rank, 54; Life Rank, 36; Eagle Rank, 15; Eagle Palms, 29; Merit Badges, 1033; Air Scout Candidate, 13; Apprentice Air Scout 6.

Scout Executive's Report

Reports concluded with that of Scout Executive Douglas A. Dye, who said:

Since November 1, I have had the pleasure of serving as the scout executive of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America. My report of these few weeks is that they have been spent in getting acquainted and helping communities finish up on their finance campaigns.

I have been impressed by the high esteem which you all hold for my predecessor, R. G. Burns. My hope is that I can carry on the work from where he ended when he went to serve as the Scout Executive of the Louis Agassiz Fuertes Council at Ithaca, N. Y.

The preceding reports of our President, Dr. H. W. Keator, and the chairmen of the council operating committees give a clear picture of our council. As in most councils throughout the United States much has been accomplished, but there is much yet to be done. The accomplishments fill us all with pride and satisfaction which is the reward of good work. That which remains to be done fills us with concern. It is this concern that must serve as our incentive to forge ahead.

The organization and extension report shows that we are not quite up to where we were last year. We started 1942 with 53 troops and during the year we organized five new troops but dropped seven. At present we have 53 troops showing a net loss of two. We also have three troops which are lapsed and inactive and will probably have to be dropped at the end of the year.

In the President's report the need for a field scout executive is stressed. This is not a need just apparent this year, but one that the council has hoped to meet for the past two or three years. Now that the council has retired all of its debt we must meet this need for sufficient executive staff.

Our membership record for 1942 shows that a one-man executive staff cannot do the job for the Ulster-Greene Council. This is all the more apparent when we consider the tremendous turnover in scoutmasters and other scouters due to military service and war work.

Therefore if the council is not to regress further and also to do what is expected in general by the Boy Scouts of America in the war effort we must have the services of a field scout executive. This is our greatest need and we look forward to 1943. If we meet this need we can once again look forward to a steady and continual rate of progress. It will mean more troops and many more boys reached for character-building and citizenship training through the Boy Scout program.

tensity. He couldn't even use airpower to give anything approaching an adequate answer to powerful British and American bombing attacks against occupied European territory and Germany.

I was in London five weeks during that period and not once did a Boche airplane reach the city.

Then, General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the British eighth army, and allied forces including strong American air units lashed out unexpectedly at Rommel. The Nazi marshal was caught napping and outgeneraled. His defenses cracked and there began one of the greatest routs of the whole war.

The allied surprise attack on Tunisia which followed placed Axis forces in the jaws of a potential trap. Meantime, British and American air fleets continued to strike heavily at vital Axis industries and communications. There was an intensification of bombing in the Mediterranean area to frustrate Hitler's efforts to send aid to his Africa corps.

Thus we find the Fuehrer engaged on all fronts and each allied operation supplements the others. He is in the unhappy position at the moment of being unable to meet any one of them adequately. He dare not shift much of his weight because that would give his enemy on a weakened front a chance to profit.

As things stand, the Nazi chief's greatest immediate concern must lie in North Africa, since he probably figures he can hold the Russian line for the time. Should he be thrown out of Africa, however, it would immeasurably speed the end which already is dogging the heels of another world beater's ambitions. The best he could do would be to dig himself in on the continent and sell his life—or rather the lives of his unfortunate followers—as dearly as possible.

This being so, War Secretary Henry L. Stimson's statement that operations in Tunisia are a month ahead of schedule, although a start has only just been made, comes at a particularly opportune moment in this part of the world. The secretary's unemotional, straightforward account of the situation has received wide publicity and will afford encouragement to a public which has lacked information as to exactly how the Tunisian show was going.

Just as Stimson indicated that progress in Tunisia depends heavily on acquirement of air superiority there by the allies, so it can be said that the entire Mediterranean conflict pivots largely on air power. Happily for the allies, they have definite superiority in the Libyan end of the North African battle.

Bombardment of Axis communications, including harbors such as Naples, is one of the greatest services that the allied air forces can perform at this juncture and they are doing magnificent work. Hitler is dependent on his air and water communications to reinforce his armies in Africa and he is having a sticky job. So long as the allies can keep these lines crippled, the Nazi chief must fight a losing battle.

The African conflict is, in its essence, one of transport and the allies are increasingly exploiting the fact that the best place to catch transport and supplies is at the source.

Fourteen Men Fail In Physical Exam

Officer Summons Is One; Inductees Leave Tuesday

It was unofficially reported today that 14 men in the contingent of 65 men who left for an army induction center in Albany on Tuesday morning, failed to pass the physical tests, and that four of the group were kept over until today to undergo further physical tests.

Among the 14 men rejected was Policeman Frank E. Sammons of the Kingston police department, who resumed his duties as a patrolman today.

The men who passed the physical tests yesterday were inducted into the U. S. Army, and will leave Kingston for training camp on Tuesday, December 22.

It is not expected that any more men will be called up for physical tests this year. The number of men in the January quota is not known as yet.

Essential Driving

Failure to keep this country on rubber for essential driving "would be equal to a military disaster" Rubber Director William M. Jeffers recently told members of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

R. L. Sahm Becomes New West Shore Trainmaster

New York Central headquarters announced today that R. L. Sahm of Batavia, has taken over the position of trainmaster of the River Division (West Shore Railroad) of the New York Central System. Trainmaster Sahm replaces Captain Stephen J. Keating, who has been called to active duty with the engineer corps of the United States Army.

At Batavia, Mr. Sahm held the position of Supervisor of Track, and previous to this the new trainmaster has held various positions in the Maintenance of Way Department of the New York Central System at Jersey Shore, Pa., Newburgh, Beacon, Buffalo and Clearfield, Pa.
